MEMOIR ON THE LIFE AND SERVICES OF GEORGE SEARS GREENE

BY HIS SON

FRANCIS VINTON GREENE.

MY father's life covered almost the entire span of the nineteenth century. Born in 1801, he died in 1899. As a boy he went to Newport to see the wreck of the Macedonian, towed in by her captor, the United States, Captain Stephen Decatur; and a few years later heard of the battle of Waterloo and the exile of Napoleon to St. Helena. In 1818, while a clerk in New York, he saw a venturesome hotel-keeper, who had erected a hotel at the corner of Broadway and Chambers Street, go into bankruptcy, because his hotel was so far in the country that it had no inmates. When he went to West Point the following year he travelled by sloop, making the voyage in two days. He was already past his younger manhood when he witnessed the beginning of the practical applications of steam and electricity, which were destined in a comparatively few years to change the face of the earth, to multiply the wealth of the world more than an hundred fold, to change the customs and habits of all peoples, to alter the standard of living, and to add more to the physical comfort and material well-being of the human race than had been accomplished in all the previous centuries of recorded history. More than one third of his life was passed as an engineer, doing his part in this transformation, in the building of railroads and other public works. He was already at the age of retirement when he re-entered the army at the outbreak of the Civil War, and was nearly sixty-three years of age when a bullet crashed through his face, carrying away the most of his teeth and a part of his cheek-bone. He lived for more than a generation after this, retaining his extraordinary health and physical strength until within a year of his death, and keeping full possession of all his faculties and his buoyancy of spirits until ten days before the end. The man who travelled by stage and sloop in his youth, and whose first knowledge of important events related to Waterloo and

New Orleans, lived to ride on electric cars and in automobiles, and to discuss the aptitude of the Cubans for self-government and the proper course for us to pursue after taking the Philippines.

A life so long, passed amid a succession of such important events, is worthy a moment's consideration, even of a stranger; and his friends, by whom he was universally respected for his high character, and deeply beloved for his genial disposition, will, I feel sure, be interested in some of its details.

His ancestry is indicated in the pages of this book, which is chiefly derived from the antiquarian and genealogical researches which were his chief mental recreation during the last fifty years of his life. Six generations of these ancestors had lived and died in the State of Rhode Island—a State small in area, but of great potency in the development of civil and religious liberty; three preceding generations had lived in Dorsetshire, England; and through a similarity of arms it is believed, though not proven, that these latter were descended from the Greens of Greene's Norton, who were the most wealthy and powerful family in Northamptonshire from the thirteenth to the sixteenth century. The emigrant, John Greene, aided Roger Williams to found Rhode Island. His son was Lieutenant-Governor, and among his descendants in successive generations were men holding prominent offices—Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, U. S. Senator, Judge of the Supreme Court. Two of them, Major-General Nathanael Greene and Colonel Christopher Greene, achieved great distinction in the army during the War of the Revolution. My father's father, Caleb Greene, was a ship-owner, and in his youth a ship-master; residing in the village of Apponaug in the town of Warwick, and owning several hundred acres which formed part of the large tract which his ancestor, the first John Greene, had purchased from Miantonomoh in 1640. On his lands was a small cotton-cloth factory, operated by water-power, one of the first ventures in that branch of manufacturing which has since become the chief industry of New England. The cotton was brought in Caleb's ships from Baltimore, and on their return voyage they carried cotton cloths and occasionally the anchors and chains which were still made at the iron works at Coventry, established by Nathanael's Greene's father fifty years before. Caleb also raised such crops, principally corn, oats, hay, and wheat, as his land would produce. He was born in 1772 and died in 1853. Soon after his marriage, in 1795, he built the house in Apponaug shown in the photograph, (see page 475) and lived in it until his death. My father was born in this house, in the southwest room on the second floor, on May 6, 1801. He was one of nine children, and, singularly enough, four of these died before they were two years old, and the other five lived to be more than eighty.

He attended the village school at Apponaug, and afterward the grammar school at Old Warwick. In his sixteenth year he was sent to Wrentham, Mass., to prepare for college, and in the following year to the Latin grammar school near Brown University in Providence. It was his intention to enter Brown, but the project was abandoned, because his father, whose shipping business had been ruined by the embargo, could not afford to support him through college. He therefore sought commercial employment, and came near being apprenticed as a boy on an East India merchantman. The captain at the last moment decided not to take any apprentices on that voyage; and my father then secured employment in the office of Henry Jacobs, a dry-goods merchant in Pearl Street, New York. While employed there he received his appointment as a cadet at West Point. He entered the Academy, June 24, 1819, and was duly graduated four years later, number two in a class of thirty-five members. Among his fellow-cadets who afterward attained the rank of general officer in the Civil War, or were otherwise distinguished, were Donelson, Winder, and Ramsay, of the class of 1820; Mansfield, Hunter, and McCall, of the class of 1822; Mordecai, Thomas, and Day, of his own class; Mahan, of 1824; Bache, Anderson, and C. F. Smith, of 1825; and Bartlett, A. S. Johnston, Heintzelman, and Casey, of 1826. His own class entered seventy-nine strong, of whom only twenty-six received their commissions in 1823, after passing the severe ordeal of the yearly examinations, then recently established by Major Thayer; who had become Superintendent in 1817, and introduced the methods of instruction and administration which have ever since been the basis of the training at the Military Academy. During his term as a cadet, my father was the quartermaster-sergeant and quartermaster of the battalion, and, in his last year, acting assistant professor of mathematics. The corps of cadets then numbered about two hundred, and was commanded by Brevet Major W. J. North, afterward distinguished in the Mexican War. It was the custom to have a practice march every summer, part of the distance being covered by actual marching and part by transportation on boats. In 1819, the march was up the Hudson to Rhinebeck, in 1820 to Philadelphia, and in 1822 to Boston.

Upon his graduation in 1823, my father was appointed a Second Lieutenant in the 3d Artillery. After the usual graduating furlough, he was ordered to duty at West Point as assistant professor of mathematics, and remained there nearly four years, with the exception of a few months in the summer of 1824, when he was on duty at the Artillery School then just established at Fort Monroe. While there he had the pleasure of being presented to General Lafayette at the Yorktown celebration of 1824, forty-three years after the surrender of Cornwallis, in which Lafayette had played so important a part.

In the spring of 1827, my father was ordered to join his regiment, then at Fort Wolcott, on Goat Island in Newport Harbor; and the following year was transferred to Fort Sullivan, at Eastport, Me., the extreme eastern point of United States territory; and, with the exception of one year's service at Fort Independence, Boston, he remained at Eastport until he obtained leave of absence in 1835, with a view to resigning from the army.

In the summer of 1828, he was married at Providence to Elizabeth Vinton, whose brother, David H. Vinton, had been in the class before him at West Point, and was one of his most intimate friends. She bore him three children, two sons and one daughter; but all of them, together with their mother, died within a period of seven months at Fort Sullivan in 1832 and 1833. From such an overwhelming calamity the only possible relief, in the monotony of garrison life at a small and remote station, was in intense study; and during the next three years he read exhaustive courses in law and medicine, and was qualified to pass examinations admitting him to practice in either of these professions. He also continued the studies in engineering which he had pursued at all times since his graduation at West Point. In the autumn of 1835, being still, after more than twelve years of service, a First Lieutenant of artillery, he determined to resign from the army and engage in the practice of the profession of civil engineering. He obtained leave of absence until June 30, 1836, at which time his resignation was to take effect, and began work as an assistant engineer on the railroad from Andover to Wilmington in Massachusetts, the humble beginning of what is now the great Boston & Maine Railroad system.

While thus employed he was frequently in Boston and Charlestown, but it was while she was on a visit to Maine in company with her father that he met his second wife, Martha Barrett Dana, daughter of the Honorable Samuel Dana, who had served for several terms in the Assembly, the State Senate, and in Congress. His home had formerly been at Groton, Mass., whence he had moved to establish his residence in Charlestown and to practise law in Boston. He was of the well-known Dana family in Massachusetts, descendants of Richard Dana, who came from England to Cambridge in 1640. They were married in Charlestown on February 21, 1837, and the marriage was a very happy one; my mother living for forty-six years after it, and my father surviving her for sixteen years. Of the six children of this marriage, one died in infancy, five grew to maturity, and four survived their parents. Three of them served in the military or naval service in time of war.

Soon after his marriage, professional advancement came, in an appointment as assistant engineer to survey and locate the route for a railway from Charleston, S. C., to Cincinnati, Ohio, the great project to which Senator Hayne, Webster's antagonist, devoted himself with unflinching energy until his death; hoping to create a line which would not only bring the wealth of the West to the Southern seacoast, but would also bring the people of Ohio and Indiana into close relations and political sympathy with the people of South Carolina—a project which failed of realization, both on the material and on the political side. My father surveyed and located that part of the line which was to run from near Asheville, N. C., down the beautiful valley of the French Broad River to the Tennessee River, and thence across the Cumberland Mountains into Kentucky; other parties carried on the surveys of the line to Cincinnati on the one side and to Charleston on the other. The death of Senator Hayne in 1840 led to the abandonment of this project; and my father was then employed in locating and examining coal mines at Cumberland and other points in Western Maryland, and in constructing a portion of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. About 1849 he was employed on the Boston & Providence Railroad; in 1851 he went to Maine again, on the Kennebec & Portland Railroad; and in 1853 to Rhode Island as chief engineer in charge of the construction of the Providence & Bristol Railroad. In 1856, he came to New York as engineer in charge of the extension of the Croton Water Works, and particularly of the construction of the great reservoir in Central Park.

On the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, he immediately offered his services to the War Department. He had never taken an active part in politics; his sympathies were with the Whig party, and I think that when he had voted at all he had voted for the candidates of that party; he had no sympathy with abolition ideas, although some of his brothers and sisters were rabid abolitionists, but he had a profound respect for law and legal authority and intense antipathy to rebellion or any defiance or evasion of the law. When Sumter was fired upon he had no question of what his duty was,—viz., to re-enter the military service and serve through the war, not especially to suppress slavery, but to defend the government against rebellion, and to save the Union. It was, however, not so easy to obtain an appointment. He was over sixty years of age, had been for twenty-five years out of the army, where his rank had been only that of lieutenant; he had been living but a few years in New York, and for every appointment there were numerous applicants who had more friends and influence than himself. Finally, however, there was a vacancy in the colonelcy in the 60th New York Volunteers, a regiment which had been raised in St. Lawrence County and was serving in the vicinity of Baltimore. On the advice of those in whose judgment he had confidence, Governor Morgan offered this position to my father; it was immediately accepted, the commission was dated January 18, 1862, and in less than ten days he took command of the regiment in the outskirts of Baltimore.

The regiment was composed of sturdy farmers, mechanics, hunters, and laborers from the northern part of New York; it had been in service only three months, and its first colonel had been a man without military training or instincts, who had resigned on the unanimous written request of his officers. My father was an entire stranger to every one in the regiment; he never understood nor sought to learn the arts of gaining popularity; and while he did whatever lay within his power to care for his men and to save them from unnecessary discomfort or hardship, yet he was a very strict disciplinarian, his manner was at times severe and even harsh, and he insisted upon the same unquestioning obedience to his orders that he himself rendered to the orders of his own superiors. The regiment was disposed at first to look askance at such strictly military methods, but there soon grew up a feeling of mutual confidence and respect, which continued unbroken during their service together. His promotion soon took him away, but the regiment was assigned to his brigade, and served with him until he was compelled by his wound to leave the field eighteen months later.

On the 28th of April, 1862, he was appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers, and ordered to report to General Banks, then commanding the United States forces in the Shenandoah Valley. He served with Banks in his retreat to Williamsport, then received command of a brigade consisting of the 2d Massachusetts, 29th Pennsylvania, 27th Indiana, and 3d Wisconsin, and advanced with Banks to Winchester. He was then detached and ordered to report to Pope at Washington, and on July 9th he was assigned to command the Third Brigade in Augur's (Second) Division of Banks's corps, which he joined at Warrenton, Va. The brigade consisted of the 60th and 78th New York, 3d Delaware, 1st District of Columbia, and the Purnell Legion of Maryland, about 1420 men in all.

Meanwhile, two of his sons were in active service. Samuel Dana Greene, who had graduated at the Naval Academy in 1859, was the First Lieutenant and executive officer of the original Monitor, from the day she was launched in January, 1862, until she sank in a gale off Cape Hatteras, while on her way to Charleston in the following December. In her famous engagement with the Merrimac, on March 9, 1862, he had handled the guns in the turret until Worden was disabled near the close of the engagement, when he succeeded to the command, being then only twenty-two years old. In July, 1862, the Monitor was stationed in the James River, part of a fleet co-operating with McClellan's army. Another son, Charles Thruston Greene, had enlisted at the age of twenty as a private in the 22d New York Militia when it was ordered to Harper's Ferry in 1862. My father succeeded in getting him a commission as Second Lieutenant in the 60th New York and detailed as an aide on his staff. He was subsequently promoted to be Captain and Assistant Adjutant-General, and served with his father in all the campaigns in Virginia and afterwards around Chattanooga. In November, 1864, at the battle of Ringgold, Ga., his leg was cut off by a three-inch shell, and he was compelled to leave the field of active service.

When my father joined his brigade at Warrenton, Va., in July, 1862, Pope was just beginning his movements against Jackson, and, after considerable manœuvring and countermarching, the first engagement was fought at Cedar Mountain on August 9th. It was my father's first battle. His brigade had been weakened by detachments and was therefore placed in reserve, and only brought into action at the close of the engagement. The report of the commanding general, Pope, mentions him as having "behaved with distinguished gallantry." The division commander, Augur, was wounded, and of the brigade commanders, one, Geary, was wounded, and another, Prince, was taken prisoner; so that my father succeeded to the command of the division, which he retained for the next two months, including the Antietam campaign.

Cedar Mountain was quickly followed by Jackson's brilliant flank movement, the disastrous battle of Manassas, and Pope's hasty retreat within the fortifications of Washington. In these movements Banks's corps covered the retreat, but was not actively engaged. From Washington the army moved under McClellan's command to Antietam, and there, around the Dunker Church, my father was engaged in some of the fiercest fighting of the whole war. His division arrived on the field at 2.30 A.M. of September 17th, and at 5 A.M. moved into action as part of the attack by Hooker's, Mansfield's, and Sumner's corps, which was intended to turn Lee's left flank. This attempt failed, but only after a morning of exceptionally hot fighting, in which Mansfield was killed (my father had met him for a few moments that morning for the first time since they were cadets at West Point forty years before) and Hooker, Sedgwick, and others were wounded. The centre of attack was the Dunker Church, on the Hagerstown turnpike, and it fell to my father's division to carry this point about 8 A.M. and hold it until 2.30 P.M., when he was finally driven back, after Hooker's and Sumner's corps and Williams's division—on the right and left of him—had all in turn been forced to retire. His antagonists were a portion of Jackson's corps, containing his original command, the "Stonewall Brigade," and there were no better fighters in Lee's army; the same troops had been opposed to him at Cedar Mountain, and were destined to attack him again at Gettysburg in the following summer. In this engagement my father's division lost upwards of twenty per cent. in killed and wounded.

The Antietam campaign was followed by the deposition of McClellan, the appointment of Burnside in his place, the march to the Rappahannock, and the terrible defeat of Fredericksburg. The Twelfth Corps had been left to garrison Harper's Ferry, and was only ordered to Fredericksburg just after the battle. Then followed the dreary winter in the mud, relieved only by the visit of President Lincoln, after Hooker had succeeded Burnside, and the imposing cavalry and infantry reviews held in his honor on the plains of Falmouth. It was there that my father first met President Lincoln, at a lunch given by Hooker. In the closing days of April, 1863, the Chancellorsville campaign began, and my father's brigade, forming part of the Twelfth Corps, crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford, the Rapidan at Gennanna Ford, and moved along the Plank Road past Chancellorsville, taking position on the ridge in the woods just beyond that hamlet. After some manœuvring and skirmishing on May 1st and 2d, it had returned to this position, adjacent to the Eleventh Corps, when, at dusk on the evening of the latter day, Jackson struck the right and rear of the Eleventh Corps and routed it. The fugitives in a panic rushed through and behind the Twelfth Corps, but it stood firm. In the morning (May 3d) the attack was renewed by Jackson's corps (under Stuart) on the right flank and rear of the Twelfth Corps, which made a most gallant resistance, gradually retreating, under orders, in the direction of United States Ford, on the Rappahannock. The fighting continued all day and the losses were very heavy. On the 4th and 5th of May the corps remained in its intrenchments; on the 6th recrossed the Rappahannock; and on the 7th was back at its old camping-ground at Aquia Creek on the Potomac, whence it had marched out just ten days before. The losses in the brigade had been nearly one fourth of its strength.

A month later the Gettysburg campaign began, and my father's brigade (Third Brigade, Second Division, Twelfth Corps) marched with the rest of the army through Northern Virginia, across the Potomac, into Maryland and northward through Pennsylvania. Meade succeeded Hooker on June 28th, and on the afternoon of July 1st the Twelfth Corps arrived on the field at Gettysburg. They went into position for the night on the left flank, near Little Round Top, but early the next morning they were moved over to the extreme right and took position on the slopes of Culp's Hill, where they immediately threw up heavy intrenchments. The position was the extreme right of the Union line and was somewhat "in the air," the flank not being protected by any natural obstacle: The hillside was thickly wooded with oak and chestnut trees, and the ground was covered with large boulders. In front of them was a small stream and a narrow, flat valley, also wooded. On their left were the trenches of Wadsworth's division of the First Corps, extending to the cemetery. During the afternoon of July 2d occurred the desperate fighting near the peach orchard, in which the Third Corps was driven back; and Meade, becoming alarmed for the safety of his left flank, sent an order about 6 P.M. to Slocum to send the entire Twelfth Corps to reinforce the left. Slocum took the responsibility of leaving one brigade, and he selected my father's for this duty. He was to remain and hold the trenches which had been occupied by six brigades. His force consisted of five small regiments,—the 60th, 78th, 102d, 137th, and 149th New York,—numbering in all 1350 men present for duty. A little after dark the onslaught began, an entire division (Rodes's of Ewell's corps), numbering over 8000 men, assaulting this thinly manned line of trenches with the intention of breaking through. Had they done so they would have been at Meade's headquarters in a few minutes, would have crushed his right flank, and would have taken in reverse the position at the stone wall—"high-water mark"—where the great fight of the next day occurred; and would have gained possession of the Baltimore turnpike, the only line of retreat for the Union army in case of disaster. There was more than one point where the fate of Gettysburg hung in the balance, and where failure would have resulted in complete disaster in this most critical battle of the war; and Culp's Hill was one of these points and at least the equal of any of them in importance. The attack lasted from 7 until 10 P.M. A portion of the trenches on the extreme right, which were empty, were occupied by the Confederates, the 149th Regiment changing front to face them; but otherwise they gained no ground, and their losses were four to one of those sustained by the defenders. During the night the Twelfth Corps returned to their positions, and reinforcements to the extent of a few regiments were obtained from the First, Eleventh, and Sixth Corps. At dawn, about 4 A.M., the struggle was renewed, both sides moving to the attack. It lasted until 10 A.M., and resulted in the Twelfth Corps regaining every part of its lines and driving the Confederates back behind the line of Rock Creek.

Through carelessness on the part of General Meade's staff in compiling the reports of corps and division commanders, my father at first received no credit for his great services at Gettysburg. Meade's report ignored what he had done and was full of glaring errors. Some months later, on the urgent remonstrance of Generals Williams and Slocum of the Twelfth Corps, Meade made a supplementary report in which he said that "the enemy . . . attacked Gen<sup>l</sup> Greene with great vigor, who making a gallant defence . . . succeeded in repulsing all the efforts of the enemy to dislodge him." As time passed on and the details of the battle were carefully studied, the importance of my father's services was better appreciated, and it finally came to be recognized by all historians that the holding of the right flank was absolutely essential to success at Gettysburg, and that holding it against the vigorous assault of immensely superior numbers was a military achievement of high order. As Mr. Leslie J. Perry (who has had charge of the Records of the Civil War, and is probably more familiar with its literature than any other living man) expressed it, "The Greene exploit grew and grew, until now it indisputably stands out as a salient feature of one of the century's greatest battles, one of the turning points of the struggle."

After Gettysburg the Army of the Potomac marched back to its old camping-ground on the Rappahannock and Rapidan. But in October the Eleventh and Twelfth Corps were detached and sent by rail to Chattanooga, a distance of nearly twelve hundred miles. The movement attracted wide attention, for never before had so large a force been moved so great a distance in so short a time. The troops arrived in the vicinity of Chattanooga just as Grant was taking command and preparing to raise the siege of Chattanooga. As part of the movement for opening his line of communications along the Tennessee River, Hooker was directed to approach Chattanooga from the west and south through the Lookout Valley. The movement was seen from the heights of Lookout Mountain, and, on the night of October 28th, Bragg sent Longstreet with two divisions to destroy the force in the valley. The attack began a little before midnight, and the brunt of it fell on my father's brigade, which was bivouacked for the night at Wauhatchie Station. Although the moon shone through the clouds at times, yet the position of the contending forces was indicated chiefly by the flashes of their rifles at a range of only a few hundred yards. In moving about to dispose his regiments for the defence of his position, my father came alongside one of the guns of Knapp's battery just as it was discharged. His horse reared and plunged, and in so doing broke the girth of his saddle. He was alone at the moment, his aides and orderlies having all been sent off with orders. He dismounted and attempted to repair the broken girth, alternately facing the saddle and turning his face to the left to watch the enemy's movements as disclosed by their fire. Just as he had turned his face in this manner a bullet entered the upper lip, just under the nostril, passed through his mouth, and made its exit through the right cheek. He was thrown down by the shock, but quickly regained his feet, and, after sending word to Colonel Ireland to take command of the brigade, he made his way to the field hospital, where he passed the remainder of the night. In the morning he was sent in an ambulance to Kelly's Ferry, and the following day to Bridgeport, thence on a stretcher by train to Louisville, arriving there on November 4th, seven days after he was wounded. Here he was joined by his eldest son, G. S. Greene, Jr., and travelled slowly by train, stopping each night, until, after another week, he reached Washington, where my mother had already arrived to meet him.

The bullet, calibre .62, had torn out most of his teeth and part of his cheek bone, but the wound apparently healed quickly. Within two weeks he was able to walk out, and at the end of a month was ordered on light duty as member of a court-martial. But the bullet, in passing out of the cheek, had cut the salivary duct, carrying the ends outward, so that the saliva was discharged on the outside of the cheek. The case was a very unusual one, and it became necessary to consult one of the most eminent surgeons of the day, Doctor Van Buren of New York, as to its treatment with a view to permanent relief. Dr. Van Buren finally decided to undertake a novel operation, by which, after cutting open the cheek, the ends of the salivary duct were turned inward. The face was then sewed up, bandages were placed around the jaw to prevent any movement for three days, during which the incision healed, liquid food meanwhile being injected through a glass tube. This operation was performed in May, 1864, and was successful, although the wound healed very slowly. After it had finally healed, it never gave any serious trouble except at long intervals, when small pieces of lead which had been left in the cheek forced their way out, causing supuration. It was many months, however, before he regained his strength sufficiently to be fit for light duty; and he was then employed as a member of boards and commissions until the beginning of the new year.

In January, 1865, he applied to be assigned to duty again in the field, and he was ordered to report to General Thomas at Nashville. On arriving there he was sent back to report to General Slocum, then commanding one of the grand divisions of Sherman's army, marching northward through the Carolinas. He proceeded by transport to Newbern, N. C., where General Schofield was organizing a force to move into the interior and join Sherman at Goldsborough. My father went with the leading division of this force, commanded by General Jacob D. Cox, who, in his diary, expresses his admiration of his gallantry and soldierly bearing, especially during a combat at Kingston on March 10th, where my father's horse was shot under him. When Schofield joined Sherman at Goldsborough, March 23d, my father was assigned to command the Third Brigade, Third Division, Fourteenth Corps. With this command he took part in the movements which led to the capture of Raleigh and the surrender of Johnston's army, and thence on the march through familiar ground in Virginia to Washington, where the famous review took place on May 25th, 1865. A month later the Fourteenth Corps was sent west to be mustered out, and my father was employed as a member of courts and on other duty in Washington until April 30, 1866, when he was mustered out of the service, having received the appointment of Major-General by Brevet "for gallant and meritorious services during the Rebellion."

He at once returned to the practice of his profession as an engineer in the Croton Water Department in New York. The reservoir in Central Park, of which he had charge when the war broke out, had meanwhile been finished; but the ever-growing needs of the great metropolis for additional water supply had made necessary the construction of storage reservoirs in the upper Croton basin. The surveys had just been completed, and he was placed in charge of the designing and construction of the storage reservoir at Boyd's Corners, in Putnam County. He resided part of the time at the site of this work and part in New York; and during the next few years he made those friendships which endured throughout the remaining thirty years of his life. He had been one of the twelve engineers who, in 1852, organized the American Society of Civil Engineers, and when the Society was reorganized in 1867 he became one of the Directors and remained on the Board for several years, being President of the Society in 1876 and 1877. The Society, which now has a membership of 2650, representing fifty-two States and Territories, and a splendid home of its own in West 57th Street, then occupied modest rooms in William Street.

In 1868 he joined the Century Club, and within its walls and among its genial and distinguished members many of the happiest hours of his life were passed. Even after he had passed the age of ninety-five he was almost among the last to leave in the early hours following its Saturday night meetings. He also joined the Loyal Legion, where he was ever an honored and welcome guest at the monthly dinners; and during the years of its largest membership he rarely failed to attend the annual reunion of the Army of the Potomac. His tastes also led him to join the New York Historical Society and the New York Genealogical Society, of both of which he was at all times an active member and for several years the President. His professional reputation led to his being employed as consulting engineer from time to time in other cities on questions relating to water supply, drainage, and other branches of municipal engineering; and he was constantly called to Albany on hearings before legislative committees concerning city matters.

In the spring of 1868, Mr. Alfred W. Craven, his most intimate friend and professional associate for many years, resigned the position of Chief Engineer and Commissioner of the Croton Aqueduct Department, and my father was appointed in his place. He retained this office and performed its duties until the Department was abolished by the Tweed Charter of 1870. In 1869 he became Chief Engineer of the Central Underground Railroad, which was designed to traverse the length of Manhattan Island, and was the first proposition for rapid transit; the transportation facilities of that period being a small number of horse-car lines and a great number of stage routes, the latter being all concentrated on Broadway, south of 14th Street. He prepared the plans for this railroad, and a small piece of it, as an object-lesson and demonstration, was constructed under Broadway at Park Place. The smoke and dirt of the underground railway in London caused the rejection of steam as a motive power, and neither electric nor cable systems had then been invented; the pneumatic system of propulsion was therefore adopted, the ends of the cars being shaped to conform to the circular section of the tunnel. The project was, however, a generation in advance of the times, and it was never possible to raise the capital necessary to put it into operation.

In 1871 he was appointed, by Governor Cooke, Chief Engineer of the Department of Public Works in Washington; but, at the close of the year, on the advent of the Shepherd administration, he was displaced, being employed, however, for several months afterward in preparing complete plans for the sewerage of Washington. In the autumn of 1872 he returned to New York and continued in the practice of his profession for the next ten years as Consulting Engineer for the Department of Public Parks, having charge of the laying out of the streets as well as the preparation of plans for sewerage in what is now the Borough of the Bronx; consulting engineer for the water works of Troy and Yonkers, N. Y., Providence, R. I., and Detroit, Mich.; for the proposed canal from the St. Lawrence to Lake Champlain; for the Gilbert Elevated Railroad, the first of the overhead roads in New York; and for many other public works in New York and elsewhere. As late as 1886, when he was eighty-five years of age, he was associated with Generals Newton and Gillmore on a commission to investigate the construction and management of the new Croton Aqueduct. The active practice of his profession was practically given up in 1883, when he moved his residence to Morristown, N. J., remaining there until his death in 1899. His only daughter had married an officer of the navy, Lieutenant Murray S. Day, whose father, General Hannibal Day, U. S. A., had been graduated at West Point in the same class of 1823. They had not again met until their children were married nearly fifty years later; and at the close of their life the two classmates came together in a joint home made for them by the widowed daughter. General Day's wife died there in 1881, my mother in 1883, General Day in 1891, and my father in 1899.

In his Morristown home (with seldom a week passing without one or more visits to New York), my father passed the closing years of his life, occupied chiefly with genealogical researches and the preparation of the data published in this book concerning the Greene family. His summers were passed on Narragansett Bay, which he always contended to be the most beautiful sheet of water in the world, and the climate of its islands and shores the most salubrious. The tenacity with which he retained his mental and physical vigor was phenomenal. His successive birthdays, from his ninetieth to his ninety-seventh year, were passed without any impairment of his vision or his hearing, and with his memory defective only as to the few years immediately preceding. He was capable of long walks and of exhausting travel, and it was necessary to remonstrate frequently with him against his habit of getting on and off street cars while in motion. In the summer of 1893 there was a large reunion of the Army of the Potomac at Gettysburg, thirty years after the battle; and my father, being then ninety-two years of age, was chosen as Grand Marshal of the parade. He was most cordially received by his old comrades, and performed the duties of the day without fatigue.

At the request of his friends he was photographed on every birthday after ninety. The (frontispiece) reproduction is from the photograph taken at the close of his ninety-first year; the alertness of the eye and the vigor of the expression are extraordinary. As with his body, so with his mind and heart, they were ever young. The querulousness of old age never came to him. All of his contemporaries had passed away years before his own death, but his sympathies and affiliations were with younger men, and his interest in their affairs and in the events and questions of the day and year in which he was living, was keen, intelligent, and kindly. His courtesy to women was bred in a less busy age, but it lasted with his life, and to the end he could never retain his seat in a public conveyance while a woman was standing. His unselfishness in all his relations with his children and his friends, was unsurpassed. His consistent belief in the Christian religion was never shaken, and his efforts to follow its precepts in his daily life never flagged.

In the midst of his ninety-seventh year, after returning from a fatiguing round of visits to relatives and friends in New England, he was attacked with a weakness or failure of the heart action, which caused him to sink to the ground while walking one morning in the streets of New York. His physicians thought he could live only a few days, but he rallied and survived nearly eighteen months. During this time he was confined at first to his house, then to one floor, and finally to his room; but his mental faculties remained unimpaired, and he followed the events of the Spanish War with the sharpest interest and intelligence. When I returned in January, 1899, he was sitting up in his room, and discussed the events of the previous year with full knowledge, as well as with discrimination and discernment. When I saw him ten days later, he was insisting on writing a somewhat incoherent letter to a friend who had been dead for twenty years. A week after this he could not leave his bed, and for twenty-four hours the human flame grew gradually lower, flickered, and then went out. There was no organic disease; the heart simply ceased to act. Before dawn on the 28th of January, 1899, near the close of his ninety-eighth year, he ceased breathing, and was gathered unto his fathers, "having the testimony of a good conscience; in the communion of the catholic church; in the confidence of a certain faith; in the comfort of a reasonable, religious, and holy hope; in favor with God, and in perfect charity with the world."

He was buried near six generations of his ancestors, in Warwick, R. I.; and over his grave rests a rock from Culp's Hill at Gettysburg, with a bronze tablet, telling briefly whom it commemorates.

A simple life like this, not pre-eminent for worldly success, but remarkable for kindly love and Christian virtue, is not lived in vain. Its keynote was the soldier's ideal of devotion to duty. As God gave him the light to see his duty, he did it. Not grasping nor self-seeking, often failing to see his own advantage or to grasp it, he worked earnestly and incessantly through his nearly one hundred years, "in that station of life in which it had pleased God to place him," doing thoroughly and to the utmost of his ability, the task at hand; never complaining, though at times there was cause, but always cheerful and buoyant of spirit; in war he risked his life and shed his blood to good purpose, and did his full share of the task of preserving the Union; in peace he devoted his time to useful occupations, and left his monument in enduring public works; inspired by the highest ideals, and incapable of dishonor, he has bequeathed to his children the priceless heritage of a spotless name.

PREFACE.

IT has been stated that "one of the interesting peculiarities of genealogical research is the fact that one can never be perfectly satisfied that the last storehouse of records relating to the family history has been reached." It would seem, however, that the patient labors of the late General George Sears Greene, covering a period of more than half a century and resulting in collections from the highest genealogical and historical authorities in England and in America, should have been rewarded by the most perfect records attainable. His valuable MSS. disclosed comparatively few conflicting statements, although corrections and substitutions had been made by him from time to time. It was doubtless his insatiable desire to glean from every source possible all items bearing upon the history of the Greenes of Rhode Island, together with his expectation that in some special instances additional data would be contributed, which caused him to delay publication of his records year after year.

This is much to be regretted. It would have brought delight to the many descendants and kinsmen could he have carried out his earlier intentions and given to them the result of his painstaking labor—a work the dearer to his heart for the love of kindred that dwelt therein—in some enduring printed form after his own tastes and plans. But the long and beautiful life of activity in things civil and military, religious and patriotic, with its long-continued labor of love on family history, has come to a peaceful close, and it has remained to his immediate descendants to fulfil his wishes in the completion and publication of his treasured records.

There were three distinct families of Greene settled in Rhode Island at an early date, the progenitors of whom all bore the name John. But the present work embraces only the descendants of John Greene, surgeon, who emigrated from Salisbury, County Wilts, England, and settled in Warwick, R. I.

In the case of the marriage of females of this family with other Greenes, the same rule is observed as is followed with other intermarriages of female descendants, viz., the record is extended for two generations only and always under her individual number, excepting in a few instances where great-grandchildren have been included or interesting data supplied. Uniform orthography of the name is observed throughout. Although heads of families in other Greene lines may have dropped the final e, the descendants of John Greene, surgeon, have uniformly retained it.

Authorities are cited whenever indicated in the MSS. or as supplied by the compiler. When lacking in regard to points of importance it may be safely concluded that General Greene, after careful research, was entirely convinced of their accuracy or he would not have so recorded them.

The kindly assistance given to General Greene during the long years of his labor is hereby gratefully acknowledged, with regret that no list of contributors has been preserved. The cordial, courteous aid rendered more recently to the compiler in the completion of these records is deeply appreciated.

Many collateral lines were followed by General Greene with patient care, but it was not deemed expedient to thus enlarge the present work, thereby delaying its publication indefinitely.

The labor of compilation from another's notes requires unusual patience, exactness, and perseverance, and becomes the more difficult when consultation is no longer possible. The collator's plans, so far as known or gathered from the character of his notes, have been conscientiously followed, but in some instances even extensive correspondence and personal effort on the part of the compiler have failed to bring the desired information. In common, therefore, with other works of this nature, there will be found some incomplete or incorrect records.

While the present work has been accomplished under difficulties that all co-workers will readily recognize, it is hoped that in some directions new light may be obtained therefrom, thus increasing the interest of the numerous Greene descendants and possibly stimulating some among their number to continue research and perfect the history of this distinguished family.

GENEALOGY.

THE HOUSE OF GREENE.

“Succinct Genealogies of the Noble and Ancient Houses,” etc., etc., by Robert Halstead, London, 1685.

THIS rare work (of which but twenty-four copies were printed) is in the Library of the British Museum, and was described by Mr. H. G. Somerby during his researches in England in behalf of the Greene descendants as “a large folio of 695 pages, copiously illustrated, giving an elaborate history of the collateral branches of the family of the Earl of Peterborough where they intermarried with heiresses. The Earl inherited from the Greens of Greenes Norton and Drayton, through one of these heiresses, a large portion of their numerous estates.” That portion of the work devoted to the Greens—seventy-six pages—is entitled, “A Succinct Genealogy of the House of Greene that were Lords of Drayton justified by publick records, Antient and Extant Charters, Histories and other Authentick proofs.”

This volume was drawn up for Henry, Lord Mordaunt, second Earl of Peterborough, with the aid of his Chaplain, Mr. Raus, Rector of Turney, County Bedford, and printed at the expense of that nobleman, the name of the compiler, Robert Halstead, being fictitious.

EXTRACT FROM THE QUAIN'T PREFACE TO HALSTEAD'S GENEALOGIES.

“Other pedigrees of these Ancient and Noble Houses have been deduced but ‘being old’ have wanted the necessary and real ornaments. The curiosity and learning of these latter times have afforded Compositions of this Nature, there having been omitted in them an insertion of proofs. . . . Wherefore there being Families in reality and truth so rich in Records and Evidence . . . I have thought it a Debt to Truth and History, having come, through my Curiosity in Matters of this kind, to a Sight and Knowledge of them, to be a means they should be expos'd unto the World, for the Entertainment and Instruction of such as may delight in things of this Nature, and the Honour of those Families that are descended from them. . . .

"I desire that it should be known that I am an Antiquary by Inclination, not Profession; that although I have purchased verity out of Ancient and Authentick Records, I sell no Fables from my own Brain and less from the Phancies of others; that I esteem nothing but Truths, and those so much, as if any have lost their Proofs, though there I pity them, I use them not, but consider them as unhappy Orphans out of the Guard of their Parents in a possibility at least to have been corrupted."

"OF THE ORIGINAL, ANTIQUITY, NAME, ARMS, ALLIANCES, GREATNESS AND POSSESSIONS OF THE HOUSE OF GREENE."

Of the original of the House of Greene we have no certain information, but it is apparent they assumed their Name and Arms from an allusion to their principal and beloved lordship, which was Buckton, or the Town of Bucks, in the County of Northampton, being in the Hundred of Spelho, a place memorable for the excellency of its soil and situation and a spacious and delightful green upon which, at the desire of the Lords, was yearly held and exercised a Fair with particular and extraordinary privilege. Hence they were called "Greene" or "of the Greene."

And from Buckton or the town of Bucks they have assumed for their Arms in a field azure Three bucks trippant, or

In the first mention of the family, we find it in a very flourishing condition, possessed of the Manor of Buckton from which the Lords thereof did take their usual style as also of the lordships of Heyborne, Heydmoncourte, Dadington, Ashby Mares and Grene's Norton, the latter whereof was held by particular obligation of holding up the lord's right hand toward the King upon Christmas day wherever he should be at that time in England. (See "Origin of the Name," secondly, etc., page 4.)

And of these was Lord Sir Thomas of Buckton, or Sir Thomas Grene of Buckton who lived in the reign of King Edward the First. Of these Grene's we find divers to have been qualified by their riches and power and the esteem they held for the principal employments in the counties where they lived. Among the other advantages of this House the great blood of which it was participant did honor it very much, it having had the fortune to ally itself to the great Houses of Stafford, De La Zouche, Mauduit, Talbot, Ferrers of Chartley and Rosse, all of the illustrious and old nobility. But, at last, coming to the fortune of all transitory things, it concluded in Sir Henry Grene who, being without issue male, the Arms, blood and inheritance of this family came by a daughter to the Veres that were Lords of Addington and from them by another heir to the present Earl of Peterborough.—Halstead. (See pedigree, following "The Greenes of Northamptonshire.")<sup>1</sup>

ORIGIN OF THE NAME.

The following memorandum attached to, or a part of, the parchment pedigree of the "House of Greene" presented to the Boston Athenæum Library in 1881 by William Batchelder Greene, was possibly made by Mr. Burt, the compiler of the chart. The theory as to the origin of the name Grene or Greene is well worthy of consideration, and the three points upon which the connection of Sir Henry Grene, Lord Chief Justice of England, is based, are certainly sufficiently strong to awaken the interest of all those who bear the name in America.

"HOUSE OF GREENE LORDS OF BUCKTON, ETC., COUNTY NORTHAMPTONSHIRE."

On origin: "The name of this family is not of Saxon or Scandinavian origin as its present form might suggest, such as Wood, Vale, Green, etc., names taken from localities and found in almost every country [sic] of modern Great Britain. During the 12th and 13th centuries flourished a number of minor Barons (i. e., not possessing more, or as much as, thirteen knight's fees and a quarter) bearing the name of De la Greene (or Grene) in Co. Northampton. Sir Henry Greene, Lord of Buckton, may be counted with these by three facts; First, that on one of his seals attached to an Indenture now in the archives of the British Museum, is found the inscription—'Sigill (Henri) ci Grene, Milit,' (this in old English characters); Secondly, that the said Sir Henry held his lands in capite by the same service as the feudal lords before mentioned, i. e., by lifting up the right hand on Michaelmas Day wherever the King should be in England (Harl. MSS.); Thirdly, all these claim much the same family alliances (as found on their various records and on their tombs). Tracing the name further back, we find the name De la Grene replaced by Del Grene (the latter seems to have been one of the latest of the Lords of the township of Newsholm) and before the Norman Conquest the name of Grene<sup>1</sup> disappears altogether and we are said to find Grini or Del Grini in counties York and Northampton. This would show the great antiquity of the family as well as suggest a Latin origin. It is worthy of note that a patrician family existed at Rome, shortly after the Roman Conquest, of the same name, and that the name is still borne by certain nobles in the northern part of Italy near Belluno.<sup>2</sup> (Added note: Grené or Grenée, 'Histoire des Pairs de France,' par M. de Courcelles, 1822.)"

In addition to the above memorandum are a few notes on the opposite upper corner of the chart; the first giving names and baptisms of the children of John Greene, who emigrated to the American colonies, and others referring to General Nathanael Greene of the Revolutionary Army and descendant of said John; also to that line of his descendants who settled in New Hampshire (records now partially erased); and to the Gardiner Greenes and Copley-Greenes of Boston. In another handwriting is a note relating to the Greenes of Ireland on the authority of Burke, being endorsed, "signed by Sir Bernard Burke." It has special interest in connection with the recently published pedigree following "Greene's Norton, Northamptonshire," where descent is claimed by this Irish branch from the Northamptonshire family, though proof is not conclusive. (The note referred to above will be found following the pedigree.)

<sup>1</sup> "The old form of the name was Grene. There is authority for the statement that the family in Scandinavia bore the name Gren, although surnames were not generally borne there earlier than the 15th century. But possibly there was some connection between this family and the English Greens. Gren means a bough or branch and may have been the occasion of adopting the word as a surname."—Northamptonshire Notes and Queries, p. 252 (W. Greene, Howrah, Bournemouth).

THE GREENES OF NORTHAMPTON- SHIRE.

THE family of Grene or Greene of Northamptonshire, England, is of great antiquity and reputation. The earliest of whom we have record, Alexander de Boketon, recovered the advowson of the church of St. John the Baptist at Boketon (a seigniorial right of the Lords of Boketon) against Simon de Hecter and Simon de Boketon about twelve years before the granting of the Magna Charta, in the fourth year of the reign of King John (1203).

Walter de Boketon, his son, occurs in the 20th and 45th of King Henry III. and 2d of Edward I. (A.D. 1235, 1260, and 1273).

John de Boketon, son of Walter, is of record 7th of Edward II. (A.D. 1313). (See "Boughton, Northamptonshire.")

Thomas de Boketon,<sup>1</sup> his son, occurs in 13th of Edward II. (1319). He married Alice, daughter and co-heiress of Sir Thomas Boltesham of Braunston.

Sir Thomas de Boketon,<sup>2</sup> son and heir of Thomas and Alice de Boketon, and cousin and heir of Sir Thomas Boltesham, b. 1292, æt. 12 Esc. 33 Ed. I. n. 53, Member of Parliament from County Northampton, 1336, 1338, and 1343, and Sheriff of said county for several years, appears to have been the first to have taken the name Att Grene or de la Grene. He was buried at Boughton and his posterity took the surname of Grene. (See "Pedigree of Greene of Greene's Norton.") He married (1) Lucy, daughter of Eudo, Lord Zouche of Harringworth, by Millicent, sister

SIR THOMAS GREENE LORD OF BUCKTON, AND OTHER LANDS AND LORDSHIPS.

<sup>1</sup> A Knight of this Family named Sir Thomas Grene, that was Lord of Buckton and other fair Possessions, flourished in the County of Northampton about the beginning of King Edward the First. We find him recited in an ancient Catalogue of the Knights who followed the King in his first expedition against the Scots.—Halstead.

<sup>2</sup> Thomas of Buckton, who was indeed Sir Thomas Grene of Buckton, is recorded to have been High Sheriff for the County of Northamptonshire in the fifth year of Edward the Third, an Office that unto those days had been of great trust and reputation and was justly esteemed bonus fine onere. He married Lucie the Daughter of Eudo or Ivan de la Zouch.—Halstead.

and co-heiress of George Canteloupe, Baron of Abergavenny in Wales; and (2) Christian, daughter of — Irwardby. The son by second wife, Sir Nicholas, m. Joan, daughter of Sir John Bruce. They had two daughters, Joan, wife of Sir Thomas Culpeper; and Elizabeth, wife of Sir John Holland.

Lucy la Zouche, first wife of Sir Thomas of Boketon, was granddaughter of Alan, Lord Zouche of Ashby, Governor of Northampton Castle, whose wife was granddaughter of Saier de Quincy, Earl of Winchester, one of the twenty-five Magna Charta Barons and a Knight of the Fifth Crusade in the Holy Land, 1220. Lucy la Zouche was also descended from Hengest, King of the Saxons, and Hugh Capet, founder of the Capetian dynasty in France. (See pedigree below.)

Sir Henry Grene "de Boketon," son of Sir Thomas and Lucy (Zouche) de Boketon, was Sergeant-at-Law, 1345. Justice of the King's Bench, 1354, Chief Justice of England, 24th May, 1361.

He had the grant of "Boketon Fair" in 1351 and purchased the Manor of Norton in 1353, which, with the village, has since been called Greene's Norton. He died 1369 and was buried at Boketon, where the ruins of the old church still remain. "Sir Henry Grene for his great wisdom and knowledge was advanced to the office of Lord Chief Justice of England and with his large possessions in Northamptonshire and other counties left his posterity one of the most considerable estates of that age" (Baker).

In 1358, Sir Henry Grene, then Justice of Common Pleas, having been cited before the Pope for pronouncing judgment against the Bishop of Ely for harboring one of his men who had burnt the Mansion House of Lady Wake and slain one of the servants, was excommunicated for non-appearance, but it did not prevent his being raised to the office of Chief Justice of the King's Bench on 24th May, 1361. He opened Parliament in the following two years and was present in the next. He was succeeded by John Knyvet, 29th October, 1365. The warrant for the delivery of the Rolls, etc., calls him "delectus et fidelis" (Foss), showing that he was dismissed with honor. In all his extant deeds he styles himself "de Buckton." He added greatly to his patrimonial estates and, dying in 43d Edward III. (1370), left his vast extent of property to his eldest son, Sir Thomas, and his second son, Sir Henry Grene. He married Catharine de Drayton of the noted de Vere family, daughter of Sir John and sister of Sir Simon Drayton.<sup>1</sup>

They had issue:

1. SIR THOMAS GRENE, eldest son and heir of Grene's Norton and Boughton, Knt., who married a daughter of Sir John Mablethorpe.<sup>1</sup>
2. SIR HENRY GRENE of Drayton, m. Matilla, daughter and sole heir of Sir Thomas Maudit of Warminster, Co. Wilts.
3. RICHARD GRENE, died s. p.
4. NICHOLAS GRENE, died s. p.
5. AMABILIA, m. Sir Ralph Reynes, Knt., of Clifton Reynes, Co. Buckingham.
6. MARGARET, m. William, Lord Zouche of Harringworth, Co. Devon.

In addition to Drayton Manor, inherited through his wife, Catharine Drayton, Sir Henry Grene possessed those of Luffwick, Islip, Shipton, one third of Great Haughton, and others in the counties of Buckingham and Bedford, and the advowson of Luffwick and lands in Harringworth, Carleton, Raundes, Kingstead, Cotes, and Titchmarsh, which passed by settlement to his second son, Sir Henry Grene; the residue of his estate, comprising the Manors of Boughton, Grene's Norton, and the advowson of Swardsley Priory, Heymondecote, Haughton, with others in the counties of Leicester, Hertford, York, etc.; the advowson of Boughton, Grene's Norton, and Great Haughton, and lands in Pittsford, Whittlebury, Silveston, Towcester, Pavelisbury, Batsaddle in Orlingbury, Cottingham, Middleton, Isham, Pighesley, Little Harrowden, and Northampton, and also a mansion in Silver Street, Cripplegate, London,<sup>2</sup> passed to his eldest son and heir, Sir Thomas Grene of Boughton and Grene's Norton.

Sir Henry Grene, second son of Sir Henry, Lord Chief Justice, and his wife, Catharine de Drayton, inherited the estates of his cousin, Sir John Drayton, son of Sir Simon, his mother's brother. With the estates he was required to assume the arms of Drayton instead of his paternal arms, viz., Argent, a cross engrailed gules. It does not appear that all his descendants used these arms, but some in Essex are so recorded.

Sir Henry was knighted by Richard II. and received from the King several confiscated estates as proof of his favor. Sir Henry Grene, with Lord William Scroope, Earl of Wiltshire and Treasurer of England, and Sir John Busbee, Knt., who had been appointed by Parliament to assist the King, Richard II., in the management of the realm, repaired to the Castle of Bristol and prepared to make resistance to the Duke of Lancaster (after, Henry IV.), but when it would not prevail they were taken and brought

3. THOMAS GRENE of Isham,<sup>1</sup> married Ela, daughter of Ankatil Malorie, whose brother, William la Zouche, Archbishop of York, settled upon him one third of Sudborough Manor ("the remainder to Thomas Grene of Isham and Ela his wife, dau. of said Ankatil Malorie"). ## DE VERE.

DRAYTON, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

DRAYTON, the Capital Mansion of Drayton and Luffwick Manors, "an antient building, but a very elegant structure, was built by Henry Grene about the latter end of Henry the Sixth's reign. It had formerly been a castle, it is now embattled and hath turrets at each end of it. Here are many good pictures and portraits, particularly of the Mordaunt family."

Luffwick Hundred in Northamptonshire was commonly called Lowick, and in Domesday Book is written Luhwic and Ludewic.

In the 9th of Edward II., Robert de Vere, Robert de Ardene, John de Techmere, Simon de Drayton, and Robert le Low were Lords of Luffwick and its members. The next possessor was Sir Henry Grene (Chief Justice), who, at his death in the 43d of Edward III. (1370), settled on his second son, Sir Henry.

Sir Henry Grene, the elder, was son of Sir Thomas and grandson of Sir Thomas de Boketon (Boughton) in Northamptonshire, who lived in Edward the First's time and whose descendants assumed the name Greene. (Bridge's Northamptonshire, vol. ii., pp. 246, 248.) In Leland's Itinerary, vol. i., p. 5 (1538), mention is made of "Draiton Village and Castle" as "the prettiest place in these Quarters, belonging as Iselipe doth, in co-partion unto Lord Mordaunt." (See pedigree, "The Greenes of Northamptonshire," p. 9.)

Stafford, Earl of Wiltshire, uncle to Edward, late Duke of Buckingham, "had Draiton by an heir general of the younger Grene and kept his household y<sup>e</sup> it. The Great Grene gave to his eldest son Grene's Norton with a great portion of lands, and he gave Draiton with other lands to his younger sonne. This Draiton Castle was mostly builded by Grene that was so great a man in King Richard's time."

General George S. Greene in correspondence alluded to Drayton House as "a place of much interest, filled with works of art and family portraits." This was the residence of the descendants of Sir Henry Grene, second son of the Lord Chief Justice, the family into which Lord Peterborough married and to whom his book (Halstead's Genealogies) chiefly relates.

At Luffwick or Lowick church (St. Peter's) there are still extant fine monuments to Sir Henry Grene of Drayton, son of the Chief Justice, Ralph Grene, son of Sir Henry, and Edward Stafford, Earl of Wiltshire and Lord of Drayton; for description of which, with inscriptions, see Bridge's Northamptonshire, vol. ii., p. 247.

BOUGHTON, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

BOUGHTON, a parish in the southern division of the county, is situated three miles north of Northampton. In Domesday Book the name Boketon (or Boughton as now called) is variously written: Bocheton, Buchedone, Buckenton, Bucketone, and, in later records (Halstead's), Buckton, or the town of Bucks.

Boketon Manor House was known as an estate before the Conquest. It contained 1,400 acres and was celebrated for its good soil and beautiful landscapes. We have no record of the proprietors before the fourth year of King John (1203), when there was a suit-at-law to recover the advowson of the church, which shows that the family had a previous existence there. (See "The Greenes of Northamptonshire," p. 5.) Baker, in his History of the County of Northampton, considers the name of Saxon origin: "The Saxon Boc denotes a beech-tree and a book or charter, the prevalence of beech timber on the vill. [village] being Boc or Charter-land as opposed to folkland, which seems a more plausible basis for the adoption of the name 'Boketon.'"

Boketon Manor House was the occasional residence of the noble families of Greene, Vaux, Knolles, and Wentworth, and was occupied by the Earl of Rosse for a short time after the death of the Earl of Strafford. Subsequently it became the rendezvous of the Pighesley Hunt, while under the management of John Ward, Esq., who was the last inhabitant, and in 1822 it was mostly levelled to the ground. The park and adjacent grounds are described as "partly walled, well wooded, with temples, triumphal arches, and artificial ruins interspersed in fantastic variety."

The church at Boughton, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, stood upon the green near a famous spring about half a mile distant from the town. It contained formerly monuments in memory of Sir Thomas Grene and Sir Henry Grene of Boughton, Lord Chief Justice of England, the latter "a portraicture of a man in a short gown y<sup>e</sup> should shew hym to be a Lawyer. His wife lay in portraicture by hym." The sculptured arms on this tomb were: at the head, Grene; on the south side, Grene repeated and near by, Zouch; on the north side, Grene, between Zouch impaling Grene, and Reynes impaling Grene. (Amabilia, daughter of Sir Henry Grene, married Ralph Reynes, and her sister Margaret married William, Lord Zouch.) This tomb was erroneously assigned to Sir Thomas Grene, who married a Mablethorp, but as Sir Henry, the Lord Chief Justice, was the only Grene who achieved legal eminence, and the arms upon the tomb indicate his family connections, it may safely be appropriated to Sir Henry Grene, who always signed himself "de Buckton." In 1724, the church was in ruins, portions of the wall only remaining, but the churchyard was used as a place of burial. The present church, a chapel, which consists of a western tower, body, and chancel, stands about in the middle of the village and was rebuilt in 1806 and consecrated in 1808.

Boughton Fair was granted by charter 28th February, 1351 (25 Edward III.) to Sir Henry Grene, Chief Justice of England, and became the most celebrated in that part of the kingdom. It is annually proclaimed in the name of the Lord of the Manor, and is still held (1880) on the green contiguous to the old church at Boughton on three days—the vigil, the day, and the morrow of St. John the Baptist. In the time of Edward I. (1272–1307), William de Nutricilla, Abbot of St. Wandregisile, made conveyance of the lands which belonged to the Monastery of Boughton to John de Boketon, from whom they descended to Sir Thomas Boketon. This John (see Greenes of Northamptonshire, p. 5) was grandfather of the Sir Thomas who first took the name of de la Grene, it is said, from the noted green at Boughton Manor (?). The stately Manor House has been entirely removed and a large modern house takes its place. Of the original 1400 acres which the Manor contained, 600 were held in small holdings; the remainder, 800 acres, falling into the possession of the Howard-Vyse family in the following manner: Anne, eldest daughter of the sixth Sir Thomas Grene of Boughton and Grene's Norton, married Nicholas, Lord Vaux. The Manor remained in the family till about 1700, when it was purchased by Thomas Wentworth, third Lord Stafford, whose second daughter married Sir George Howard. They had issue: Anne Howard, only daughter and heiress, who married Richard Vyse, Colonel of 3d Dragoon Guards, and in 1812 Comptroller of the household of the Duke of Cambridge. He was the son of Rev. Wm. Vyse, Canon of Litchfield, buried in Litchfield Cathedral, 1770, with his wife, Catharine (daughter of Richard Smallbroke, Bishop of Litchfield), who died August 1, 1712. They had a son, Richard Howard-Vyse of Bruynston and Stoke Place, County Bucks. He assumed the name Howard before Vyse; was Member of Parliament for Northamptonshire, 1812, 1815, 1825. His son, Rev. George Charles Ernest Adolphus Richard Howard-Vyse, was born at Stoke, July 27th, and baptized September 16, 1812. He was Lord of the Manor and rector of the church at Boughton. ## GREENE'S NORTON, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

GREENE'S NORTON (formerly "Norton Davey," and in Domesday Book "Nortone") is a large village situated two miles west-by-north from Towcester and ten miles south from Northampton in the southern division of the county. Here was "the antient Manor Seat, the residence of the Grene," now totally destroyed.

It was formerly adjoining the enclosed park, called "Norton Park," which contained about two hundred acres, since 1724 divided up into fields. At the time of the Domesday survey the parish of Norton formed part of the royal demesne or Terra Regis. The Conqueror himself held the Manor as King Edward the Confessor had done before him, and until the time of Richard I. the Manor continued in the hands of the Crown. In the beginning of the twelfth century, when Philip Augustus of France and Richard of England went to the Holy Land, they were accompanied by Baudoin de Bethune, son of Robert fifth of Bethune, who went to the Holy Land with Philip, Count of Flanders. During the sojourn in the East, Baudoin appears to have attached himself particularly to King Richard, and they started on their return in company and were taken prisoners together in Germany. They made their escape to England, and shortly after their arrival Baudoin was married to an English lady, the Countess of Aumale in Normandie and of Holderness in the Province of York, England. She was the daughter of the Count of Aumale, who was son of William the Conqueror's half-sister, who had married a Count of Aumale. (See History of the Bethune Family, by Mrs. John A. Weisse, pp. 3-8.) From this marriage there were two children, a son, who died young, and a daughter, who married William le Marechal, Count of Pembroke in England. They had no issue. King Richard I., after his return from the Crusades, had granted the parish of Norton with Sutton in Bedfordshire and Wantage in Berkshire to Baudoin de Bethune; and his daughter Alice, upon her marriage with the second Earl of Pembroke, received the hundred and advowson of Norton as a dower.

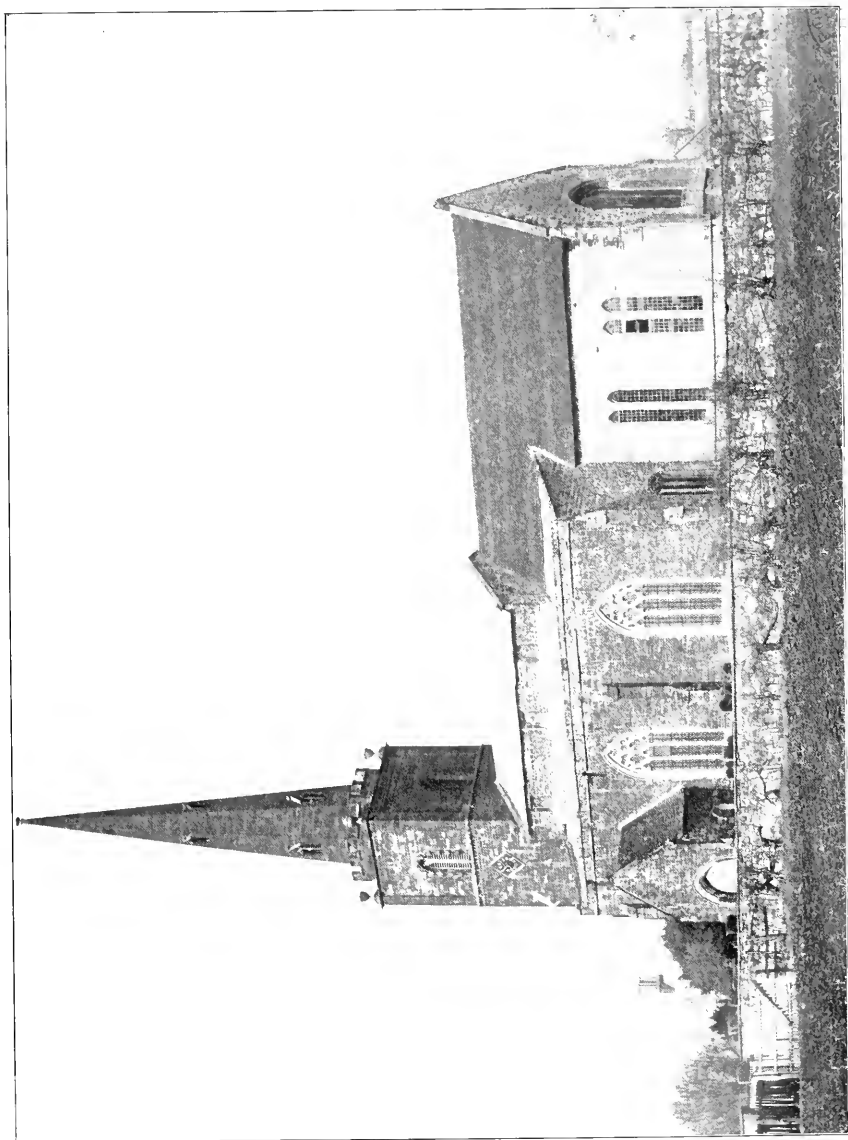

After the decease of Baudoin or Baldwin de Bethune, Norton passed to John le Marechal, nephew of the first Earl of Pembroke, who died in 1234, leaving John his son and heir. John married Margaret, sister and heiress of Thomas, Earl of Warwick (A.D. 1241), and the Castle of Warwick was accordingly released to them. He is said to have borne the title of Earl of Warwick, but he died the year following his marriage, and the King, Henry III., committed to Margaret, his widow, the Manor of Norton till she had an assignment of dower. In the year 1243, she agreed in the presence of William, the Archbishop of York, that if she married before Ascension Day next following, all her lands and the Castle of Warwick should go to the King, and she would not marry without the King's license. Elizabeth, the daughter of Margaret, married David ap Griffin, and she held Norton in dower. Hence the name, "Norton Davie" or "Davey." In 1283, William le Marechal succeeded the above John, and in 1315, John, son of William, was returned to Parliament as Lord of Norton, but he died in 1316, and Norton remained with his widow, Ela, who in 1327 married Robert Fitzpaine.

In 1346, Robert and Ela gave 100 shillings for license to enfeof two trustees of the Manor of "Norton Davey" of the inheritance of William, Baron Morley, son of Robert de Morley, who had married Hawise, sister and heiress of John le Marechal. His son, William, Baron Morley, married Cicely, daughter of Thomas, Baron Bardolph, and their son, Baron Morley, held Norton in abeyance.

In 1359, Sir Henry Grene "de Boketon" (Boughton) and Thomas, his eldest son, gave 20 shillings for license to acquire by purchase the Manor of Norton Davey and Norton Hundred, and from this time the Manor was known as "Grene's Norton." His eldest son and heir, Sir Thomas Grene, inherited the Manor and here resided six generations, the eldest sons all bearing the name of Sir Thomas. The last Sir Thomas died 1506 and left two daughters—Anne, who married Sir Nicholas Vaux (see "Vaux," note, p. 20); and Matilda, who married Sir Thomas Parr, and was the mother of Queen Catherine Parr (see Parr pedigree, p. 19).

Sir Henry also held the advowson of the Church of St. Bartholomew at Grene's Norton, which stood on rising ground at the east end of the village. It consisted of a body and north and south aisles, with a chancel and a porch on the south side.

The space originally included in the chancel and lateral chapel could once boast a series of altar-tombs commemorative of four successive generations of the Grene's of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. In 1791 the east window of the north aisle contained the Grene Arms.

EFFIGY OF SIR THOMAS AND LADY GREENE, 1343-1391, AND TOMB OF SIR THOMAS AND LADY GREENE, 1462,
IN ST. BARTHOLOMEWS CHURCH AT GREENE'S NORTON.
From Photograph, 1894.

The church was repaired in 1826,<sup>1</sup> when the tops of the tombs remaining (many having been previously mutilated or destroyed) were preserved and placed in the niches of the walls, the body of the tombs being removed. Inscriptions engraved on brass in Old English characters are still visible. Fortunately, representations of these memorials have been preserved to posterity in Halstead's Genealogies, "House of Greene." It was here that "Maud Greene's Chantry" was founded 1497. (See p. 18.)

The first monument in chronological order which formerly stood in the centre of the church, was assigned, by the arms on the side of the tomb, to Sir Thomas Grene, who died 1391.<sup>2</sup> Sir Thomas married a daughter of Sir John Mablethorpe, County Lincoln, and both lie buried in this church. On the tomb were two fine recumbent effigies of alabaster presenting well-executed specimens of the costumes of that period. The knight in his rich suit of plate-armor, excepting the head and hands, which were elevated; at his left side, a long sword suspended from a transverse belt; under his head, a helmet and crest (a buck's head, or), and at his feet, a lion. In 1826, when the church repairs were made, the upper part, which was all that remained of this figure, was placed upright within the arch in the north aisle, behind and looking down upon his lady, who was removed at the same time, and lies extended under the arch.<sup>3</sup> She has what is termed the horned or mitred head-dress, but unusually wide and flat, turned up around the forehead, and the folds falling behind on the cushion upon which her head reposes, and which is sustained by an angel. The side and end of the tomb have long, narrow, trefoil-headed compartments alternately charged with shields on which the following coats are represented:

- I. Azure; three bucks trippant, or, Grene.
- II. A bend between six mullets in a chief a lion passant, gardant, gules; a second coat of Mablethorpe.
- III. (G.) A chevron between three crosses crosslet or, and in a chief a lion passant, gardant, or, Mablethorpe.

Under the eastern arch in the north side of the nave or ancient chancel lie buried the second Sir Thomas Grene of Boughton and Norton, who died 1417, and his wife Mary, second daughter of Richard, Baron Talbot

of Goodrich, County Hereford. The tomb has been destroyed, but the slab, on which were formerly two small figures with shields above, bearing the arms of Grene and Talbot, is now under the arch on the stone floor, despoiled of the knight's effigy (for inscription, see Appendix III.). The third Sir Thomas Grene, son and heir of the above Sir Thomas, was left in possession of the Manor of Grene's Norton. He married Philippa, daughter of Robert, fourth Baron Ferrers of Chartley, County Stafford, by Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas "Le Spencer" (not Edward de Spencer, as given in Baker's Northamptonshire, vol. i., p. 32). He died 1457. They were both buried under the depressed arch at the east end of the north aisle. Collateral to the first monument was an elegant altar-tomb to the fourth Sir Thomas Grene, who died 1462, and his wife Matilda, daughter of Sir John Throckmorton, formerly Under-Treasurer of England.<sup>1</sup> The slab with brass figures, though much mutilated, still remains in the centre of the nave or ancient chancel, and bears an elaborate inscription (see Halstead illustration and Appendix III.). Matilda afterward married Richard Myddleton of Norton Davey, Esq., who, by his will dated 18 November, 1489 (Henry VII.), directed his body "to be buried in the tomb of marble which he had [ordained] under the north wall of the Chapel of Holy Trinity in the parish church of Norton, and desired his dear wife Maud [Matilda] to enjoy his lands and tenements which he had in the counties of Northampton and Derby formerly belonging to his brother William Middleton, and of which his wife was jointly seized for life with himself, on condition of her providing a priest to sing and pray perpetually in said church and for a perpetual obit for him, his said wife Dame Maud, Thomas Grene Knt [sometime] her husband, his father, mother, and all his ancestors and friends." There is no trace of this tomb, but his widow had license to found a chantry here. At the ecclesiastic survey 26 Henry VIII. (1535) it was valued at £6 per an. In the chantry roll of 38 Henry VIII. (1546) it was valued at £10 10s. 9d. per an., whereof 14s. 6d. were paid for rents resolute, £1 19s. 8d. for yearly obits distributed to the poor folk and mending highways, 12s. for the King's tenths, and £7 4s. 7d. for the priest's salary. The jewels and ornaments were valued at £5 4s. 3d.

On the dissolution of the chantries, 1548, "Maud Grene's Chantry" at Norton was certified to have lands in the counties of Northampton and Leicester.

<sup>1</sup> THROCKMORTON.—Sir John, descended from John de Throckmorton (who, according to Dugdale, was Lord of the Manor of Throckmorton about sixty years after the Conquest), was a very eminent personage in the reigns of Henry V. and VI. and bore the title of "Under-Treasurer of England." His daughter Maud (or Matilda) married Sir Thomas Grene, of Grene's Norton, who died 1462. (From Parliamentary Writs). (See Throckmorton Will, Appendix I.).

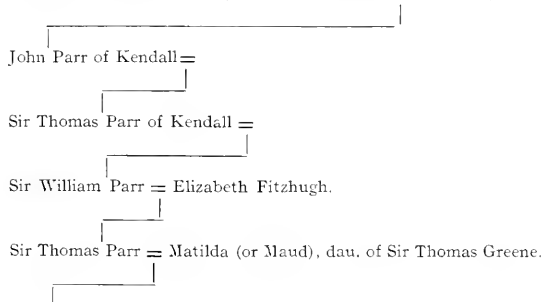

The fifth Sir Thomas Grene of Boughton and Norton, who died 1489, September 10th, married Marina, daughter of Thomas, and sister and co-heiress of John Beler of Eye Kettleby, Esq., of County Leicester.

Sir Thomas Grene of Boughton and Norton, sixth and last of the family, on November 9, 1506, married Jane, daughter of Sir John Fogge of Ripton, County Kent, by whom he had two daughters, Anne and Matilda. The latter (being joint heiress with her sister) married Sir Thomas Parr of Kendall, County Westmoreland, and of Grene's Norton jure uxoris; their daughter Catherine or Kate Parr, married 1529 (1) Edward Borough, son of Lord Borough, (2) John Neville, Lord Latimer, who died in 1542, and (3) in 1543 she became the wife of King Henry VIII., and lastly of Thomas, Lord Seymour of Sudeley, Lord Admiral of England.<sup>1</sup> She died September 5, 1548, and was buried in the chapel of Sudeley Castle in Gloucestershire. She is supposed to have been born in the parish of Grene's Norton, and a house in the village is still pointed out as the place of her birth.

Catharine Parr, m. (1) Edward Borough, son of Thomas, Baron Borough, 1529; (2) John Neville, Baron Latimer, who died 1542. Her third husband was King Henry VIII., married in Hampton Church, Co. Middlesex, 12 July, 1543. Her fourth husband was Thomas, Baron Seymour of Sudeley and Lord Admiral of England, beheaded 28 Mar., 1550. Catharine Parr possessed considerable literary ability, and it is said that some of her devotional poetry has sometimes been attributed to Catharine of Aragon, who was also endowed with talent. She was described by Miss Strickland as "gifted by nature with a fine mind which was carefully cultivated by her excellent mother [Matilda Grene]. She read and wrote Latin well and had some knowledge of Greek." "Henry the VIII., her third husband, left her a legacy of £4000 in addition to her jointure, 'for her great love, obedience, chasteness, and wisdom.'" — Putnam's Cyclop. Biog. — Baker's Northamptonshire, vol. ii., pp. 61 and 69; also Dugdale's Baronage.

Anne, the elder daughter of the last Sir Thomas Grene, married Sir Nicholas Vaux<sup>1</sup> 1507-8, afterward Lord Vaux of Harrowden. He survived his wife and died in 1524, leaving his son Thomas, Lord Vaux, his heir.

Dame Matilda (Grene) Parr, wife of Sir Thomas Parr and mother of Queen Catharine, left a son and heir at her death in 1532, William Parr, Esq., afterward Marquis of Northampton, who bore a conspicuous part in the tournaments of the Field of the Cloth of Gold. He had first been created Baron Parr, Earl of Essex (through the influence of his sister, Queen Catharine of England).

Being implicated with Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, in the plan to place Lady Jane Grey on the throne, he was condemned, and his estates confiscated. He was afterward forgiven and restored. He died childless 1570, and was buried at the Collegiate Church, Warwick. King Henry VIII. called him "his integrity," and King Edward VI. "his honest uncle."

In 1550 Norton was annexed to the honor of Grafton and granted to the Marquis above named, the son of Thomas Parr and Maud [Matilda] Grene. The Manor thus returned to the line of Grene. It had come into the possession of the Crown in 1536, when Sir Arthur Davey recited that Sir Thomas Vaux, Lord Harrowden, had sold to him and his heirs the Manor aforesaid, the moiety of which he had lately purchased from William Parr, son and heir of Sir Thomas Parr, and Maud (Grene) his wife, and that on certain conditions he was ready to convey it to the Crown. Being annexed by the Crown to the honor of Grafton, it was, as before stated, granted by the Crown to the Marquis of Northampton, otherwise William Parr. By his death without issue, all his estate included in the grant of Norton reverted to the Crown, when in the fifth year of James I. we find Nicholas Dryden seized of lands in Norton held by the King as his Manor.

Finally, Norton, with its dependent manors, was included in the grant made 1665 to Denzil, Lord Holles, and others in trust for Queen Catharine for her life, the reversion being granted (1673) to Henry, Earl of Arlington, for his life, and the remainder to Henry, Earl of Euston, after-

His great-great-grandson, Sir Nicholas Vaux of Harrowden, was highly distinguished as a statesman and warrior and was much in favor with Henry VII. and Henry VIII. April 27, 1523, he was summoned to Parliament as Baron Vaux of Harrowden, but did not long enjoy his honors as he died the 24th of May following (1524). Sir Henry Greene, Knt., of Boughton and purchased Greene's Norton, Lord Chief-Justice of England 1361-65. The first mention of this eminent lawyer was upon an occasion where, in the reign of King Edward III., he was commissioned, with the Earl of Oxford, to examine certain abuses in the Diocese of Canterbury (Halstead). He was appointed Sergeant-at-Law in 1345, and received the honor of knighthood on his appointment as Justice at the Court of Common Pleas, 6th February, 1353 (Foss's Lives of the Judges of England). He was much employed and in special trust and authority under those ministers the King left to govern the land during his absence in all the long wars he made in France; and in 1360 was sent with Sir William Shardshall, a man of great credit in those days, to inquire into that great cause of Thomas Lild, the turbulent Bishop of Ely, against whom the Lady Wake, the King's nearest cousin, did complain of the murder of her servant, William Holmes, and other misdemeanors (Halstead). By his wisdom, integrity, and great abilities, Sir Henry Greene was on the 24th of May, 1361, raised to the office of Lord Chief-Justice of England, which he held till 29th October, 1365 (Foss), and was Speaker of the House of Lords in the Parliaments of 1362 and 1363. Such was his good fortune and the effects of the worthy and industrious endeavors of his life as made the estate he left to his posterity one of the most considerable in that age, and dying full of years, riches, and estimation in the 43d year of the reign of King Edward III. (1370), was buried at Boughton (Halstead).

When the conspiracies of the turbulent and seditious Lords had obliged the King to condemn some and banish others, he conferred several parcels of their confiscated lands—those belonging to Thomas, Earl of Warwick, Richard, Earl of Arundel, and Lord Cobham—upon Sir Henry Greene. The rebellion against the King, however, prospered, and when the Duke of Lancaster's army "came like a torrent bearing all down before it, Sir Henry Greene, that had possessed himself of the Castle of Bristol and meant to defend it for his master to the uttermost, was taken by his perfidious garrison and delivered bound to the Duke, who, knowing his constancy to be dangerous and unchangeable, caused him to be beheaded the next day (30th July, 1399) with the Earl of Wiltshire and Sir John Busby." ## GILLINGHAM, DORSETSHIRE.

(IN DOMESDAY BOOK IT IS GIVEN "GELINGEHAM.")

THE first mention we find of this place is in the Saxon Chronicle, A.D. 1016, in an account of the battle fought between Edmund Ironside and Canute at Peonna or Penn, County Somerset, near Gillga or Gillingham. This action happened so near the place that some less exact historians style it the "Battle of Gillingham." The pursuit probably extended into this parish, where is a gate still called "Slaughter Gate." There are very remarkable pits where the field of battle is supposed to have been. These are very numerous and regularly made for offence and defence, some for the main body and some for the advance guards. Tradition says they were made by Canute, which was confirmed by MS. in possession of one of the lords of the Manor.

In Domesday Book this place was surveyed in parcels, Gillingham being "the king's land," etc. William the Conqueror gave the church of Gillingham to the Abbey of Shaftesbury for the hide<sup>2</sup> of land in Kingston, on which he built Wareham Castle. The Manor of the town belonged to the Crown for several ages (Hutchin's History of Dorsetshire, vol. ii.).

Gillingham is one of the largest parishes in Dorsetshire, being about forty-one miles in circumference and containing upwards of three thousand inhabitants. It includes the forest of Selwood and about half a mile from the church are traces of the ancient palace of the Saxon and Norman kings, where they resided when they came to hunt in the forest. Here it was that King Henry I., in 1132, dated one of the charters which he gave to the Cathedral of Lincoln, and later the building was repaired by King John. In 1270, King Edward I. passed his Christmas here, with much feasting. Gillingham, like Boughton, had its annual fair, or rather two, one being held on September 1st (O. S.) and the other on Trinity Monday. These fairs were continued until about the beginning of the nineteenth century.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, GILLINGHAM.

The church dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary is a large ancient structure, partly in the Norman style of architecture, consisting of a nave, two aisles, a chancel, and a chantry chapel adjoining, the seating capacity being about one thousand. The tower is lofty and contains six musical bells, a clock, and chimes. The organ was demolished in the civil war by the Parliamentary soldiers under Waller. Formerly the church contained monumental tombs, the description of which will be found in Hutchin's History of Dorsetshire.

On the wall of the belfry or ringing loft was the following (as stated by the same authority, vol. ii., p. 237):

“ The porch new built, the lead thereof new cast, the church and the vestry repaired 1617.
The tower raised 21 feet, the dial, ringing loft and the King's Arms made by the gift of several 1618.”

Beside the parish church, Gillingham contained a “ large old building ” near the church, formerly the schoolhouse. Its founder is not known. It appears by some of the proceedings relating to parish lands, they were anciently designed among other uses for the perpetual maintaining of a schoolmaster in the town for the instruction of youth “ in good literature.” At the time of the Rebellion the school was in good standing, and the sons of many loyal gentlemen were among the students, not unlikely including some of the Greene family of Bowridge Hill. Hutchins tells us that “ Lord Chancellor Clarendon received part of his education here ” (see vol. ii., p. 253).

The Greenes of Gillingham, by circumstantial evidence, are identified as one of the branches of the family of Greenes of Boughton, Drayton, and Greene's Norton, in Northamptonshire, as verified by similarity of arms recorded in the Herald's College and on the monuments in Northamptonshire, also by the use of these arms by members of the family born in England who emigrated to America, as well as by that branch of the family who resided in Dorsetshire, England, in the early part of the reign of Henry VIII.

Mr. H. G. Somerby wrote from London in 1870:

"The family of Greene, originally written de la Grene, derive their name from their ancient possessions in Northamptonshire, where they were seated so early as the time of Edward the First. In 1320, Thomas de Greene succeeded to the estates and was Lord of the Manor of Boughton and Norton, afterward called 'Greene's Norton,' where the family continued to flourish for several generations, sending offshoots into various counties. . . . The Somerset branch of the family now appears to me to have sent the branch into Dorsetshire, from which the R. I. Greenes are descended. It is not improbable that this branch in Somersetshire was an offshoot from the Greenes of Northamptonshire. The pedigree of the Greenes of that county, from the Herald's College, seems to have been principally confined to the heads of that family, which became extinct in the male line and very few collaterals are given. There are also pedigrees of Greenes recorded in the College of Arms for more than twenty counties, many of them branches of the Northamptonshire family. One of these branches, as verified by the similarity of arms as recorded in the Herald's College, was seated in Dorsetshire in the early part of the reign of Henry the Eighth, when Robert Greene of Gillingham, from whom an unbroken line of descent is traced, was assessed to the King's Subsidy, as appeared by the Rolls of the Exchequer bearing date 1543."

NOTE—Mr. H. G. Somerby, of Massachusetts, went to England and engaged in genealogical researches for New England families. He made up the records of the Greene family of Warwick and of the Arnolds of Rhode Island to some extent; the Greenes, at the request of Rev. John Singleton Copley Greene, of Boston, and the Arnolds, at the request of Mr. Benj. Greene Arnold of New York, a native of Warwick, R. I. General Geo. S. Greene furnished material for the identification of both of these families from his collections.

Among the "Abstracts of English Wills" submitted by Mr. Somerby was that of John Greene of Cucklington, County Somerset, husbandman, dated April 16, 1620, proved May 22, 1620, in which he bequeathed to the parishes of Cucklington, East Flower, West Flower, and Gillingham, £30 for the poor; mentions William Greene, Hugh Greene, John Greene, Richard Greene, Simon Greene, and his kinsman, William Nelson of Gillingham; also appoints Morgan Cave of Gillingham one of the supervisors of his will; all of which may be considered conclusive proof of close relationship between the Somersetshire and Dorsetshire branches. In further support of Mr. Somerby's theory, it may be stated that the second son of Richard Greene of Bowridge Hill, Gillingham, County Dorset, was Robert of Cucklington, County Somerset, the brother of John Greene, the American ancestor, to whom he willed his Latin books. (See "The Greenses of Dorsetshire.")

The late Major-General George Sears Greene, under date of 1896, writes as follows:

"We have no direct evidence that we are descended from the Greenses of Northamptonshire. Mr. H. G. Somerby, who made up an Album of our Genealogy, supposed that we came from that family, but he did not find any positive evidence of that fact. He supposed that we came from Thomas Greene, third son of Sir Henry, who was beheaded by the officers of the Duke of Lancaster, Henry IV., who deposed Richard II. I find a record of this Thomas and of his son and heir John, and of his son and heir Thomas, but no record of any other children, but yet there may have been others (see note below). The record which I found was only to determine the heirship from Thomas, third son of Sir Henry and Matilda."

In another letter, bearing date November 30, 1896, General Greene writes:

"I do not believe there is any authority for the statement that Thomas Greene, third son of Sir Henry Greene of Drayton, was grandfather to Robert Greene of Bowridge Hill. I think that I stated to some correspondent, that there were probably, or apparently, three generations between this Thomas and Robert.

"The proof that Thomas Greene of Isham was the third son of Sir Henry Greene of Drayton is not positive, but the probability is strong." (Baker's History of Northamptonshire is authority for this statement.)

In conclusion, General Greene states:

"There is no positive record which has come to my knowledge that we come from the Northamptonshire Greenses, but I believe we do!"

NOTE—It is not against Mr. Somerby's supposition that Robert (of Gillingham) is not among these generations; the inquest looked for the heir-at-law only, and there is room for other children.—G. S. G.

Among the manorial lands inherited from his father, Sir Henry Greene, Lord Chief Justice, by the eldest son, Sir Thomas, were those of Isham (see "The Greenes of Northamptonshire," p. 7), and it is not improbable that this estate was in turn inherited by his nephew and namesake, Thomas, third son of his brother, Sir Henry Greene of Drayton. The following account, taken from Bridge's History of Northamptonshire, has stronger bearing upon the point at issue, and shows more clearly the "strong probability" of the relationship of Thomas Greene of Isham to Sir Henry Greene of Drayton, and is quoted in part in the above letter:

"In the 16th of Henry III. a fine was levied of the right of common pasture in Sudbury. Ultmer de Deneford and Sara his wife, demandants of Henry de Drayton, Deforciant<sup>1</sup> to the use of the said Henry de Drayton. After the decease of her husband, Sara de Deneford appears to have married a second husband, Roger de la Hyde, by whom in the 45th of this reign, in conjunction with the said Sara, the Manor of Sudbury was given up to Reginald de Waterville and Extranea his wife, who there levied a fine of it. In the 24th of Ed. I., Reginald de Waterville was found to hold the lordship of Sudbury of the Abbot of Westminster, who held it in capita of the King.

"Reginald de Waterville had issue three daughters:

"Johanna = Robert de Vere, Petronella = John Wykham, and Margaret = Henry de Tichmarshe, between whom, at his decease, the Manor of Sudbury was divided.

"Robert de Vere was succeeded by his son Robert de Vere, who left issue Robert de Vere his son and heir, by whom a third part of this Manor was sold to Nicholas Beech, who conveyed it to William la Zouche, Archbishop of York, who afterward gave it to his brother, Ankatil Mallory, on whom it was settled for his life 'with the remainder to Thomas Greene of Isham and Ela his wife, daughter of Sir Ankatil, and the heirs of their bodies, with reversion in default of issue to the right heirs of said Ankatil de Mallorie.'

"John Wykham, who by his marriage with Petronella, second daughter of Sir Robert de Waterville, had a third part of the Manor, sold it to Sir Robert de Arderne, Knt., whose son and successor passed it to Sir Simon de Drayton. Henry de Tichmarshe, husband of Margaret, third daughter of Sir Robert de Waterville, left issue John de Tichmarshe, who was succeeded by Henry de Tichmarshe, who sold his third part to Simon de Drayton. . . .

"By inquisition 9th Ed. IV. (1469) after the decease of Ankatil Mal-lorie, it appears that Thomas and Ela Greene had issue, John, son and heir, who was succeeded in his part of the Manor by Thomas Greene his son, at that time in possession of it (1469).

"The Manor, with certain lands and tenements in the hands of Thomas Greene, was held of the Abbot of Westminster by an unknown service. Thereafter the mention of Sudbury Manor occurs in the 21st of Henry VIII." (Vide Bridge's History of Northamptonshire, vol. ii., p. 254.)

It will be recalled that Lucie la Zouche, wife of Sir Thomas Greene of Boughton, was the mother of Sir Henry, Chief Justice, and grandmother of Sir Henry Greene of Drayton. Her brother William's son, William la Zouche, was the Archbishop of York, who willed his Sudbury property to Thomas Greene of Isham, whose wife Ela was the daughter of his brother Ankatil Mallorie. As Ralph Greene, eldest son of Sir Henry Greene of Drayton, married Ela's sister, Catharine Mallorie, it is natural to conclude that Ela's husband, Thomas of Isham, was brother of Ralph and third son of Sir Henry Greene.

Mr. Somerby reached his conclusions regarding the descent of Rhode Island Greenes from Thomas, third son of Sir Henry Greene, only after prolonged search among public records at the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, London, and at the British Museum, and careful examination of parish registers, wills, etc., in the south of England, aided by considerable correspondence with descendants in America. Upon the results of this faithful research he based his firm belief that the Dorsetshire branch of the Greene family were lineal descendants of Sir Henry Greene, Lord Chief Justice of England, through his grandson Thomas, the third son of Sir Henry Greene of Drayton, Northamptonshire.

NOTE—"The early wills which were proven in Dorsetshire and deposited in Blandford were nearly all destroyed by a mob during a political riot about 120 years ago. Only a few scattering ones remain and none of persons of the name of Greene. This is much to be regretted, as I have no doubt with their aid we should have been able without much trouble to have carried the pedigree back much further.

BOWRIDGE HILL IN THE PARISH OF GILLINGHAM.

BOWRIDGE HILL, formerly written Bor-ridge Hill (sometimes recorded as "Porridge Hill"; see Hutchin's History of Dorsetshire), the seat of the principal family of the Greenses of Gillingham, derived its name from the shape of the hill on which their residence was placed. It lies about a mile from the church, and the remains of the ancient mansion house are now (1899) occupied by a farmer.

One of the lineal descendants of Robert Greene who resided on his estate at Bowridge Hill, in the reign of King Henry VIII. (1543), gives the following description of his recent visit (1899) to Gillingham:

"The farm at Bowridge Hill, hardly more than a mile from the centre of Gillingham, is beautifully situated upon a slight eminence from which one has a surprisingly extensive view over the surrounding country. I found the place very interesting and attractive. It is a typical English farm, with a pleasant garden of old-fashioned English flowers in front of the house, and the stables and barns behind. It is situated about a half-mile from the public highway with which it is connected by means of a hard, well kept, private road which serves as an approach to a few other houses as well. I was told by the gentleman who kept the records (the Manorial records of Gillingham) that the name Bowridge Hill has always referred to this particular farm and no other. . . . The house, although ancient, does not in its present form date back to the time of Robert Greene, but was probably built over, as I was told by the present resident, in about the year 1720, which date is built into the house but concealed by the ivy. I do not imagine, however, that the form was materially altered.<sup>1</sup> The building seems to be of much the same type as those of the previous century, and I am inclined to believe that the old buildings were not entirely torn down and that the old material was incorporated in the new structure. . . .

"The old church, in its present form, preserves largely the form and architectural style of the sixteenth century, but was restored and placed in good repair during the present century. I looked through the church and yard for graves of members of the Greene family, but discovered very few and those only of a comparatively modern date. There were no stones, as I recall, which dated back to 1600. The probability is that most inscriptions of that date had become illegible at the time of rebuilding, and were lost.<sup>1</sup>

"There are few antiquities at Gillingham. The town has a population of between 3000 and 4000, but in the middle of the last century it was still only a hamlet of thatched houses. It is not unnatural, therefore, that nearly all the old houses have given place to modern buildings, and the town is less picturesque than the American visitor would wish. A rather romantic old mill upon a very ancient site is almost the only exception.

"The Manorial records, which are not indexed before 1700, establish the fact that the Greenes have not been connected with the farm at Bowridge Hill since the beginning of these records, i. e., about 1700. The farm was held under copyhold title and the books in question contain records of rents, transfers of title, etc. Most of the other records of the town, it appears, are preserved in London."

We are indebted for the above to the correspondence of Prof. Washington Irving Bruce of Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., who personally secured for this work the accompanying views of Gillingham. Prof. Bruce is a grandson of Daniel Safford Greene. (See 6th Generation.)

THE GREENES OF DORSETSHIRE.

ROBERT GREENE owned and resided on his estate at Bowridge Hill in the Parish of Gillingham, County Dorset (a locality noticed in the Ordnance Survey of England), when taxed on the Subsidy Rolls in the time of King Henry VIII. (1543); in the 1st of Edward VI. (1547), and in the first of Queen Elizabeth (1558).

To Mr. H. G. Somerby of Salem, Mass., who investigated the records of the Greene family in England, is due the discovery of Robert Greene of Gillingham recorded as above.

SUBSIDY ROLLS.

These records contain the supplies to the King from his tenants in capite, generally given gratuitously to aid him in his wars and emergencies. They contain the names of the persons assessed and the amount of their assessments for land and goods.

The introduction to the "Returns from Dorsetshire" in the reign of Henry the Eighth is as follows:

"In this Cedula indentyd is conteignyd as well the names of all and ev'y p'son or p'sons havyng landes to y<sup>e</sup> yerly valeu of XLti or above as also goods to y<sup>e</sup> valeu of XLti or above & also y<sup>e</sup> sumes p'tyckerly set oute uppon ev'y off ther sey'd namys dew to our soverenge Lorde the king for y<sup>e</sup> fyrst of y<sup>e</sup> four yerys s'bsydie graunted unto hys hygnes in y<sup>e</sup> last p'lymēt & upon & after y<sup>e</sup> taxacyon & censing therof."<sup>1</sup>

Robert Greene (wife's name unknown) had issue:

I. Peter Greene, gentleman, son and heir, who succeeded to the estate of Bowridge Hill, Gillingham. He died and was buried (according to Parish Register) May 31, 1583. His will is dated May 20, and was proved in London, June 1, 1583 (See Appendix I). He died without issue, leaving bequests to his "wife Joan" and to his brothers and sisters.

II. Richard Greene, gentleman, second son of Robert, inherited the property of Bowridge Hill as heir-at-law and "residuary legatee of his brother, Peter Greene." He was taxed on Subsidy Rolls 29th of Queen Elizabeth (1587). His will, dated May 10, 1606, was proved May 3, 1608. The name of his wife not given—issue:

- (1) Richard of Bowridge Hill, an only son, who married Mary, dau. of John Hooker.
- (2) Katharine, an only daughter, who married a Mr. Turnor.

He gave legacies to Mary Greene, wife of his son Richard, and to each of his grandchildren by name; the residue of his property, including Bowridge Hill estates, to his "only son Richard." (See Appendix I.)

(No record of the burial place of Richard or of the baptism of his elder children is found in Parish Register at Gillingham. It is probable that they were recorded in one of the hamlets of the parish where he [his father?] resided prior to his succession to the estate upon the death of his elder brother Peter.—H. G. Somerby.<sup>1</sup>)

III. John Greene of Gillingham, received legacy from his brother, Peter Greene, by will.

IV. Alice Greene, received legacy from her brother Peter's will. She married Mr. Small and had issue:

- (1) Elisabeth Small, who also received legacy from her uncle Peter.

V. Anne Greene, received legacy from her brother Peter's will. She married Roger Capps of Gillingham and had issue:

- (1) Richard Capps, who also received legacy from his uncle Peter.

Richard Greene, gentleman, son of Richard, succeeded to Bowridge Hill, 1608. He was appointed executor of his father's will. He married Mary, daughter of John Hooker (alias Vowell), who was Chamberlain of the city of Exeter, England, 12th September, 1534, and represented Exeter in Parliament; he was uncle to the celebrated divine, Richard Hooker, Rector of Bascombe, County Wilts, and Prebendary of Salisbury. Mary, his daughter, was the grandniece of Archbishop Grindal of Canterbury. (See History of Exeter, England, Astor Library, New York City.) Issue:

I. Peter Greene, gentleman, son and heir to Bowridge Hill estate. Mentioned in grandfather's will (Appendix I.). He married Joan ——. Issue:

- (6) Richard " Apr. 30, 1615.

II. Richard Greene of Salisbury. In his will, dated April 28, 1614 (mem. "Vicesimo nono Septemb. 1616"), he styles himself "of the Close of the Canons of the Cathedrall Church of Sarum (Salisbury), County of Wiltes—Gent." He died s. p. 1617, leaving his property to his father, "wife Agnes," and to his brothers and sisters. He left his Latin books to his brothers Robert and John. (See Appendix I.)

His will was proved in London by his father and his brother John, June 23, 1617.<sup>1</sup>

III. Robert Greene of Cucklington, County Somerset, gentleman, died 1650. His will, dated October 21, 1649, was proved January 7, 1650-1. He gave his Latin books to his "brother John Greene in New England," and all other property, including Gyms at Gillingham (received by will from his brother Richard) to his son, Robert Greene.

His wife is not named. Issue:

- (1) Robert, his father's sole executor.

IV. John Greene, surgeon, born about 1590, of Salisbury, County Wilts. He married November 4, 1619, at St. Thomas Church, Joanne Tattershall. He emigrated to New England with his family in 1635, where he died in 1659.

(For further record, see "The Greenes of Warwick, R. I.," and "First Generation.")

V. Rebecca Greene, married — Downton.

VI. Mary Greene, mentioned in her brother Richard's will.

VII. Rachel Greene, married Richard Perne of Gillingham. Mentioned in her brother Richard's will. Issue:

- (1) Rachel (then written Ratiel), married in England, Edward Rawson, afterward Secretary of the Massachusetts Bay Colony (and ancestor of the numerous families of that name in the United States) born at Gillingham, County Dorset, April 15, 1615. He came to America, 1637-8, soon after his marriage. (See Ancestry of Edward Rawson, by E. B. Crane, 1887, pp. 13, 22, 33.) By will of her mother, Rachel Perne, proved November 13, 1656: "Legacy of £40 to daughter, Rachel Rawson, in New England." (See Appendix I.)

VIII. Anne Greene, baptized at Gillingham, August 31, 1595, married Giles Stagg of Little Newton.<sup>2</sup>

IX. Thomas Greene, baptized May 18, 1599, buried August 15, 1599.

SETTLEMENT OF WARWICK, R. I.

AS many of the original proprietors of Shawomet (Warwick) and their descendants are connected by marriage and in political association with the descendants of John Greene, surgeon, the great-grandson of Robert Greene of Gillingham, County Dorset, England, who emigrated from Salisbury and settled at Warwick, R. I., it is deemed a fitting introduction to the family history to give a brief account of the beginning of that town, which was the offspring of the settlement at Providence under Roger Williams and his associates, and which "has a history surpassed in interest by none other of the New England settlements."

In an address before the New York Historical Society, George Bancroft made the statement that "more ideas which have become national have emanated from the little Colony of Rhode Island than from all the other American States."

The first item on the Town Records of Providence, 1636, was an agreement signed by this small company to subject themselves to "all such orders or agreements as shall be made for public good of our body, in an orderly way, by the major consent of the present inhabitants—masters of families incorporated together into a town fellowship, and others whom they shall admit unto them—only in civil things."

This was the beginning of a government, the first of Christendom to be established and maintained where the principle of freedom in "religious concerns" was a fundamental principle, and which is now adopted in all Christian governments in the civilized world.

Ex-President Andrews, of Brown University, in the able and interesting paper, "Roger Williams, Founder of Rhode Island," which he read before the Rhode Island Historical Society, February, 1895, concludes with these words: "I regard it not rash to declare that Rhode Island has done more than any other State to make the American Republic what it is. With equal propriety may one pronounce Roger Williams—George Washington excepted—the most influential and useful man of the western continent up to date."

His successor in the presidential chair, Rev. Dr. Wm. H. P. Faunce, recently (March 5, 1900) delivered a lecture upon the same subject in Brooklyn, New York City, and after quoting Lord Macaulay's famous assertion of the seventeenth century, "There are only two great creative minds; one of these produced the Paradise Lost and the other the Pilgrim's Progress," said (in brief): "I wish to show that at least one other creative mind was working besides these two, when a bold assertion of liberty was made by a friend of Milton in America,—the man who first in the modern world created a State that was truly free, and was founding a city at the head of Narragansett Bay in which no dreamer or prophet should ever suffer for uttering his message to the world. He was not a saint. No aureole played about his head in the eyes of his contemporaries. His faults were obvious and insistent. He was a man to be reckoned with when living, and being dead he yet speaketh. He was right, but he stood alone. Massachusetts was wrong, but the whole world was with her. Roer Williams wanted toleration for beliefs that he abhorred. He wanted equal civil rights for Protestants, Catholics, Jews, and Atheists. It is a significant fact that the best modern defence of Roger Williams has come from the pen of Hon. Oscar S. Straus, whose creed is as far as possible removed from that of the apostle of Rhode Island. The defenders of liberty in all ages constitute one church, and what they learn in suffering they teach not only in song but in history, in statesmanship and institutions that endure. Roger Williams was no mere theorist—he was the founder of a State. The State of Rhode Island to-day feels in every fibre of its body politic the influence of Roger Williams and his associates."<sup>1</sup>

Thus the settlement of Warwick became only possible with this free Christian government of Providence.

The late Hon. Amos Perry, Superintendent of the Census of Rhode Island in 1885, wrote of the early days in the history of Warwick: "The settlement of this town was begun in January, 1642. Its Indian name was Shawomet, meaning a spring. It took the name of Warwick from the Earl of Warwick, who signed the Patent of Providence Plantations, March 14, 1643-4. The historic importance of the western settlement was recognized by the founders of the Rhode Island Historical Society by inscribing upon one side of the triangle device of their seal, 'Shawomet, 1642.' The establishment of this third point in the triangle was assured only after a long and painful struggle, in which disaffected and neighboring colonists leagued with Indians against the original and rightful grantees of this territory. The Charter of 1644 turned the scales in favor of the Warwick planters and the Providence Plantations. Warwick, facing Narragansett Bay on the east, and possessing numerous fertilizing streams and water privileges, is worth all it cost."

<sup>1</sup> "Williams was only for two years chosen Governor by the Colony for which he had done much and was rarely honored by it in any way. So neglected was he by the many men who owed to him their prosperity that in old age he became dependent on his sons, —he whom the United Colonies of New England should have delighted to maintain with high honor! Yet to the last, he was cheerful and loving. When, in 1684, he died at about the close of his four score years, the Colony awoke to his worth. He was buried at his Providence under arms, with all the honors of a magistrate, and his memory is entailed on the successive generations of Rhode Island as a priceless legacy" (Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic, pp. 370-1).

In 1888 a committee (Wm. D. Ely and John A. Howland), appointed by the Rhode Island Historical Society, reported upon the correctness of the dates and device of the Society's Seal and also upon the early settlement of Warwick, as follows: "To Warwick, the western division of Rhode Island, was given the name, 'Shawomet,' the name of a Sachemwick, the most conspicuous of all in that division of the State, from the character and conduct of its settlers, as well as the nucleus of that broad Township of multitudinous villages, which the devotion of those settlers preserved to the Colony and to the State. In fact, from the time of the first Charter, Shawomet was synonymous with Warwick, the two names being used interchangeably by the men of Warwick and their enemies of 'the Bay.'

"But at the time the Society adopted its Seal, nearly two centuries afterward, Shawomet had, in the light of history, become a name not only memorable, but consecrated by the heroism, the suffering, and the Christian patience of Samuel Gorton and his companions. This small but indomitable band, with the laws of God in one hand and the laws of England in the other, withstood all the efforts of the Government of Massachusetts Bay by soldiers and savages, by prisons and fetters, and worse than inquisitorial cruelties, to force on them a Puritan Hierarchy and a foreign jurisdiction, each as merciless in its tyranny as it was regardless of law. Desperate as the contest seemed, Gorton and his companions triumphed at last. Rhode Island owes to them a heavy debt. . . . When at last public opinion and a sense of danger to their own power forced the Puritan dynasty to set them free, Gorton, Greene, and Holden<sup>1</sup> made their strong appeal to

<sup>1</sup> Samuel Gorton, John Greene, and Randall Holden went to England in 1644 armed with a deed of submission to England of the Narragansetts, and on the 13th of Sept., 1646, they appeared in Boston Harbor from England, bringing with them the following order from the Governor in Chief, Lord High Admiral, and Commissioner appointed by Parliament for the English Plantations of America:

"Whereas, we have thought fit to give an order for Mr. Samuel Gorton, Mr. Randall Holden, Mr. John Greene and others, late inhabitants of a tract of land called the Narragansett Bay, near the Massachusetts Bay, in New England, to return with freedom to the said tract of land, and there to inhabit and abide without interruption; These are therefore to pray and require you and all others whom this may concern, to permit and suffer the said Samuel Gorton, etc., with their company, goods, and necessaries carried with them out of England, when the ship wherein they do embark themselves shall arrive and from thence to pass, without any of your lets or molestations, through the 'Honorable State of Old England,' procuring at the same time and also bearing with them to England the submission of the powerful Narragansett tribe to King Charles (see note). The justice of their claims could not be denied. The laws and the throne of England were supreme. England upheld both the men of Shawomet and the Narragansetts against the assumed jurisdiction of the Bay, which in her humiliation was forced to appeal for aid against 'opposition from Warwick,' to the Commissioners of the United Colonies. Thus Gorton's successful appeal and the stern rebuke it brought to the tyranny of the Puritan Hierarchy led in a momentous degree to the preservation of the whole Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, and the final emancipation of its entire territory from the usurpation of Massachusetts Bay.

"Here, happily, on the territory known as Warwick, nothing seems better established than the fact that the first purchase by the English in these parts was made by John Greene, to whom was deeded, October 1, 1642, the tract of land called Occupasuetuxet by Miantonomi,<sup>1</sup> Chief Sachem of the Narragansetts, and Socononoco, the local Sachem of Pawtuxet. That he (John Greene) bought it for a settlement, a plantation, and a home seems evident, for Judge Staples states that on the 25th of September, 1644, he was actually residing there. How much earlier he had established himself there does not appear, but he and his family held it as a home for more than a hundred and forty years, and there, doubtless, he himself was, as certainly successive generations of his descendants were laid to rest.

This John Greene, an English surgeon, was the founder of a family than which none has been more prominent or more honored in the history of the State. The mention of a few names will suffice. It gave to the Colony two Governors (both named William Greene); to the Army of the Revolution, Major-General Nathanael Greene; to this Society, two Presidents; and to the United States force in the Rebellion, Major-General George Sears Greene and his two gallant sons.

any part of the continent of America within your jurisdiction, to the said tract of land called Narragansett Bay, or any part thereof, they carrying themselves without offence, and paying according to the custom of the country and their contract, for all things they shall make use of in their way, of victuals, carriages and other accommodations. Hereof fail not, and this shall be your warrant." Dated at Westminster, May 15, 1646.

This was directed to the Governor and Assistants of Massachusetts and signed by the Commissioner of Plantations.

<sup>1</sup> A copy of the deed of Miantonomi (see Appendix I.) will bear out the well established facts attending John Greene's purchase of Occupasuetuxet, and additionally warrants the inscription of the date 1642 upon the seal of the Historical Society as the earliest date in which Warwick (alias Shawomet) first began to pass permanently under English control.

"And in this connection, it is worthy of notice that all of these, without exception, were also descendants of Samuel Gorton."<sup>1</sup>

John Greene, surgeon, the American ancestor of the Greens of Rhode Island, emigrated from Salisbury, England, in 1635, and first settled at Salem, Mass., where he was associated with Roger Williams,<sup>2</sup> and where he built or purchased a house.

In 1636-7 he followed Williams to Providence and was one of the first six who received home lots (the one granted him being the fourth from that of Roger Williams), although this fact has been overlooked by the historian of Providence (see The Providence Plantations, p. 37). On the Town Records the "10th of 4th month" (June—the year "1637" being added by the publisher of the Colonial Records ?), we read: "The several portions of grass and meadow which our neighbour Greene, our neighbour Cole, neighbour Arnold and Mr. Weston laid out in the Town's name with our neighbour James, neighbour Olney, neighbour Waterman, neighbour Cole, neighbour Carpenter and neighbour Hollyman, were confirmed as their proper right and inheritance to them and theirs as fully as the former portions appropriated to our neighbour Throckmorton, neighbour Greene, neighbour Harris, Joshua Verin, neighbour Arnold and neighbour Williams were, or are confirmed to them or theirs."

Joshua Verin, in a letter to the town of Providence, 27th April, 1637, wrote: "Some of you cannot but recollect that we six<sup>3</sup> which came first should have the first convenience," etc. (Colonial Records, i., 17.)

John Greene was also one of the original twelve "neighbours"<sup>4</sup> to whom <sup>1</sup> Hon. Albert Gorton Greene, a man of antiquarian tastes and a lineal descendant also of John Greene, surgeon, was the designer of the seal of the Rhode Island Historical Society, of which Society he was a Trustee from its foundation, and its Vice-President and President for twenty-five years.

The Seal of the Society is an equilateral triangle within a circle, which bears on the several sides the following inscriptions: On the base, "Mooshassuck, 1636" (Providence); on the right, "Aquidneck, 1638" (original name of Rhode Island); on the left, "Shawomet, 1642" (Warwick).

<sup>2</sup> It has been said that, later, at Providence, he did not appear to have very cordial relations with Roger Williams, but they were not unfriendly. Mr. Williams, in his letter to Governor Winthrop, July 31, 1637, wrote: "For myself, I have no partial respect to Mr. Greene, nor relation but of neighbors together. . . . Mr. Greene here is peaceable, a peacemaker, and a lover of all English that visit us."—G. S. G.

<sup>4</sup> Samuel Gorton, John Greene, Randall Holden, John Wickes, Francis Weston, Richard Waterman, John Warner, Richard Carder, Sampson Shotten, Robert Potter, William Waddell, and Nicholas Power (although the last named was not interested in the deed) were the twelve neighbors to whom Mr. Williams deeded his original purchased lands from Miantonomi, each of whom paid thirty shillings.—G. S. G.

In connection with the above, "The Origin and Evolution of the Titles to Real Estate in Providence Plantations" will be of interest (see The Providence Plantations for 250 Years, 1636-1886, pp. 46-47, by Welcome Arnold Greene.)

Roger Williams transferred all the lands he purchased of Canonicus and Miantonomi between Pawtuxet River on the south side and Mooshassuck on the north. This interest in the Providence purchase Mr. Greene transferred to his eldest son, John Greene, Jr., on September 25, 1644, the same date given by Judge Staples as the time of settlement of John, senior, at Occupasuetuxet.

Mr. Greene does not appear to have taken any active part in the government of the town of Providence. We do not know whether he was absent or whether he declined to enter into an agreement to form authoritative government which was not authorized by the Government of England, this being the sentiment of most of those who were associated with him in the plantation of Shawomet. He did not sign the agreement for government "by arbitration," July 27, 1640, although Judge Staples erroneously stated otherwise. On October 1, 1642, John Greene purchased from the Indian chief, Miantonomi, seven hundred acres of land known as Occupasuetuxet, situated on Narragansett Bay, directly south of the settlement of Pawtuxet. This property, as mentioned in the above report, remained in possession of the posterity of Mr. Greene for one hundred and forty years, when it was sold, October 6, 1782,<sup>1</sup> by his great-great-grandchildren to the Hon. John Brown of Providence, by whose descendants it was owned, being occupied by the heirs of the late Governor John Brown Francis, who soon after the purchase named the place "Spring Green" (formerly "Greene's Hold").

On January 12, 1642 (as the deed shows), the same John Greene was associated with Samuel Gorton and others (twelve in all) in the purchase from Miantonomi of the Sachemwick Shawomet, commonly called "Old Warwick," the tract of land lying directly south of that purchased by Mr. Greene a few months before. This last tract was about four miles wide, and extended from Narragansett Bay due west about twenty miles.

This Shawomet purchase was made by those who claimed that no title could vest in the territory purchased from the Indians until a right in the same was obtained by grant from the Crown of England. Consequently only the powers of a provisional government were exercised until 1647, when the four towns, Providence, Portsmouth, Newport, and Warwick, were organized under the first Charter or Patent obtained from the English Parliament, May 14, 1643-4, John Greene being one of the committee who formed this organization.<sup>2</sup>

FAC-SIMILE OF DEED OF MYANTONOMY.
 (See Case - Article 1.)

In addition to these purchases the inhabitants of the town of Warwick purchased on the 13th of July, 1654, from Taccomanan (the deed being signed also by Amashetuck and Wawamockashaw his sons) the tract of land now known as Potowomut, on the south side of Coweset Bay. This tract of land has ever since formed a part of the town of Warwick. James Greene, son of John Greene, surgeon, was the first settler of this territory of Potowomut.

It was not, as before mentioned, till the year 1647 that a permanent settlement was made in Shawomet, when the name Warwick was assumed in honor of the Earl of Warwick, the powerful protector in England of Gorton and his friends and the "Governor in Chief and Lord High Admiral of the English Plantations" in America. During King Philip's War (1675-6) there was a general exodus of the inhabitants of the town to the island of Rhode Island.<sup>1</sup> But one house, the Greene "Stone Castle," as it was known for centuries, remained inhabited. A garrison stayed there during the entire war and for many months afterward, before the return of the inhabitants, who had meantime organized themselves at Portsmouth as the town of Warwick, and for fifteen months maintained such organization there, until it was safe for them to return to their own territory. Excepting this "Stone Castle," every house in the town was destroyed.

After the close of King Philip's War, the town of Warwick was resettled and commenced a prosperous career, which has ever since then continued. Among the early manufacturing interests established were the Greene Anchor Forge and Mills at Potowomut, which had an extensive reputation many years before the Revolutionary War. All through this period Warwick was noted for the numerous men of ability which she contributed to the patriotic cause, prominent among whom, as before stated, were members of the Greene family, the most noted being Major-General Nathanael Greene and Colonel Christopher Greene of the Revolutionary Army. Thus, through varying fortunes, the town of Warwick survived all difficulties.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> On 13th March, 1675-6, the General Assembly of the Colony, in session at Newport, sent a message to the people of Warwick, stating that the Colony was unable to defend them and advising them to seek safety at the island of Rhode Island, promising them hospitality from the inhabitants of Newport and Portsmouth. Four days later the town of Warwick was burned (on the night of 16th and 17th of March, 1675-6) by the Indians, excepting the stone house of Thomas Greene.

The frequent disturbances that arose between the early proprietors of Shawomet and the Massachusetts Bay authorities, the unjust persecutions which followed, the depredations of the Indians, are all matters of history too familiar to require repetition. Hon. Wm. P. Sheffield, of Newport, R. I., in closing his able monograph on Samuel Gorton (published in the National Magazine, November, December, January, 1893-4), writes: "Gorton was undoubtedly the leader in the settlement of the town of Warwick, but the descendants of John Greene have been far more influential in maintaining and upholding this ancient municipality than the descendants of any other of the original settlers—possibly more influential than the descendants of all the other first settlers."

As has been said, Gorton and his companions triumphed, and their posterity still proudly testify to their brave endurance, their struggles for the right, and their untiring activity which promoted and sustained the religious, patriotic, and civil interests of the community in which they dwelt, leaving to their descendants the inheritance of peaceful homes and a healthful condition of prosperity which has continued to the present time.

THE GREENES OF WARWICK, R. I.

IT is conceded by leading genealogists as strong presumptive evidence of the descent of the Warwick Greenses from the family of Northamptonshire, England, that Major John Greene, Deputy Governor of the Colony of Rhode Island, and son of the emigrant, John Greene, surgeon, should have used upon an official letter to England at an early date (1692) a seal with the arms of the Greenses of Boughton and Greene's Norton, Northamptonshire, the same arms being recorded in the Herald's College, (Somerby), as borne by Robert Greene of Gillingham, Dorsetshire, England, who was the great-grandfather of John Greene, surgeon, and from whom the records are unbroken.

Major Greene was well known in official life and was on several occasions sent as Agent of the Colony to England. The letter alluded to was of no special importance save for its seal. It was addressed to Sir Robert Southwell, Knight, one of the Secretaries of State to their Majesties' Privy Council, at Whitehall, London, bearing date December 21, 1692. It was sealed with red wax, having the impression of the Greene arms, and was sent to America about 1840 by Mr. Thompson of Liverpool to the President of the Rhode Island Historical Society, and was received in good condition.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Among General Greene's notes is the following: "Letter from John Greene, Dep. Gov., R. I., 21 Dec., 1692, to Hon. Sir Robert Southwell, Knight, one of the Secretaries of State to their Majesties' Privy Council, at Whitehall, London. This letter was received July 4, 1693. It was to introduce Christopher Almy, brother-in-law of John Greene, the writer of the letter. The letter was sealed with red wax and the plain impression of the arms, 3 bucks trippant, in perfect preservation when this letter was received from Mr. Thompson, of Liverpool, by the President of the Rhode Island Historical Society."

The following statement was received by the compiler under date, Providence, November 3, 1900:

"The record of the accession of the letter in question as made by the cabinet keeper in his annual report for July, 1840, reads as follows:

"From Thomas Thompson, Liverpool,

"Letter from Dep. Gov. John Greene to Robert Southwell, dated Newport, Dec. 21, 1692."

"R. I. Hist. Society Correspondence and Reports, vol. iii., p. 91.)

"(Sgd.) CLARENCE S. BRIGHAM,

" Librarian R. I. Hist. Soc."

General George Sears Greene carefully examined the seal and thus reported: "It bears a fair impression of the arms, three bucks trippant, but the colours are not distinct and it is without the crest,' which is not significant, the crest often being omitted from seals because it so much enlarged them." The following extract is from another letter written by him more than half a century ago, bearing date July, 1842: "Deputy Governor John Greene used a seal with the family Arms. The seal was small and the colours not designated, but the three bucks trippant were plain, and the crescent. The only grant which I have seen in the Heraldic books corresponding with this is that granted to a branch of the Greenes of Bristol, Eng., as a younger branch, which the crescent signifies, viz., 'Azure 3 bucks trippant or, attired or, with a crescent for difference; crest, a buck's head erased ermine attired or.' If this is the true coat of arms of our branch of Greenes, it was granted in the sixteenth century, before John Greene and his family left England. The name was of note in the fourteenth century, as appears from history and the Index to Chancery Cases published in Parliament."

At a later date, General Greene wrote: "The arms used by the Greenes of Rhode Island are those of the family of Sir Henry Greene of Boughton and Greene's Norton in Northamptonshire, and his descendants. Major John Greene, Dep. Gov. of R. I. and Agent of the Colony to the Home Government, was but fifteen years old when he came to this country with his father. He passed much of his time (later) in England in an official capacity and would have well known his people there and the Arms of his branch of the family and would not have used them unduly." And other branches of the Greene family in the southern counties of England presented these arms at 'Visitations,' when they would not be used thus unless the persons entering their families at 'Visitations' had a right to wear them. Mr. Somerby, under all the circumstances which came to him, considered the point clear that the Greenes of Bowridge Hill in Gillingham, Dorsetshire, were of the Northamptonshire family. He made the positive connection of the emigrant, John Greene of Salisbury, Co. Wilts, with three generations before him in England."

The following extract is from Mr. Somerby's correspondence in 1866, which was in substance repeated in 1870:

<sup>1</sup> "A coat of arms without crest is rather the sign of an old family than otherwise" (Introduction to Armorial Families, by A. C. Fox-Davies).

<sup>2</sup> In the fifth year of the reign of Henry V., June 2, 1418, at New Sarum (Salisbury) ordered: "That no man of what state, degree or condition soever he be, shall take upon him such Arms or "Coats of Arms," save he alone who doth possess or ought to possess the same by the right of his ancestors or by donation and grant of someone who had sufficient power to assign him the same." (Fuller's Worthies in England, vol. ii.)

“A strong reason and perhaps a conclusive one for believing the connection between the Greenes of R. I. and the ancient Greene family of Northamptonshire, is the similarity of arms. These same arms were used by other families of Greenes in the southern counties of England at the Visitations, when inquiries were made by commissioners appointed by the Crown of the then present and past genealogies of the families. This use of the arms (if they were properly used) shows descent from the Northamptonshire Greenes.”

There is positive evidence in the above letters of General Greene that the original seal of Deputy Governor John Greene showed distinctly the Northamptonshire arms, with the crescent, borne only by descendants from younger sons. This fact may be regarded as conclusive proof that the Deputy Governor's ancestors in Dorsetshire, England, including Robert of Gillingham, County Dorset, were allowed to bear these same arms, or he would not have sealed his official letters, addressed to officials in England, with the impression of these arms. The fact, also, that Bristol, England, lies partly in Somerset County, and that the arms granted to the Bristol family bore a crescent (only used by younger sons) is evidently strongly in favor of the conclusion reached by Mr. Somerby, viz., that the Somerset family, an offshoot from the ancient family of Northamptonshire, sent a branch into Dorsetshire, and that Robert of Gillingham, County Dorset, was one of these descendants, and therefore a lineal descendant of Sir Henry Greene, Lord Chief Justice of England, through Thomas, the third and “younger son” of his son, Sir Henry.<sup>1</sup> The Greene arms, azure three bucks trippant or, crest, a buck's head erased or, have often been confirmed to persons claiming descent from the family of Boughton or Greene's Norton,<sup>2</sup> with slight differences, by adding some points or by change of color. There are other places in the south of England beside Dorsetshire where the Greenes have been seated, but no positive connection has been established except with Robert Greene of the parish of Gillingham, County Dorset, from whom, as before mentioned, the line is unbroken to John Greene, surgeon, of Salisbury, County Wilts, who came to New England in 1635 and settled in Warwick, R. I., in 1643.

<sup>1</sup> The elder lines from both Thomas and Henry, sons of the Chief Justice, Sir Henry Greene, have terminated in females, but it is very evident that there are many branches extant from the younger sons.—G. S. G.

<sup>2</sup> Greene's Norton was formerly written “Grene's Norton.” In the sixteenth century the Northamptonshire branch wrote the name Grene as appears on the earliest records and on the monuments, according to Anglo-Saxon authority. At a later date the double e and final e were adopted, which form has been pertinaciously retained by the descendants.—G. S. G.

THE GREENE FAMILY.

“A DESCENDANT of the Greens of Greene's Norton, County Northampton, John Greene, came over from Salisbury, County Wilts, to Boston, in 1635. His ancestry is traced back to Robert Greene of Gillingham (1545).

“Sir Bernard Burke states that this John Greene was a companion of Roger Williams and a party to the Providence purchase from the Indians. A family tombstone in the King's Chapel Burial Ground, Boston, shows the same devices; as does also the book-plate of Gardiner Greene (b. 1753), who married a sister of Lord Lyndhurst.

“The crest A is that found on the tombstone. The family uses more generally the crest B.

“Crests: A. A dove holding a sprig of olive.

B. A buck's head, erased, or.

“Motto: Nec Timeo nec Spero”; [also Virtus semper viridis].

FIRST GENERATION.

I. JOHN GREENE, surgeon, the progenitor of the Warwick Greens, was the son of Richard and Mary (Hooker) Greene, and was born on his father's estate at Bowridge Hill in the parish of Gillingham, County Dorset, England, about 1590. Though not so recorded, dates before and after him would seem to determine this as the year of his birth.<sup>1</sup> His father, Rich-

“MORRISTOWN, N. J., November 30, 1896.

“Anne, the youngest child of Richard and Mary (Hooker) Greene of Bowridge Hill, was baptized at Gillingham, 31 August, 1595. I suppose that Peter, their oldest child, was 20 years old in 1605 when his first child was born [which would make Peter's birth-date 1585]. There are six intervals between Peter and Anne; time, 10 years or 120 months. These 120 months divided by 6 give intervals of 20 months. Then the three intervals between Peter and John, surgeon, would be 60 months or 5 years, which, added to the birth-date of Peter (1585) would be 1590, the [probable] date of birth of John, surgeon.” (It is not likely that he was born at an earlier date, as this would have made him twenty-nine years of age at the time of his marriage, 1619.)

There was one error in the above calculation,—the omission of one child,—which error General Greene discovered and corrected, making seven intervals (between Peter and Anne) of 17½ months, which difference, however, did not materially change the conclusion reached as to the approximate birth-date of John Greene, surgeon, 1590.—COMPILER.

ard, grandfather Richard, and great-grandfather, Robert, had for nearly one hundred years before him resided at Bowridge Hill, and were undoubtedly a branch of the Northamptonshire family of Greene through a younger son.

General Francis Vinton Greene, in his Introduction to that choice volume, A Photographic Facsimile from the Original Volumes of Halstead's Genealogies Pertaining to the House of Greene, states: "The antecedents [immediate] of this Robert Greene have not yet been traced with certainty, but it seems probable that he was descended from a younger branch of the powerful and wealthy family of Greenses of Northamptonshire," thereby coinciding with the conclusion reached by his honored father, General George Sears Greene, after many years of patient research.

The mother of John Greene, surgeon, Mary Hooker, was the daughter of John Hooker (alias Vowell), who was born at Exeter, England, about 1524, his father, Robert Hooker, having been mayor of that city in 1520. His parents died when he was about ten years old. His early education was acquired under Dr. Moseman, Vicar of Menhussin in Cornwall, and he afterward studied law at Oxford. Later he travelled in Germany and resided some time in Cologne and Strasburg, where he was the guest of Peter Martyne and attended the divinity lectures of that learned Reformer. He returned to England and after a short stay went to France, intending to extend his travels to Spain and Italy, but was prevented by the war. Returning to his native country he settled in Exeter, and was chosen first chamberlain of that city, 1555. He devoted himself after this to the study of history and antiquities. In 1568 was a member of the Irish Parliament, and in 1571 was one of the members of the English Parliament from Exeter (Wood). Price says he died 1601 (?), when about eighty years of age, and was buried in Exeter Cathedral, but had no monument. He was the author of several works, among them: "State of Ireland and Order of keeping a Parliament in that Country," the same being found in the British Museum under title, "Order and Usage of keeping Parliament in England" (MS. Harl., 1173, fol. 19). (From History of Devonshire, by Rev. Thomas Moore, vol. ii., p. 125.)

"The city of Old Saresbyri standing on an hill is distant from the New a mile by north weste and is in compace half a mile and mo. This city has been annicient and exceeding strong but syns the building of New Saresbyri it went totally to ruin. . . . In times of civile wars—inso much as the castellanes of Old Saresbyri and the chanons could not agree, whereupon the bishop and they and was there married at St. Thomas's Church,<sup>1</sup> November 4, 1619, to Joanne Tattershall (or, as it was written on the church register, "Tatarsole"). Nothing is definitely known of her English connections. The name is frequently found in early records among post-mortem examinations, parliamentary writs, and charters, and is variously written Tatersall, Tateshall, Tatashall, Tatershal, and Tattershall. The first of the family of whom we have mention came in with William the Conqueror and obtained the lordship of Tattershall in Lincolnshire, where he seated himself and from which he took his surname. His descendants were seated in Berkshire and Norfolkshire, and were held in high repute. It is probable that other branches located in other counties, and it is not improbable to suppose that Joanne the wife of John Greene, who emigrated to America from Salisbury, County Wilts, was a connection of the family of George Tattershall, who was seated at Stapleford, County Wilts, which is about five miles distant from his Salisbury home; but as yet this relationship has not been proved. The following note, recently received by the compiler in answer to an inquiry about records at Stapleford, may be of interest in this connection:

"STAPLEFORD VICARAGE, SALISBURY,

"October 18, 1900.

"MADAM: I have received your letter of the 25th September, but regret to say that I cannot help you in your research, as the Stapleford Register begins only with the year 1637.

"J. F. D. HOERNLÉ,

"Vicar of Stapleford."

[Joanne Tattershall's marriage date was 1619, eighteen years earlier.]

The marriage of John Greene and the baptisms of all his seven children, recorded in the Parish Register of St. Thomas's Church at Salisbury, England, are still extant. He is therein styled "Mr." and "Gent.," a mark of some distinction at that date.<sup>2</sup> He resided at Salisbury with his family, follow-consulting together at the last began a church on their own proper soyle and then the people resorted straight to New Saresbyrie and builded there and in continuance were a great nombre of the houses of Old Saresbyri pulled down and set up at New Saresbyri."

<sup>1</sup> St. Thomas's Church was built as a Chapel of Ease to the Cathedral by Bishop Bingham in the year 1240. It was dedicated to St. Thomas à Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, who was martyred in the reign of King Henry II., and is said to be in some respects more beautiful than the Cathedral. It is a vicarage, with the living in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury Cathedral.

<sup>2</sup> "John Greene received by will, from his brother Richard, Clerk of the Close of Salisbury Cathedral, April 28, 1614, half of his Latin books, the other half being given to his brother, Robert, who by will October 20, 1649, gave them also to his 'brother John Greene in New England if he come for them.' The possession of these Latin books by three brothers indicates that they were of an educated family. Mr. Greene in the Baptismal and Marriage Records at Salisbury was recorded 'Mr.' or 'Gent.,' denoting his social position."—G. S. G.

ing his profession, for about sixteen years. On April 6, 1635 he was registered for embarkation at Hampton, England (see Appendix II.), with his wife and six children (one having probably died in England before this date), "in the ship James, of 200 tons, William Cooper, Master, for New England." After a voyage of fifty-eight days he arrived at Boston, Mass., June 3, 1635. He first settled at Salem, Mass., where he was associated with Roger Williams, purchasing or building a house there, but soon after Mr. Williams's flight from Salem (1636) he sold it and, joining Williams at Providence, secured his home lot, No. 15, on the main street. He was one of eleven men baptized by Roger Williams, and one of the twelve original members of the first Baptist church on this continent, organized at Providence, R. I. He was the first professional medical man in Providence Plantations. He is alluded to in Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic (p. 407) as "one of the two local surgeons" at Providence in 1638, though we are told "the people of Providence relied solely upon him for surgical aid long after his removal to Warwick in 1643." His first wife, Joanne Tattershall, the mother of all his children, died soon after his removal to Rhode Island and it is supposed was buried at Conimicut, Old Warwick (?). He married (2) "Ailsee (Alice) Daniels, a widow" (recorded as proprietor of a home lot in Providence, 1637) (see below). They removed to Warwick, 1642-3. At the time of the persecution of the Shawomet pioneers (October, 1643), when "forty mounted and armed men," sent from Boston to arrest them, fired over their houses, the women and children fled to the woods. Fright and exposure caused the death of the (second) wife of John Greene. (It seems more probable that this was the wife who was buried at Conimicut.) Samuel Gorton wrote of this attack of the Massachusetts troops: "Afflicting our wives and children, forcing them to betake themselves some into the woods among the Indians, suffering such hardships as occasioned the death of divers of them, as the wife of John Greene, as also the wife of Robert Potter." Judge Staples, in his Annals of Providence, mentions the fact that the second marriage of John Greene was not recorded, but he found evidence in Probate Records, where mention is made of the son of Alice Daniels as "John Greene's stepson." Evidence of this marriage is also given in the following item:

"In the division of 52 House lots John Greene senior Had lot between Thomas James on the North and John Smith on the South, and he inherited the lot of Alice Daniels his second wife between Wm. Harris on the North and John Sweet on the South" (Rhode Island Colonial Records [Printed], vol. i., p. 24).

In files, City Clerk's office, Providence, is a book containing "A revised List of Lands and Meadows as they were originally lotted for the beginning of the Plantations of Providence in the Narragansett Bay in New England unto the [then] inhabitants of the said Plantations until anno 16—."

First in order are the "home lots," beginning at the Mile-end Cove, south end of town, between Fox Point and Wickenden Streets, lots all bounded by Town (Main) Street on the west and by what is now Hope Street on the east. The name of Alice Daniels is found on this list.

Mr. Greene was married (3) in London, England, about 1644, to Phillipa (always written Phillip), who returned with him to Warwick, R. I., 1646. Her family name is not known. She died at Warwick, March 11, 1687, aged about eighty-seven years, having survived her husband for nearly thirty years.<sup>1</sup> In further support that his third wife was from London we quote the words of Samuel Gorton, who, in a letter from Warwick addressed "to Edward Calverly at his house by the east end of Christ Church in Newgate Market, London," and dated November 20, 1649, wrote of this last wife of John Greene: "Your auld neighbour, our loving friend, Mrs. Greene, hath writ a letter of advise to you [which] made me laugh not a little, which I heartily wish may come to your hands. She laies out the benefights of these parts better than I could have advised to have done. She takes well with the country and cheerfully performs her place [part], hath the love of all, non can open their mouth against her, which is a rare thing in these parts."

John Greene, surgeon, was a prominent man in the public affairs of the town and Colony and enjoyed the confidence and respect of his associates through a long and active political life, holding office almost continuously until the summer before his death, when he refused to accept the office of Commissioner, being repeatedly urged thereto. A few months later, the General Court of Massachusetts at the request of Edward Rawson, Secretary of the Colony (whose wife was Rachel Perne, daughter of John Greene's sister, Rachel), granted him permission to visit Boston in the coming spring, but he did not live to accomplish this visit. He died and was buried at Conimicut, Warwick, it is supposed beside his first wife (?) in the first week of January, 1659.

Although John Greene must have been in Providence as early as April 27, 1637, as mentioned in a letter of Joshua Verin of that date ("we six which came first"), and when "the first portions of grass & meadow were appropriated to Throckmorton, Greene, Harris, Verin, Arnold, and Williams," June 10, 1637, (see Rhode Island Colonial Records [Printed], vol. i., p. 17), his name is not mentioned on Massachusetts records till August 1, 1637: "Mr. John Greene of New Providence bound to Quarterly Court first Tuesday of seventh month next for speaking contemptuously of magistrates in 100 marks" (Massachusetts Colonial Records, i., p. 200).

On which account taken as follows:

"John Greene of New Providence fined 20£ and forbidden this jurisdiction on pain of fine and imprisonment for speaking contemptuously of magistrates Sep. 19, 1637" (Massachusetts Colonial Records, i., p. 203).

John Greene, feeling the injustice of the magistrates, wrote a letter concerning which the following entry was made, March 12, 1638:

"A letter was sent to the Court by John Greene dated New Providence, wherein the Court was charged with usurping the power of Christ over the churches and men's consciences, and it was then ordered (March 12, 1638) that he 'should not come within their jurisdiction,'" etc.

The late Henry E. Turner, M.D., of Newport, in The Greenes of Warwick in Colonial History (p. 7), writes: "However insignificant in the aggregate of historical items this transaction may appear, it was one of the earliest assertions of entire and absolute freedom of opinion in defiance of either secular or ecclesiastical authority, and was one of the scintillations from the profound which aided to kindle the flame which is now lighting the world in its march to universal emancipation, and it seems to me to entitle John Greene to a high place among the apostles of fine thought."

In all transactions in Warwick, John Greene was a prominent figure, "enjoying fully the confidence of his fellow citizens and suffering in common with them from the machinations of their enemies in Mass.," inasmuch as, though he escaped imprisonment,<sup>1</sup> he was with them under the ban of outlawry by name, and was forced to submit to interference with and destruction of his property.

In "Letters from the Pawtuxet," by Henry Rousmanière, on "Genealogy of the Greenes," published in the Providence Journal, May, 1859, mention is made of John Greene as "This Adam of Shawomet [Warwick], who was driven out of Massachusetts, not Paradise, for the great crime of obeying his conscience in religion," and "who left to his family a fair name and a large landed estate." His will was dated December 28, 1658, and proved January 7, 1659. He left his large estate to his descendants, much of the property being still in the possession of his posterity.

SECOND GENERATION.

2. MAJOR JOHN<sup>2</sup> GREENE "of Occupasuetuxet" (John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born at Salisbury, County Wilts, England, and baptized at St. Thomas's Church, August 15, 1620. He came to New England with his parents in 1635, and remained with them in Providence till his father's removal to Warwick, R. I., in 1643. He afterward settled on the Occupasuetuxet farm, the fine estate inherited from his father, and then known as "Greene's Hold," which remained in possession of the family for one hundred and forty years, from October 1, 1642, when purchased from the Indian Chief, Miantonomi, till October 6, 1782, when it was sold by the grandchildren of Major John Greene to John Brown of Providence.

During the early settlement of Providence, John Greene, Jr. (as he was then called), was associated with his father, and both were proprietors of home lots there on Town Street (now North Main), extending as did the other home lots to Hope Street. These Providence interests were all transferred to John, Jr., in 1640 (or 1644?). He was one of the witnesses to the sale of Shawomet by Miantonomi, Chief Sachem of the Narragansetts, to his father and associates, January 12, 1642. After their removal to Warwick he was almost continuously in public affairs. He became a large land owner in his own right as well as by inheritance, and was prominently active in all interests of town and Colony. It was written of him at a later period: "He was a man of great weight of thought, sharpness of wit, aptness of action and adroitness of understanding."

In early life he was Town Clerk<sup>1</sup> and Surveyor. On several occasions he was sent as Agent for the Colony to England, and for nearly fifty years he filled the highest public offices. He was a member of the Colonial Assemblies (or Commissioner), Deputy, Assistant, and Deputy Governor under both charters. Major John Greene was one of the twenty-four named in the permanent charter obtained from King Charles II., 1663, and one of the ten Assistants provided for in that charter. He was a member of the most important committees, and was one of those commissioned to determine the boundary lines of the Colony with the Colonies of Connecticut and Massachusetts. He visited England during the Andros administration and presented a petition to the King "in behalf of the towns and places" in his Majesty's Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, "representing the people of those towns and places," as the government of the Colony under the charter had been abolished during Andros's administration. He was appointed one of Andros's Council under instructions from the King.<sup>1</sup> There is no record, however, to show that he attended the Council. September 6, 1686, in a deed to his sister, Mary Sweet, he mentions being "bound for England again" (Warwick Land Ev., I., 94), and being absent for some time there is no probability that he ever attended a meeting. He was present as Assistant in the last Assembly held before the assumption of the government by Andros, May 28, 1686, and was in the first Assembly after Andros's fall in the same capacity, being among the first to re-establish the government under the old charter of 1663. He was Captain of the militia for eight years and "Major for the Main" for seven years (1683-86, 1690-91, 1696), commanding all the trained bands on the mainland in Rhode Island, the highest military rank in the Colony, though not, as the historian of Rhode Island states, equivalent to that of major-general. The militia did not amount to more than a battalion—a major's command. His political record is as follows:

Representative to General Court for twelve years, 1652-63.

Deputy for five years, 1664, 74, 77, 80.

Assistant for twenty-five years, 1660-90.

Warden for Warwick, 1658.

General Recorder (Secretary of State), 1652-3-4.

General Solicitor, 1655.

Attorney General, 1657-8-9-60.

Deputy Governor for eleven years continuously, 1690-1700, when he retired from public life at the age of eighty years.

The late Dr. Henry E. Turner of Newport wrote of the Deputy Governor as follows: "As judged in the light of his period by those who knew, there can be no doubt that whatever was done by John Greene was done in good faith; and no name is better entitled than his to the respect and gratitude of every true Rhode Islander."

"No man has been more honored in public life. That he received the abuse of some of his contemporaries is not to his discredit, as the high estimation in which he was held by those who knew him best is evidenced by his continued election to places of honor and trust, till in his old age he sought rest from public life and engaged the remainder of his days in quietness on the lovely borders of Narragansett Bay" (G. S. G.).

The Deputy Governor died in Warwick, November 27, 1708, and was buried on the eastern part of his homestead farm (now "Spring Green"), where his original headstone is in good condition.

Major John inherited from his father, by will dated December 28, 1658, and proved January 7, 1659, "that neck of land called Occupasuetuxet and all meadows that belong thereto with a little island adjoining, all of which was purchased of Miantonomi on Oct. 1, 1642"; also, all his father's right in the purchase of Providence Plantations. The "home-lot" which formerly belonged to his step-mother, Alice (Daniels) Greene, he sold after his father's death. Major John left a large estate to his posterity. His will, made December 20, 1706, was proved November 27, 1708, his wife being made executrix (see Appendix I.). He married, about 1648, Anne, daughter of William and Audrey (—) Almy of Portsmouth, R. I., born in England about 1627. William Almy is said to have come to America with Winthrop, but soon returned to England for his family, embarking with them in the Abigail from London in 1635 for New England. He first settled at Lynn, Mass., but early removed to Sandwich, where he had a grant of land. In 1642 he sold his place to Edmund Freeman and removed to Portsmouth, R. I., where he had a grant of land in 1644. He appears to have been a man of considerable influence and is said to have been a member of the Society of Friends. He was born in 1601 and died in 1676. His will, dated February 1676, was proved April 23, 1677, in which he mentions his "daughter Anne," who married John Greene, Deputy Governor of Rhode Island.

Anne (Almy) Greene died May 6, 1709, in her eighty-second year, about six months after her illustrious husband, and was buried beside him on the farm. Several of their descendants, whose headstones are well preserved, are buried near them. The tombstones of Major John Greene and his wife, said to have been made in England, bear similar workmanship to those in the Newport Cemetery which were made in that country. The inscriptions are as follows:

(Copied from Warwick, R. I., records, 1st Book of Marriages, commenced by James Greene (see No. 5), Town Clerk, May 6, 1664.)

3. PETER<sup>2</sup> GREENE of Warwick (John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Salisbury, England, and baptized at St. Thomas's Church, March 10, 1621-2. He came with his parents to New England in 1635. He inherited his father's homestead in Old Warwick, where he resided and where he died, February, 1659. By will he left the homestead to Peter, son of his brother, Deputy Governor John Greene. He married Mary, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth Gorton of Warwick (see below). Samuel Gorton, born 1592, at Gorton, near Manchester, England, where his family had been seated for generations, was one of the most prominent men of his time. He was a clothier in London, and emigrated to America, landing in Boston, March, 1637. He was leader of the pioneer settlers at Warwick, R. I., and, though sharply criticised and cruelly persecuted, it is written of him: "He was a man of great ability and individuality, of perfect sincerity, of strong pertinacity in his very peculiar views both of religion and politics; a man who had the courage of his convictions; and the stocks, the scourge and the prison, and even the overhanging shadow of the gallows could not make him deviate a hair's breadth from what he deemed to be right. . . . After the R. I. Charter was obtained he was one of the best and ablest citizens of the State, a sagacious counselor, a wise and able negotiator; he won the confidence of the red and white men alike, lived long in the land and died respected" (see The Providence Plantations for 250 Years, pp. 30-31). He was successively Magistrate, Corporator, Foreign Commissioner, Assemblyman, Judge, and Senator, and, in 1651, President or Governor. His death occurred December 10, 1677. He mentions in his will, "son-in-law John Sanford and his wife Mary." Mary (Gorton) Greene had no children by first marriage. She married (2), April 27, 1663, John Sanford, Attorney-General of Rhode Island, son of Lieutenant John and Elizabeth (Webb) Sanford of Portsmouth, R. I. They lived in Tiverton, where she died in 1688. (See will of Samuel Gorton, Appendix I.) She had by second marriage four children:

- Mary Sanford, born March 30, 1664, who married —.
 Eliphalet Sanford, born February 20, 1666.
 John Sanford, born June 18, 1672, married —.
 Samuel Sanford, born October 5, 1677.

John Sanford was General Treasurer, 1655-64; Commissioner, 1656-63; General Recorder for sixteen years, 1656-76, inclusive; Attorney-General for four years, 1663-71, inclusive; Deputy for sixteen years, 1664-86, inclusive; Assistant for three years, 1664-80; member of Andros's Council, December 22, 1686 (see note, p. 60). August 10, 1667, he enlisted in a troop of horse. He was born June 4, 1633, and died in 1687.

Deed of John Sanford of Portsmouth, and Mary his wife, July 7, 1672:

"To John Greene of Warwick all right in houses and lands &c in Warwick that was bequeathed to my wife Mary Sanford by her former husband Peter Greene by will." (See will of Peter<sup>2</sup> Greene, Appendix I.)

The wife of Samuel Gorton, the emigrant ancestor, has so often been recorded as Elizabeth that General Greene doubtless felt it safe to follow Savage and other prominent genealogists. But there is a deed among early Rhode Island records (Book 3, brass clasp, p. 613) in which Samuel Gorton conveys his title to all the lands he received from Robert Cole, deceased, before he (Gorton) went to Shawomet. This was his first purchase of land in the Colony and it lay just outside the village of Providence. Said deed was made by Samuel Gorton and "wife Mary."

The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. xlv., gives an account of the bequest of "Mary Mayplet of London, widow," December 7, 1646, to her "daughter, Mary Gorton wife of Samuel being in New England" of "all the money which her said husband Samuel doth owe me and a breed of cattle which he hath of mine," which is conclusive evidence that his wife at this date was not Elizabeth.

In vol. xlvi. the will of "John Maplet, Doctor of Physicke" of the city of Bath, Somerset, dated April 16, 1670, contains the following: "I give and bequeath unto my dear sister Mistress Mary Gorton of New England, the sum of 20s. and to each of her children I give 10s. apiece." Dr. Maplet was eminent in letters as well as medicine, having been for a time the Principal of Worcester College. (See Samuel Gorton, First Settler of Rhode Island, by Dr. Lewis G. Janes, published by Preston & Rounds, Providence, R. I.; The Life and Times of Samuel Gorton with a Genealogy will soon be published by A. Gorton of Philadelphia, who has kindly contributed to the present work on the Gorton-Greene lines.)

4. RICHARD<sup>2</sup> GREENE (John<sup>1</sup>) was baptized at Salisbury, England, March 25, 1624. As we have no further record of him, he probably died young, before his parents emigrated to America.

5. JAMES<sup>2</sup> GREENE "of Potowomut" (John<sup>1</sup>), was baptized at St. Thomas's Church, Salisbury, England, June 21, 1626, and came with his parents to New England in 1635. He was made freeman of Warwick and Providence Plantations in 1647. He resided at Old Warwick on the main street on the southerly side, where the graveyard is now located in which he and some of his family are buried. He was on the "Roule of y<sup>e</sup> Freemen of y<sup>e</sup> Colonie of everie Town" in 1655, and was Town Clerk, May 16, 1661. He was "an excellent penman of the old English text."<sup>1</sup> He was a member of the General Assembly of the Colony, being Commissioner under the first charter, and Deputy and Assistant under the second (1663), for ten years, between 1660 and 1675. He was considered "a man of much practical sagacity." He does not appear to have been in public life after the Indian war (1675-6), when his house, with all others in Warwick, except the "Stone Castle," was burned to the ground. When the message from the General Assembly advising the people of Warwick of danger was received, he fled to Portsmouth, R. I., where the father of his second wife, John Anthony, resided. He remained for some years at "Hunting Swamp," but in 1684, having made purchases of Warwick land,<sup>2</sup> he removed to Potowomut, where was an ancient mill, and built his house on the hill near the west bank of the river, overlooking the beautiful lake which furnished the water power for the forge which his grandsons (sons of Jabez) established for making anchors and other forms of iron work. This became a notable industry in colonial times and in the early days of the republic. The interests of the forge "were enhanced by the revival of business after peace existed between England and her emancipated colonies, and this became the pioneer of the more extensive works on Pawtuxet river, near the western border of Warwick, known as 'the Forge.'" The place at Potowomut where James Greene resided until his death, was the birth-place of his great-grandson, the highly distinguished Major-General Nathanael Greene of the Revolutionary Army, and the residence of his descendants for more than two hundred years. He died "at his mansion in Potowomut." April 27, 1698, in the seventy-second year of his age, and was buried at the Old Warwick burial-ground, under an altar-tomb with the inscription still in a good state of preservation, on his original house lot of six acres granted by the proprietors of Warwick, 1647, when he had attained his majority. This lot was located on the main street, the second lot north-easterly from the road leading to Warwick Neck. The burial-ground and lot descended to his eldest son, James, whose descendants have been buried there to the present generation. The estate in Old Warwick has within a few years been sold out of the Greene family, but they still retain ownership of this ancient and historic burying-ground located near the site of the "Stone Castle." In recent years much has been done to preserve the history of the family records, memorial stones having been erected by Rufus W. Greene and Benjamin Greene Arnold, containing records of the Greene ancestors dating back to John Greene of Salisbury, England. And thus they will be passed on to coming generations, who will gratefully appreciate the forethought which has preserved them, and the resting place of their ancestors.

He married (1), about 1658, Deliverance, daughter of Robert Potter (one of the early proprietors of Warwick, whose homestead adjoined his, and who was the ancestor of the Bishops Potter of New York and Pennsylvania), and his wife Isabel, who died from exposure when the Massachusetts troops invaded Shawomet in 1643.

Deliverance (Potter) Greene, born 1637, died 1664, and he married (2), August 3, 1665, Elizabeth, daughter of John and Susanna Anthony of Portsmouth, R. I. She died in 1698.

(All but last date from Warwick Records.)

John Anthony, father of Elizabeth, second wife of James Greene, was the son of John Anthony, "an inn-keeper with other occupations," who came in the ship Hercules to New England, April 16, 1634, and settled at Portsmouth, R. I. He was made freeman in 1641, and in 1642 sold fifty acres of land which had been granted him at Newport. In 1644 had land grant at Portsmouth. He was appointed, May 25, same year, by the Court of Commissioners "to keep a house of entertainment." He was Corporal, Commissioner, and Deputy, and was ancestor of Hon. Henry B. Anthony, Governor of Rhode Island and United States Senator. He died July 28, 1675.

James<sup>2</sup> Greene's father, John<sup>1</sup> Greene, surgeon, by will leaves "to son James Greene" as follows: "I give unto my sonne James Greene my six aker Lott in y<sup>e</sup> necke called Warwick neck or Misshaomet together with my Great Lott and all my other Right in y<sup>e</sup> saide necke yet undivided either upland or meddow."

James<sup>2</sup> Greene, in his will dated May 27, 1697, proved May 25, 1698, gives to his "loving son James Greene the one half of all my right in the farm land, commonly called and known by the name of farm lands undivided with half the meadow already divided and ioning to the land of Coweset lying in the Grand Purchase" (Appendix I.).

6. THOMAS<sup>2</sup> GREENE, of "Stone Castle" (John<sup>1</sup>), was born and baptized at Salisbury, County Wilts, England, June 4, 1628, and came with his parents to New England in 1635. A few years after their settlement at Warwick, and soon after the organization of the government (1648), he had a home lot assigned to him. On September 30, 1660, one year after his marriage, he purchased of his brother-in-law, James Sweet, a stone house at Old Warwick, which had been built at the earliest settlement of the town, situated on the north side of "The Street" and nearly opposite the lane which leads to the only wharf in Warwick Cove. This was the only stone dwelling-house south of Providence on the mainland, and here he and his posterity resided until 1795, when, to the regret of many, the house was replaced by a wooden structure, now (1898) in good condition. During King Philip's War, on the 13th of March, 1675-6, the General Assembly of the Colony, in session at Newport, sent a message to the people of Warwick, stating that the Colony was unable to defend them and advising them to seek safety at the island of Rhode Island, promising them hospitality from the inhabitants of Newport and Portsmouth. Many removed to the island, and on the night of March 16th and 17th every house in Warwick was burned, excepting Thomas Greene's "Stone Castle," where he and his wife and six children, with some of his friends and neighbors, remained in safety, and it thus became the garrison house during the war. John Wickes only, a neighbor who sought its shelter, was slain. He went out in the morning after the burning of the town to look for his cattle, against the advice of his friends, thinking the "Indians who had been so friendly to him would not harm him," but he was killed and quartered by a marauding party of Indians, and his head set on a pole. His remains were brought in as they were found and buried in three separate graves, marked with rough stones, near the "Stone Castle." In 1880, Benjamin Greene Arnold, a descendant of the fifth generation from Thomas Greene and of the sixth from John Wickes, erected a headstone to his memory (see Appendix I.). The family residing at the stone house and their descendants were known thereafter as the "Stone Castle Greenes."

Thomas Greene was Commissioner, 1662: Deputy for ten years (1667-84) and Assistant for five years (1678-85). He died June 5, 1717, and with five generations of descendants lies buried near the original site of his dwelling. He left the homestead to his son Richard, and land at Coweset to the other children (Appendix I.). He married, June 30, 1659, Elizabeth, daughter of Rufus and Margaret Barton of Old Warwick, born 1637, died August 20, 1693 (see No. 27).

Rufus Barton, father of Elizabeth, came to Portsmouth, R. I., about 1640, to escape persecution from the Dutch at New Amsterdam, he being a Quaker. He received a grant of land at Portsmouth, 1641. He probably went to Warwick soon after the purchase of Shawomet, but was not one of the original purchasers. He was town magistrate and in 1648 was sent with a special message to the government of Massachusetts Bay. On arriving at Dedham and learning that the General Court at Boston had adjourned, he wrote a letter to Governor Winthrop (see Austin's Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island, p. 250). His death occurred soon after his return (1648). As he died intestate, the Town Council made an order for the distribution of his estate, but when his only son, Benjamin, applied to the Council eighteen years after, for protection of his property, this will or order could not be found and another will was substituted as nearly like the original as could be remembered. It mentions "daughters Elizabeth and Phebe £30 each at the age of 18 or day of marriage."

CHILDREN:

32. ELIZABETH, born July 12, 1660. No further record.
33. THOMAS, born August 14, 1662, married Anne Greene.
34. BENJAMIN, born January 10, 1665-6, married Susannah Holden.
35. RICHARD, born March 5, 1666-7, married Mary Carder.
36. WELTHYAN, born January 23, 1669-70, married Thomas Fry.

37. RUFUS, born January 6, 1672-3, died at Surinam, S. A.
 38. NATHANIEL, born April 10, 1679, married Anne Gould.

With the exception of this last child this was the record of the family at the burning of Warwick, 1676.

In reference to the death of John Wickes, General George S. Greene wrote to a relative:

"He was killed by Indians when all the houses in the town were burned, excepting Thomas Greene's Stone Castle (an ordinary stone house), on the night of the 16th and 17th of March, 1675. On the morning of the 17th of March he went out (contrary to the advice of his friends, and was killed and quartered by the Indians and his remains were brought in at three several times and buried in three graves near the old Stone Castle. A few years since I had erected there at the charge of our cousin, Benjamin Greene Arnold, a headstone to his memory over the graves. The memory of the location had been well preserved."

7. JONE<sup>s</sup> GREENE (John<sup>s</sup>) was baptized at St. Thomas's Church, Salisbury, England, October 3, 1630. She came with her parents to New England, 1635. She married John Hade (or Haden), probably the son of William Hade, "admitted freeman 7th of 7th mo. 1640" (Portsmouth, R. I., Records). John Hade occurs in Warwick Records, July 3, 1651. "John Hayden granted a township right and his voate," March 8, 1652.

John<sup>s</sup> Greene left by will, dated December 8, 1658, to his grandchild, Ann Hade (Haden?), "one two yeare ould heifer and one yearlinge calf to be disposed of by her uncle James Greene for her profit as he shall see best." Peter Greene, in his will, 1659, also mentions "cousin [i. e., niece] Ann Hade." This is the only child of whom we have record, and as she must have been quite young at this date (1658) and no further mention is made of her name, she probably died early.

CHILD:

39. ANN HADE — mentioned only as above.

8. MARY<sup>s</sup> GREENE (John<sup>s</sup>) was baptized (as were all the children of John Greene, surgeon) at St. Thomas's Church, Salisbury, England, May 19, 1633. She came to New England with her parents in 1635. She married, about 1654, James Sweet, probably born in Wales, 1622, came to America about 1630 with his parents, was a resident of Portsmouth, 1681; Coweset, Warwick, 1683, and Kingstown, 1686. He was progenitor of the celebrated natural "bone-setters" who bore that name, and was the son of John and Mary Sweet, who, as "widow of John," who died at their home in Salem, Mass., in 1637, was assigned land in Providence, R. I., in 1637, she having removed there soon after her husband's death. In 1638 she married (2) Rev. Ezekiel Holliman of Warwick, R. I., one of the original purchasers. James Sweet was made freeman, 1655, and settled on Ridge Hill, N. Kingstown; he was Commissioner from Warwick, 1653-58-59; jurymen, 1656. In 1660 (September 30th), he sold the lot granted him at Warwick with the house thereon (afterwards known as "Stone Castle") to Thomas Greene<sup>2</sup> (John'). He was three times married, and died in 1695 in the seventy-third year of his age.

CHILDREN BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

40. PHILIP SWEET, of Coweset and Providence, born July 15, 1655. His father, November 8, 1686, deeded to his "eldest son Philip of Prudence Island, all right of lands in Providence, as my father John Sweet deceased, was one of the first purchasers thereof." Philip married Elizabeth ——. They gave by deed, April 8, 1693, one half of farm at Coweset to Thomas Remington of Prudence.

48. SYLVESTER SWEET, born March 1, 1674, of Prudence Island, married Sarah Tew, daughter of Deputy-Governor Henry Tew. They had a son, Sylvester, born 1719, who married Mary Johnson. (From Family Records.)

THIRD GENERATION.

9. DEBORAH<sup>s</sup> GREENE (John,<sup>s</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, R. I., August 10, 1649. She married, about 1669, William Torrey, born in England, 1638 (?), son of Captain William Torrey of Weymouth, Mass., who was the great-great-grandson of William Torrey of Combe St. Nicholas, County Somerset, England. He was an intimate friend of Edward Rawson, Secretary of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, who had married Rachel Perne, a cousin of his wife's father, Deputy-Governor John Greene,—Rachel Perne's mother being the sister of John Greene, surgeon,—[see letter to Secretary Rawson, Appendix II., and also will of Rachel (Greene) Perne, Appendix I.]. William Torrey's brother, Rev. Samuel Torrey, married Mary, daughter of Secretary Rawson.

In the early history of Weymouth, Mass., a large family of Greens were there settled, and a strip of land is still known as "Green's Neck," but they were not of the same lineage as the Rhode Island Greens. William Torrey, who married Deborah Greene of Rhode Island, owned a farm which in 1730 was divided into two equal parts, one of which was assigned to his son Philip, who had acquired the rights of some of his brothers and sisters. His portion of the farm remained in possession of three successive generations bearing the name of Philip Torrey, and for many years after was retained by their descendants. William Torrey's will is on record at Boston Suffolk Probate Records, vol. xx., p. 206). He left all his property to his children after making provision for the support of his "wife Deborah." She also received a legacy of "16£ in current New England money" from her father, Deputy-Governor John Greene.

William Torrey died January 11, 1718, and his wife died at Weymouth, February 8, 1729, where both were buried. (Much of the above information is kindly contributed by H. A. Newton, Esq., of Weymouth, Mass.)

10. JOHN<sup>3</sup> GREENE (John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born at Warwick, R. I., June 6, 1651, and died before February 1, 1686, as at that date his father, the Deputy-Governor, made a deed guaranteeing property to grantees (Warwick Records), putting in some words omitted by his son John in a deed made by him, February 23, 1681-2, in which deed he stated that his son was "deceased." There is no record or evidence of his marriage.

Extract from letter of H. Rousmanière of Warwick, R. I., addressed to General George Sears Greene, dated Providence, December 13, 1837:

" . . . The fact you mentioned about Dept.-Gov. John Greene's indenture for confirming a certain tract of land to the heirs and assigns of the grantee to whom his deceased son had conveyed it without a guarantee to said heirs and assigns, is positive proof that the son left no heirs but his father."

II. WILLIAM<sup>3</sup> GREENE "of Old Warwick" (John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Occupasuetuxet, March (or December) 6, 1652. His father, John Greene, later the Deputy-Governor of Rhode Island, being a large land-owner and political leader, he was influenced like many of the sons of prominent families in the Colony, to seek a knowledge of men and of commerce in the merchant marine service. In this service many fell a sacrifice to duty and enterprise, and those who were successful, early retired to farming or mercantile life at home, with a knowledge of commerce in which the principal landholders and merchants were alike interested, which led to success and prosperity.

William Greene died at the early age of twenty-six years, in 1678, a victim to the severity of the marine service and the malarial climate into which the commerce of the Colony carried him. On his return he was too weak to be taken to his home at Warwick, and died at Newport, R. I. He was buried at the Easton burial-ground, Middletown, R. I., beside his wife's parents. His nuncupative will was taken by Thomas Starr and Em. Peperday and by them sworn to before John Cranston, Governor, and James Barker, Deputy-Governor, at Newport, January 16, 1678. It was admitted to probate at Warwick, March 12, 1678-9.

William Greene married, December 17, 1674, Mary, daughter of John and Mary (Williams) Sayles (see No. 13), granddaughter of the illustrious pioneer, Roger Williams.

CHILD:

57. MARY, born July 8, 1677, married Edward Dyre.

Mary (Sayles) Greene, widow of William, married (2), October 12, 1680, John Holmes of Newport (son of Rev. Obadiah Holmes, whose first wife was Frances, daughter of Captain Randall and Frances (Dungan) Holden.

12. (Captain) PETER<sup>3</sup> GREENE "of Conimicut" (John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, February 4, 1654. Freeman, April 30, 1678; Deputy from Warwick to General Assembly for ten years. He was Captain of the Train Band, 1697, and held responsible town offices. He inherited by will from his uncle, Peter Greene (see Appendix I.), the homestead of his grandfather, John Greene, surgeon, in the eastern part of Old Warwick, near Conimicut Point, where he resided; and also by will of his father, Coweset lands, etc. (see will, Deputy-Governor John Greene, Appendix I.). About the time that he retired from public life he made his will, wherein he shows his devotion to his family, and particularly to his afflicted wife: "Forasmuch as it has pleased God to visit my well beloved wife Elizabeth with a distemper for many years, whereby she is not in her right senses; therefore, for the tender love I have for her, I appoint that my executors shall carefully provide for her comfort." The will, dated May 14, 1718, was proved September 2, 1723 (see Appendix I.).

He married, December 16, 1680, Elizabeth, daughter of Stephen and Sarah (Smith) Arnold of Pawtuxet, R. I., born November 2, 1659; died June 5, 1728. He died August 12, 1723.

Stephen Arnold, father of Elizabeth, was son of William and Christian (Peak) Arnold, and grandson of Richard Arnold of Dorsetshire, England, who, it is claimed, belonged to that ancient family of Arnold who had their origin among the princes of Wales (Somerby's Genealogy of the Arnold Family). Stephen came with his father from Cheselbourne, County Dorset, England, to New England in 1635, and, after residing some time in Providence, R. I., removed to Pawtuxet, where, and at other places in the State, he had large landed property, a portion of which, called "The Coweset purchase," he divided among his sons. He was prominent in public affairs and filled some important positions in the Colony. He was Deputy from Warwick, 1664-1690; (not Deputy-Governor of Rhode Island, as has been stated) and Assistant, 1672-98. He died November 15, 1699. (See will of Stephen Arnold, senior, Appendix I.)

of a freeman of the colony until the close of his varied career in 1744, he was foremost in the race of ambition, of politics and business." He was Deputy to the General Assembly, 1696, and for several succeeding years (thirteen terms), Assistant (see note, p. 77) for nine years, and Speaker of the House of Deputies, 1727-28. He is described in the language of his time, as "a man of much strength of will and forceful in the expression of his thoughts. He was of muscular frame, somewhat blunt of speech, but hospitable, open handed, fond of all active amusements, and the picture of a typical English squire." Mr. Rousmanière wrote of him: "He grappled with events as a politician and fought for power like a partisan soldier—with him success was principle and defeat was remorse"; but he made himself practically a man of distinction. He was elected "Major for the Main" for all that part of the State exclusive of the islands, on May 4, 1715, which office he held for several years. On March 23, 1696-7, he, with Mr. Thomas Greene, Captain Peter Greene, Mr. Job Greene, and Mr. John Warner (all Deputies from Warwick), protested against the act passed (as did his father, the Deputy-Governor) transferring to Providence that part of Warwick lying between the north line of the Shawomet Purchase and Pawtuxet River. Warwick resisted this transfer and finally prevailed, retaining her territory as limited by purchase and by her town charter. "Previous to 1700 Major Job Greene laid the foundation for Centreville, R. I., by building a mill and a house and cultivating his large farms [for inheritance of lands, see will of his father, Deputy-Governor John Greene, Appendix I.]. He owned a very large tract of fine agricultural land in this vicinity, on which he placed several tenants, the country being then in a transition state from the ruin and misery that grew out of the recent Indian wars"; and it was said, "The person who struck the first blow for the welfare of this village, was Major Job Greene." He married, January 22, 1684, Phebe, sister of his brother William's wife, daughter of John and Mary (Williams) Sayles, and granddaughter of Roger Williams, born about 1658, died 1744. Her father, John Sayles of Providence, was Assistant, 1653-55-57-79; Commissioner, 1655-59; Town Clerk, 1655-57; Warden, 1658; Town Treasurer, 1659-60; Deputy, 1669-71, 1674-76-77-78; and member of Town Council, 1670-71. He was buried at Easton burial-ground, Middletown, R. I., near Newport.

Major Job Greene died July 6, 1745, in his eighty-ninth year, and was buried in the family burial-ground on his estate. His will, dated July 6, 1744, was proved September 23, 1745. His large property was left to his children. He was the grandfather of Colonel Christopher Greene of the Revolutionary Army.

To his other children he distributed his Natick lands, farms in Tunkhill and in Scituate and bills of credit and money. 14. PHILLIP<sup>3</sup> GREENE, daughter (John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), was born in Warwick, October 7, 1658. She married (1) Caleb Carr, son of Robert Carr of Newport, and nephew of Governor Caleb Carr of Rhode Island, the history of whose family is said to be as old as the Norman Conquest.<sup>1</sup> The two brothers came to New England on the ship Elizabeth Ann, which sailed from London, May 9, 1635. After residing a short time at Bristol they removed to Newport, R. I., where they accumulated considerable property. Robert was one of the original purchasers of the island of Conanicut in Narragansett Bay, which contained about six thousand acres. In 1681, having "determined on a voyage to New York and New Jersey," he made his will, dated April 20, 1681, which was proved October 4, 1681, for he died the same year. He left by will "to my eldest child Caleb Carr, all my land at Conanicut, alias Jamestown." Caleb and his wife Phillip Greene resided on this estate, where he died in 1690. His will, dated Jamestown, January 27, endorsed "1st of William K. of Gt. B." and proved in Newport, March

"To the Honored Governor, Deputy Governor and Assistants, being the General Council assembled at Newport March 3rd day 1689-90.

"The humble petition of Phillip Carr, widow and executrix of Caleb Carr of Jamestown late deceased, humbly showeth: That there being no Town Council in the Town of Jamestown, cannot therefore have my husband's will proved, and letters of administration given without making application to your Honors. "By order of the Governor and Council

"JOHN GREENE, Clerk."

<sup>2</sup> Charles Dickinson, freeman of Jamestown, 1695, and Deputy from Jamestown, 1696, undoubtedly married Phillip, widow of Caleb Carr of Jamestown, and daughter of Major John and Anne (Almy) Greene of Warwick. John Greene in his will (1706) gives a legacy to his daughter Phillip Dickinson's children, so that she must have died before that date.—G. S. G.

1708, leaves a legacy to her children: "to daughter Phillipp Dickinson's children 16£ to be improved till they are of age." Charles Dickinson was in Jamestown, R. I., December 4, 1695, when he was appointed on a committee "to make rates"; was made freeman August 21, 1696; Deputy to General Assembly at Providence, October 20, 1696. We have not the date of his marriage to Phillip (Greene) Carr. He was son of John Dickinson and his second wife Elizabeth, daughter of John Howland of the Mayflower. The following notes probably refer to their son John, but we find no record of any other child by Phillip Greene's second marriage.

"June 13, 1730, John Dickinson of Newport purchased land in Coweset, Warwick, of William Greene<sup>4</sup> his cousin" (Samuel,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), and also on same date "of Benjamin son of Samuel 100 acres," etc. Samuel<sup>3</sup> was brother of Phillip (Greene) Carr. In 1740 John Dickinson sold land to his kinsman, Gov. Wm. Greene, and seems to have left Warwick and we have no further trace of him. The above John, born 1699, married in Kingstown, 1718, Mary, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth Phillip. He died 1736, and his widow married Col. Thomas. (See Updike's History of Narragansett Church; Warwick Town Records for Dickinsons.)

15. RICHARD<sup>3</sup> GREENE "of Occupasuetuxet" (John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, February 8, 1660. He inherited and resided on the old homestead farm (see will, Deputy-Governor John Greene, Appendix I.). He was Deputy, 1699-1704; Assistant, 1704-1711, and died in office. His brother Job was elected to succeed him.<sup>1</sup> He was buried beside his parents on the homestead farm on the shores of the Bay. He married, February 16, 1692, Eleanor, daughter of John and Mary (Williams) Sayles and granddaughter of Roger Williams, who died March 11, 1714, in the forty-fourth year of her age. She was sister of Mary and Phebe Sayles, who married Richard's brothers, William and Job. His will, dated May 20, was proved July 2, 1711.

17. CATHARINE<sup>s</sup> GREENE (John<sup>s</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born August 8, 1665, at Occupasuetuxet, as were probably all of the children of Major John Greene. She married, about 1688, at Warwick, R. I., Charles, son of Captain Randall and Frances (Dungan) Holden of Old Warwick, born March 22, 1666. He was a farmer and resided at Natick, Warwick, on the north side of the Pawtuxet River. He was Deputy to the General Assembly from Warwick, 1710-16, and bore the title of "Lieutenant." His father, Randall Holden (in early records, "Houldon"), came from Salisbury, County Wilts, England. He was at Portsmouth, R. I., at the beginning of that plantation and witnessed the deed of sale of Aquidneck, or Rhode Island, on March 24, 1637-8, to Mr. William Coddington and his friends (as stated in the first volume of printed records), and was one of the nineteen associates who signed the first compact at Portsmouth, March 7, 1638. He was present at the General Meeting in that town in 1638, and was appointed Corporal and Marshal and assigned five acres of land. In 1642-3 he became one of the original proprietors of Warwick, and in 1644 he accompanied John Greene, senior, and Samuel Gorton to England to redress the wrongs of the Colony. He was Commissioner for nine years and a man of prominence and influence. (See Col. Rec., R. I.)

Lieutenant Charles Holden, on the maternal side, was great-grandson of Lewis Latham, born in England, 1570, died about 1670, Falconer to King Charles I. Lieutenant Holden died July 21, 1717. Will proved August 17, 1717.

His nephew, Dr. John Spencer, senior, was made freeman of Newport, October 9, 1668 (Colonial Records, vol. ii., p. 238), and was the first named of the grantees of East Greenwich, October 31, 1677. <sup>1</sup> John Spencer was doubtless a lineal descendant of the Spencers of Bedfordshire, England; possibly a brother of the emigrants, William, Thomas, Michael, and Gerrard, the first three names having been perpetuated in the family. (See Our New England Ancestors—"Spencer Family," by Henry Whittemore, 1900.)

Wequochaconet farms west of Apponaug. This land, drawn by or assigned to the pioneer, Samuel Gorton, original proprietor of the Shawomet Purchase, whose granddaughter he married, was purchased of his wife's uncle, Othniel Gorton. On April 13, 1702, he purchased of Jeremiah Westcott forty acres of land with the water power, fulling-mill, and land attached thereto at the southwest corner of the cross-roads at Apponaug, where he afterward removed and later collected material and made preparations for erecting a dwelling, but he died of smallpox, September 18, 1720, and it was left to his son Samuel to carry out his plans, he being owner of the farm, which belonged later to heirs of Jeffrey Greene, his descendants. He was a farmer as well as owner of the fulling-mill, and was cornet of a troop of horse in Providence County, in which Warwick was then included; was also Captain of the Train Band in Warwick; Deputy to the General Assembly; and Justice of the Peace. He was buried on his Wequochaconet farm, near the brook, and within one hundred feet of his former home. An altar-tomb was erected over his grave of rough stones laid in mortar without any top-stone, but in 18— this was substantially rebuilt and covered by a granite slab, with the inscription of his birth and death, by his great-great-grandsons, Hon. William Greene<sup>7</sup> (Ray<sup>6</sup>, Wm.<sup>5</sup>, Wm.<sup>4</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>); Major-General George Sears Greene<sup>7</sup> (Caleb<sup>6</sup>, Caleb<sup>5</sup>, Samuel<sup>4</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>); Brigadier-General Alphonso Greene<sup>7</sup> (Jeffrey<sup>6</sup>, Charles<sup>5</sup>, Samuel<sup>4</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>). Samuel Greene died intestate. Inventory, dated November 9, 1720, £3539 18s. 8d. (see Appendix I.). He married, January 24, 1694-5, Mary, daughter of Captain Benjamin and Sarah (Carder) Gorton, and granddaughter of Samuel Gorton, the famous pioneer of Warwick, born October 31, 1673, died January, 1731-2.

20. (Captain) JAMES<sup>3</sup> GREENE "of Nassauket" (James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born June 1, 1659. He was admitted freeman of the Colony on June 26, 1683, when twenty-four years of age. In October, 1685, he joined with others in a petition to the General Assembly for settling a plantation in the Narragansett and the Niantic countries. On May 5, 1696, he was Deputy from Warwick, and November 14, 1711, he was allowed the use of £300 bills of credit for four years free of interest, he paying for printing and signing the same, for nine months' service and expenses in accompanying his uncle, Major John Greene, Agent of the Colony in 1668 to England.

He resided at Nassauket, Warwick, where he built a house in 1687 which was still standing (1887). He married, January 29, 1688-9, Mary, daughter of Captain John and Margaret Fones of Newport, Jamestown, and Kingstown. Captain Fones, one of the prominent planters of Kingstown (called Rochester during Andros's administration), was a member of the court-martial at Newport for trial of Indians, August 24, 1676; was Deputy, 1679-80-81. On May 26, 1686, he was appointed Justice of the Peace by President and Council then governing New England. He was Clerk of the Court of Commissioners, June 23, 1686, and Deputy and Assistant, 1698-99. Captain Fones died December 20, 1703, and left by will a legacy of land to his "daughter Mary." Captain James Greene died March 12, 1712, and was buried in his father's burial-ground at Old Warwick. His wife died March 20, 1721, aged fifty years.

His will was dated March 11, 1712, "widow Mary, administratrix," to whom he bequeathed half his farm; also, "I give and bequeath unto my eldest son Fones Greene the other half of my housing and farms where I now live, to enjoy after my decease, to him his heirs and assigns forever; and further my will is that in consideration of the above; said housing and farms which I have given to my son Fones, that he shall pay unto my son James Greene one hundred pound to be paid to him in two year after my decease but if my wife should marry, as is above promised then my will is, that my son Fones shall enjoy that part of my housing and farms which is given to her at the time of her marriage he paying the above sd fourty pound according as it is above promised; to be to him his heirs and assigns forever" (Appendix I.).

21. MARY<sup>8</sup> GREENE (James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, September 28, 1660. She married, February 19, 1684-5, James Reynolds, son of James of Aquidneck, born at North Kingstown, October 28, 1650. He was a grandson of William Reynolds, one of the original proprietors of Providence, 1636-7. He, with his father, James Reynolds, signed the petition to the King, July 29, 1679, that he would "put an end to these differences about the government," etc. He resided at Sand Hill, North Kingstown, R. I.

CHILDREN:

114. JAMES REYNOLDS, born February 20, 1685-6, Kingstown, R. I.
 115. JOHN REYNOLDS, born June 10, 1688, of Sand Hill, North Kingstown. [This John is probably an error and the name is misplaced. John, son of Henry Reynolds, who married Sarah Greene (see below), was doubtless the one intended, his birth being June 10, 1688, and whose sister, Sarah, was the next child, both being mentioned together in the will of their grandfather, James Reynolds. Austin, in Rhode Island Genealogical Dictionary, gives James, Jr., and Mary (Greene) Reynolds but one child, James, which is probably correct.]

Another account gives "Jane [or Joan?], born 1690, and another" as children of James.

James Reynolds, married (2) Joanna —. The date of the marriage is not given, and probably the children last mentioned were of this marriage and died young, as we find no other mention of them. "Mar. 2, 1699—he and his wife Joanna were witnesses to a deed from James Reynolds senior to his son Henry."

In a letter from General Geo. S. Greene to a Greene descendant, which bears the date, Morristown, N. J., June 17, 1892, he states: "A fragment of a will in the North Kingstown Records at Wickford of James Reynolds, dated 15 October, 1692, mentions sons Joseph, Henry, James, and Francis [John, the eldest son, was killed in King Philip's War, 1675], grandson John Reynolds, granddaughter Sarah Reynolds, daughter Deborah Sweet, and my . . . nry (probably his son-in-law, Henry Nichols)." The date of this will is several years earlier than that of the deed to his son Henry, above referred to, but the will may not have been probated till after March 2, 1699.

- 124. ELISHA REYNOLDS, born 1706, received £50 when twenty-one years of age by his father's will, dated April 28, 1716 (on file).

From East Greenwich Records we learn that an agreement was made April 28, 1716, before the Council in East Greenwich, between Sarah, widow of Henry Reynolds, and her eldest son Henry, heir-at-law, in regard to the use of her husband's new house in lieu of dower, etc. "Should she marry, to have only the thirds of the yearly income of her husband's estate." Also mentions portion assigned to all the above children of Henry and Sarah (see Appendix I.).

24. PETER<sup>s</sup> GREENE "of Coweset" (James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born August 25, 1666. He lived on his farm at Warwick. He was admitted freeman, April 30, 1687. He married, February 12, 1695, Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. Ebenezer and Mary (Thurston) Slocum of Conanicut (Jamestown), born January 1, 1677, died June 5, 1728. She was sister of his brother David's wife (see No. 28). He was drowned at Pawtucket Falls in 1708, and his widow Elizabeth was appointed administratrix of his estate by the Court of Probate of Warwick, November 16, 1708.

Peter Greene and Elizabeth, his wife, gave by deed, March 15, 1702-3, "to Father-in-law Ebenezer Slocum of Jamestown 90 acres of land in Coweset, part of said Peter Greene's Coweset Farm No. 13, on which his dwelling house stands; bounded East by a highway South by a highway West by — of John Greene, North by a swamp; also half of my undivided land above what my father Greene gave me by will."

(One record gives another child, SUSANNAH, born May 21, 1707, but no further information.)

The Slocum family came from Somersetshire, England. The American ancestor of the Rhode Island family was Giles Slocum of Portsmouth, who with his wife was early identified with the Society of Friends. In his will, 1681, he left a bequest to his "Loving Friends the people of God called Quakers." "Joan the wife of old Giles she Dyed at Portsmouth the 31st of 6th mo 1679." Giles Slocum died in 1682.

25. ELIZABETH<sup>3</sup> GREENE (James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born October 17, 1668. He was admitted freeman of Warwick, May 5, 1696. He was a Quaker and a meeting of the Society of Friends is recorded as held at his house, December 3, 1699. He inherited also the Forge at Potowomut, where his six sons and his grandchildren carried on the successful industry of manufacturing anchors and other iron work as late as 1820. Jabez was grandfather of the distinguished Major-General Nathanael Greene. He married (1), March 17, 1697-8, Mary, daughter of Benjamin and Susannah (Gorton) Barton and granddaughter of the Warwick pioneer, Samuel Gorton. Her father, Benjamin Barton, brother of Elizabeth, who married Thomas<sup>s</sup> Greene (John<sup>1</sup>), was son of Rufus Barton, member of the first Town Council organized at Warwick, who died in 1648, and who left a legacy of £30 by will made by Town Council (see Austin's Genealogical Dictionary, p. 250) "to Benjamin son and heir at the age of 21 years" (see No. 6). 67. DEBORAH <sup>4</sup> GREENE (Job <sup>3</sup>, John <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, February 28, 1689. She married, November 22, 1725 (2d wife), Captain Simon <sup>3</sup> Ray of New Shoreham, Block Island, born April 9, 1672. He was son of Simon <sup>2</sup> (who was lame and blind, but lived to the great age of 101 years) and Mary (Thomas) Ray of Braintree, Mass., and grandson of Simon Ray of Braintree, County Essex, England. On the maternal side he was grandson of Captain Nathaniel Thomas of Marshfield, Mass., who was commissioned Ensign of the Marshfield company of colonial troops, commanded by Captain Miles Standish, and who also served as Captain in the expedition against the Pequots in 1645. His father, William Thomas of Marshfield, the great-grandfather of Captain Simon Ray, gave the site for the first meeting-house and burying-ground at that town, and it was his estate at Marshfield (owned and lived on by his descendants for many years) that afterward became the home of Hon. Daniel Webster. Captain Simon Ray had buried all his sons by his first marriage, and his only daughter lived in Nova Scotia when he married his second wife, Deborah Greene, in her thirty-seventh year. He had been a widower for twenty-one years. He was Deputy from New Shoreham for twenty-one years. In 1723 the Assembly ordered that "123£ be paid to him for the use of New Shoreham to assist them in rebuilding their pier." He and four others were appointed a committee by the Assembly in 1734 "to procure materials for building a pier at Block Island and making a harbor there," and in August, 1735, he and Peter Ball were appointed "to improve the 1200£ allowed to build a pier at Block Island or to repair the old one." He freed three negroes in 1726 who had been brought up with him from their infancy, said freedom "to take effect on the death of himself and wife." He died March 19, 1755, and was buried in the town burial-ground. His epitaph describes him as "filling the most important offices with honor to himself and advantage to his country," and declares that he was "a lover of learning, justice and benevolence, ever attentive to the interests of this island" (see Appendix III.; also Austin's Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island, p. 160). His will, dated October 11, 1737, was proved March 31, 1755. Inventory, £7468 1s. 5d. His widow, Deborah, refused the executorship of his estate, requesting that her son-in-law, Samuel Ward, be appointed administrator. She died December 11, 1763, in her seventy-fifth year. Buried on Governor Wm. Greene's farm.

Will of Deborah (Greene) Ray, January 14, 1762, proved March 12, 1764:

"To daughter Judith Hubbard a Lot of land in Scituate R. I. &c &c. given me by my father [Job Greene] and one fourth part of all my wrought silver and silver money and  $\frac{1}{4}$  of all due me by bond or otherwise; to daughter Anne Ward  $\frac{1}{4}$  part of ditto; to daughter Catharine Greene  $\frac{1}{4}$  part of do; to grandchildren Simon Ray Littlefield, Wm. Littlefield, Catharine Littlefield, Phebe Littlefield and Anne Littlefield  $\frac{1}{4}$  part of do, when 18 or at time of marriage; to granddaughter Deborah Hubbard my bed and all belonging to it. To granddaughter Anne Littlefield a silk gown equal to what her mother had or money to purchase one when 18 or at marriage. To son-in-law William Greene all the rest of personal estate and he is appointed executor" (Warwick Records, Wills, III., p. 142).

Simon Ray was first married, January 17, 1695, to Judith, daughter of Oliver and Hannah (Raymond) Mainwaring. The children by this marriage were: Simon, born January 26, 1697; Gideon, born November 17, 1698; Nathaniel, born January 3, 1700; Mary, born December 21, 1702 (see letter of Catharine Ray, Appendix II.).

70. CHRISTOPHER<sup>4</sup> GREENE "of Warwick" (Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born March 9, 1696, at Occupasuetuxet, Warwick. He married, August 20, 1721, Elizabeth Denmark of Bristol, R. I. Intentions of marriage published August 10, 1721. It is supposed that his widow married (2) Richard Gill of Bristol. The will of Major Job Greene, dated 1757, mentions "son Daniel to have the silver cup which was his brother Christopher's." Christopher died before this will was made, and it is supposed, as his family was not mentioned, that he left no surviving children.

71. DANIEL<sup>4</sup> GREENE (Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), was born at Warwick, February 20, 1698. He was married (1), November 11, 1731, by Simon Ray, warden, to Temperance Harris of New Shoreham. She died March 28, 1732. He married (2), 1741 (intentions of marriage recorded, Bristol, R. I., November 21, 1741), Mrs. Bethiah (Howland) Davis, widow of Simon Davis of Bristol, and the great-granddaughter of John Howland of the Mayflower. She was formerly the wife of Nicholas Bragg (born May 23, 1696, son of Henry and Elizabeth Bragg), to whom she was married May 19, 1725. Her son, Nicholas Bragg, Jr., married Sarah Greene, born September 4, 1736, daughter of Benjamin<sup>4</sup> and Ann (Hoxsie) Greene (No. 378). Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, second cousin of Daniel Greene, was son of Jabez<sup>3</sup> (James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>). Daniel Greene died November 24, 1797.

From Bristol Town Records:

"Bethia Howland and Nicholas Bragg married by Rev. John Usher, May 19, 1725."

"Mrs. Bethia Bragg and Simon Davis married by Rev. John Usher, Aug. 29, 1733."

"Intentions of marriage; Daniel Greene and Bethiah Davis, Nov. 21, 1741."

CHILD BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

246. TEMPERANCE, born March 13, 1733, married Captain Job Pierce.

CHILD BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

247. DEBORAH, born May 24, 1745.

The home of Daniel Greene is thus described by Henry Rousmanière: "So halting had been the march of enterprise that but three houses had been erected at Centreville from 1695 to 1775. In one of them, a long, low structure, lived Daniel, son of [Major] Job Greene. Its situation was very near the dwelling-place of Elder Jonathan Brayton. Daniel, like all his father's family, was a violent 'liberty man.' When the English government laid a tax on windows he proudly resolved to foil the scheme; he removed all the glass lights from his house and substituted coarse wooden shutters.

"He died November 24, 1798-9, about one hundred years old. Had he survived thirteen months more he would have flourished in three centuries" (Providence Journal, May 31, 1859, "Letters from the Pawtuxet").

Major Job Greene, father of Daniel, transferred to him, in 1726, over 400 acres of land on the east side of the Pawtuxet. Upon this estate Daniel lived for many years, bequeathing it to his grandnephew, Christopher Greene, son of the gallant Colonel Christopher of the Revolutionary army (see No. 670).

73. CATHARINE + GREENE (Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, March 17, 1701. She married (2d wife), April 27, 1746, Major James Brown of Newport and later of Scituate, where they resided. He was son of James and Elizabeth (Carr) Brown and grandson of Rev. Chad Brown of Providence, R. I., who was the first settled pastor of the first Baptist church. Major James Brown was Deputy for nine years, between 1706 and 1715; Justice of the Peace, 1708; Major for the Island, 1711-13; Assistant nine years, between 1715 and 1723. He died in 1756. His will, dated December 19, 1754, was proved November 27, 1756. No children. (See Austin's Geneal. Dict. R. I., p. 261.)

Major Brown was first married to Anne Clarke and had five children: James, John, Clarke, Hope, and Thomas. His widow, Catharine Greene, married (2) John Mason, who is mentioned in a deed by James and John Brown (sons of Major Brown and his first wife, Anne) as their "step-father." The brothers James and John Brown married sisters, Anne and Dorothy Noyes.

74. (Judge) PHILIP <sup>4</sup> GREENE "of Occupasuetuxet" (Job <sup>3</sup>, John <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born at the old Pastuxet home, Old Warwick, inherited from his father, Major Job, on March 15, 1705. He was a leading man in all town affairs and was for some years Town Clerk. He was Assistant and Deputy in the General Assembly, and for a period of twenty-five years was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. His home was the centre of the social and political life of the town.

Mr. Henry Rousmanière, in his "Letters from the Pawtuxet," wrote of Judge Greene: "In his early manhood his figure was noble and imposing, his voice loud but pleasant, and his address good-humored but commanding. At the head of a stormy assemblage, when men of honest hearts but weak nerves would falter and fail, he shone pre-eminently; his voice rose like the swell of an organ, echoing in the souls of the most timid and rousing the brave to deeds of surpassing valor. In the Revolutionary struggles, when the Councils of the town of Warwick were perplexed sometimes with over-cautious advisers, his tones of indignation and scorn would scatter at once all doubt and fear." It is unfortunate that no record should have been made of his "free-flowing conversation" or his public oratory during his long and honorable career, for we are told that "such a transcript of his mind would have opened a pathway to the fount of Rhode Island history, and we should then have known how our ancestors talked at the fire-side as well as in public debate." Judge Greene was chosen Moderator, with very few exceptions, from 1757 to 1774, and against his inclination was re-elected 1776-77 and '79.

Like his father, Major Job Greene, he continued to the end to reside at the Old Warwick home, managing his mill and farms at Centreville by tenants or agents. It was said that "he was the master and not the servant of his wealth, preferring the esteem of his friends rather than gold and the approbation of his conscience more than either."

His estate was part of the large tract of land purchased of Miantonomi in 1643, and extended "from some distance within Coventry down to the forks of the Pawtuxet, including a portion of what is now the manufacturing village of Riverpoint." In 1761 Judge Philip divided much of his estate among his children and "made a gift to his son Christopher (Col.) of the western half of a tract of land of 458 acres including a two story house in which Caleb Hathaway then dwelt and which stood on the lot that Dr. Stephen Harris subsequently sold to William Tibbitts." This mansion was probably the most ancient in this vicinity. He also bequeathed much of his Riverpoint property to his grandsons Job and Jeremiah, sons of Colonel Christopher Greene.

After a long, brilliant, and useful career Judge Philip Greene died at the home of his birth on April 10, 1791, aged eighty-six years, and was laid to rest in the family burial-ground on the estate.

An attractive picture of the Judge and his life in the old historic home was recently given in the Providence Sunday Journal by one of his gifted descendants, who treads professionally in the footsteps of her honored ancestor, and is quoted in part below.

Judge Greene married, August 12, 1731, Elizabeth, daughter of John<sup>3</sup> and Sarah (Gorton) Wickes, born February 5, 1706, died December 23, 1776 (see No. 316, last note). They were the parents of the distinguished Colonel Christopher Greene of the Revolution, the gallant defender of Red Bank fort on the Delaware. It is said that while Judge Greene "rejoiced at his country's welfare as a citizen, yet, as a father, he never ceased to mourn that a part of the price paid for our national liberties was the blood of his favorite son."

The mother of Mrs. Greene was the daughter of Captain Benjamin<sup>2</sup> Gorton, who was son of the noted Samuel<sup>1</sup> Gorton, the pioneer of Warwick. The father, John<sup>3</sup> Wickes, was the son of John<sup>2</sup> and Rose (Townsend) Wickes, who removed from Rhode Island to Oyster Bay, L. I., and the grandson of John<sup>1</sup> Wickes, who came from Staines, Middlesex County, England, to America in the Hopewell in 1635, and who was one of the purchasers of Shawomet in 1643. He was constantly active in town and colonial affairs and was a member of the Town Council, Magistrate, Assistant, Commissioner, and Deputy for many years. It was this John Wickes who was slain by Indians, 1676-7, near the "Stone Castle." John<sup>3</sup>, his grandson and father of Elizabeth Greene, was a man of prominence and influence. He held the office of Town Clerk for twenty-eight years, Deputy for nine years, and Assistant for twenty-four years.

In his will, dated December, 1741, he mentions a legacy of "50£ each" to his "daughters Sarah, Rose and Elizabeth" (see No. 319; also, Wickes wills and letters, Appendix I. and II.).

Another Sarah (second child) should have been included. She was born September 10, 1733, died January 4, 1739.

AN HISTORIC RHODE ISLAND HOME ("PASTUXET")

"To the Greenses of Rhode Island this ancestral home can never be known by any other than its ancestral name, Occupasuetuxet, the Indian appellation of those level 'meadows through which the river flows,' shortened to 'Pastuxet' for convenience in conversation. It was the life-long home of a Chief Justice and an Associate Justice of a Rhode Island court, the home of a Speaker of the House of Deputies, and the birthplace of one of the most brilliant heroes of the Revolution, who laid down his life in his country's service. Many distinguished men have been entertained under its roof as the guests of successive generations of Greenses, Dr. Benjamin Franklin being perhaps the most famous.

"The house now known as 'Cole's' or 'Elm Lawn' was built by Deputy Governor John Greene for his son Job, who married Phebe Sayles, a granddaughter of Roger Williams. It was a most elegant house for its day. Professor Isham in his book, Early Rhode Island Houses, names it seventh in his chronological list of ancient houses still standing in the State. Consequently there are but four now standing which are older, as two have been recently destroyed. The old stone chimney is gone and a large addition, now itself old, was attached to the house, but the framing of the first story is intact and Professor Isham speaks of the elaborate hand-carved mouldings adorning the great beams which are still in place in the ceilings.

"The glory and hospitality of Pastuxet reached its height during the long life of Philip Greene, son of Job. Born in the old house in 1705, he died there full of honors in 1791; and he, too, lies in the family burying-ground. Like all his ancestors, he was Assistant and Deputy in the General Assembly, and in 1759 he became an Associate Justice of the Court of Common Pleas of Kent County, serving continuously on the bench of that court for twenty-five years, during eight of which, from 1776 to 1784, he was Chief Justice of the Court, holding that high office through all the troublous years of the Revolution. At that early period Rhode Island had no true Supreme Court. Five judges, one from each of the five towns, were chosen annually by the General Assembly to act as a 'Supreme Court of Judicature and Gaol Delivery,' and in 1768-9 Judge Philip Greene served as a Justice of that court. The Judge was of commanding presence and of able mind.

"Intensely patriotic, he gave largely of sheep, cattle, and money to support the army. And he gave a son, his eldest, the brilliant Christopher Greene, born at Pastuxet, 1737, Colonel Commandant of the Rhode Island brigade, killed in 1781 in a night attack upon his camp, over whose remains the State of New York has just raised a monument in the cemetery where they lie at Yorktown, N. Y. Colonel Christopher Greene, the 'Hero of Red Bank,' the conqueror of Count Donop, was a brave officer, a valiant fighter and a noble gentleman. His father, Judge Philip Greene, built a house for him when he became of age and gave to him a large tract of land where the villages of Centreville, Arctic, and Riverpoint now lie.

"The old house at Pastuxet was always filled with company in Judge Philip Greene's day. One of his nieces, who lived to the great age of one hundred and two, and who is well remembered by the writer, says when she got permission to go to visit at Uncle Philip's 'she felt as if she was going to heaven.' She said one could never go there without finding company. Whole boat-loads of the Block Island friends would sail up for a week's stay. Deborah Ray, wife of Simon Ray, of Block Island, the mother of the Catherine Ray who married Governor William Greene, and the grandmother of the piquant 'Kitty Littlefield,' who won the heart and hand of General Nathanael Greene, was the sister of Judge Philip Greene. All the famous men who gathered around Governor William Greene and General Nathanael Greene were the honored guests of Judge Greene under the roof of Pastuxet. Tradition at close range tells of the attentions of Dr. Benjamin Franklin to 'Betty,' the witty and haughty youngest daughter of Judge Philip, who would have none of him. Another notable relative and guest was Thomas Wickes, brother of Mrs. Philip Greene (nee Elizabeth Wickes), herself an intellectual woman. Updike, in his Narragansett Church, speaks of Thomas Wickes as 'a very remarkable man.'

"Assisting in this open-handed and open-hearted hospitality were the old family servants, the nine or ten slaves of Judge Greene, who had more slaves than any other landowner in the town of Warwick, save Jeremiah Lippitt, the Town Clerk, whose daughter Anne was the wife of Colonel Christopher Greene, and whose daughter Welthian married Judge Philip's only other son, William.

"This William Greene, the only surviving son of Judge Philip, became by his father's will the owner of Pastuxet. 'He possessed fine literary tastes, but in scholarship mathematics was his forte,' and the same was true of his soldier brother, Colonel Christopher Greene. In 1784, when, by reason of advancing years, Chief Justice Philip Greene declined to serve longer, this son, William, was elected an Associate Justice of the same Court of Common Pleas of Kent County, but, owing to delicate health, he was able to serve but one year.

"At the death of Judge William Greene in 1809 the old home became by will the property of his youngest son, Jeremiah Greene, all of whose eight children were born in the house. It was not in 1817, but in January, 1823, that the place was sold to Mr. Edward Cole's father, for the daughter of Jeremiah Greene who still survives was born in 1818 and her youngest brother in 1822 in the ancestral home. The writer's maternal grandmother, another daughter of Jeremiah Greene, as also born in the old house.

"As to the old elms that are justly the pride of the Cole family to-day, one was planted by Judge Philip himself and one was planted by Christopher, a son of Judge William Greene, as he himself told his niece, who still lives. Betty, daughter of Judge Philip, also set out an elm, which was blown down by a gale some years ago.

"It is pleasant to know that the spirit of hospitality clung so strongly to the old house, after the last of its Greene owners left it, and that after the royal feastings of reason and flow of soul of the days of the Greenes came another dynasty to continue the good old custom.

"May the ancient house long stand and may the day be not far distant when a suitable monument shall mark the spot near by, where rest the remains of so many loyal servants of the Colony and State of Rhode Island.

"MARY ANNE GREENE.

"PROVIDENCE, Sept. 6, 1901."

CHILDREN:

256. ELEANOR STAFFORD, born April 25, 1720.

257. RICHARD STAFFORD, born September 24, 1721.

258. THOMAS STAFFORD, born April 20, 1723.
259. SAMUEL STAFFORD, born December 6, 1724, died July 24, 1729.
260. ALMY STAFFORD, born April 10, 1728.
261. JOAB STAFFORD, born November 14, 1720, married Susannah ——.
262. He was Colonel in the Revolutionary army (see Stafford Family, pp. 5-8).
263. AUDREY STAFFORD, born February 8, 1731.
264. JOHN STAFFORD, born May 5, 1735.

Thomas<sup>1</sup> Stafford, the emigrant ancestor, was a millwright, and it is claimed that the mill he built at Plymouth was the first mill built in this country for grinding corn by water. He constructed another at Providence, near what is called Millbridge, and still another on his own place at Warwick, the site of which is still recognizable.

The Staffords claim descent from the noble house of Stafford, of whom the founder was Robert, appointed by William the Conqueror as governor of the Castle of Stafford. Rev. Dr. Thomas Stafford Drowne of Brooklyn, N. Y., is authority for the following: "I have the coat of arms brought over by the first Stafford, which is engraved on wood and the paper mounted on a panel about a foot square in frame. It is the regular Stafford arms and bears the inscription, 'The family of Stafford of Warwickshire, Eng.' It has been regularly transmitted from the first settler in Warwick here, bears marks of great age, and could never have been gotten up here" (Stafford Family, by Henry M. Benedict, p. 4).

85. ISABEL<sup>4</sup> GREENE (Richard<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Old Warwick, September 3, 1698. She married Samuel Low, of Barrington, R. I., son of Samuel and Rachel Low, born March 29, 1701, died 1749. His grandfather was Anthony Low (son of John Low, wheelwright, of Boston), whose "new, great house," as Roger Williams styled it, was burned by Indians at Swansea, 1675. Captain Benjamin Church, when negotiating with the Seaconet Indians in 1676, was disappointed in securing a vessel "until at last Mr. Anthony Low put into the harbour with a loaden vessel bound to the westward and being made acquainted with Mr. Church's case, told him he had so much kindness for him and was so pleased with the business that he was engaged in, that he would run the venture of his vessel and cargo to wait upon him." He brought him to Newport, where Mr. Church disembarked (Austin's Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island, p. 338).

Isabel Greene died in 1750, the year following her husband's death. She was a great-granddaughter of Roger Williams, whose daughter Mary married John Sayles, her maternal grandfather.

CHILDREN:

265. ANN LOW, died before 1749, married — Bosworth. Had three children:
Samuel, Lewis, and Joseph.
266. HOOKER LOW.
267. JOHN WILSON LOW.
268. SAMUEL LOW.

The children of Ann (Low) Bosworth received £500 (to be equally divided) from their grandfather Low's will, dated June 25, 1748.

86. ELEANOR<sup>4</sup> GREENE (Richard<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Occupasuetuxet, Warwick, February 19, 1702. She married (2d wife, see No. 36), March 16, 1740, Thomas Fry of East Greenwich, son of Deputy Governor Major Thomas and Welthian (Greene) Fry, born February 16, 1691, died 1782. She died August 19, 1764.

CHILDREN:

269. AMEY FRY, born November 23, 1741, died March 12, 1752.
270. RICHARD FRY, born March 19, 1743, married, August 14, 1768, Sarah, daughter of Major John Arnold of East Greenwich. They had five children:

88. MARY<sup>4</sup> GREENE (Richard<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Occupasuetuxet, February 16, 1706. She married John Godfrey, born January 31, 1703, son of Captain John and Elizabeth (Carr) Godfrey of Newport, and brother of Elizabeth Godfrey, who married Richard Greene<sup>4</sup> of "Stone Castle" (Richard<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>). His mother was a daughter of Governor Caleb Carr, of Rhode Island, and his second wife. His paternal grandfather was Captain John Godfrey, of Newport, mariner, who, in 1689, under the authority of the Colony of Rhode Island, was given command of an armed brigantine fitted out from that place and sent in pursuit of a French privateer which had invaded and plundered Block Island. This was presumably the John Godfrey, brother of Richard<sup>2</sup>, of Taunton, Mass., who "went to the Narragansett country" and of whom there is little record beyond the above (E. W. Pierce, Contributions Biog. and Gencl., p. 52). John Godfrey was commissioned Captain (Printed Colonial Records of Rhode Island, iii., p. 276). Some authority gives "John, mariner, son of Richard<sup>2</sup> and Mary (Richmond) Godfrey," but the son of Richard<sup>2</sup> was born 1691, married Joanna Gooding, and died 1758. John, mariner, of Newport, married Sarah, and died 1702, and was probably the brother and not son of Richard<sup>2</sup>, son of Richard<sup>1</sup> of Taunton. Captain John Godfrey, Jr., who married Mary Greene, died at St. Martin's, W. I., in 1752, in his forty-ninth year. Another account reads: "John Godfrey late of Providence, mariner, died about April 1, 1756, son Richard administrator (Providence Records).

In the "Old Burial Ground" at Newport, R. I., are several graves of the Godfrey family with inscriptions as follows: "Sacred to the memory of Anstis Godfrey widow of the late Capt. James Godfrey who departed this life May 29, 1830, aged 83 years." Adjoining are the graves of their daughters, which bear the following names: "Anstis-Almy-Godfrey, who died July 29, 1837"; "Mary Greene Godfrey, who died Dec. 11, 1841"; and "Abby S. Godfrey, who died Apr. 9, 1868." These names are suggestive of close relationship between Captain John and Captain James Godfrey, the first (Almy) being the name of the wife of John Greene (brother of Captain John Godfrey's wife), and the second of Captain John's wife. We have no proof at hand that Captain James Godfrey was son of Captain John, but the above is strong, conclusive evidence that he was, and his birth-date was probably between 1738-1745; his wife, according to the headstone, was born 1747 (see Austin's Thirty-three Rhode Island Families, p. 81; The Richmond Family, by Joshua Bailey Richmond, pp. 3-9).

Here he and his descendants continued to dispense generous hospitality, as the Deputy Governor John Greene and his descendants had done for more than one hundred and thirty years before him.

He died February 25, 1758. His will, dated

<sup>1</sup> Governor Greene's correspondence with English military authorities is preserved in Rhode Island Colonial Records, and shows "ability and good sense and that he was well qualified to deal with the difficult duties that the disturbed condition of the country demanded of him" (Providence Plantations for 250 Years, p. 368).

He was Deputy 1726-40-46. In September, 1740, in behalf of the town of East Greenwich, he and Colonel Peter Mawney successfully petitioned the Assembly for a highway in North Kingstown that the Town Council had refused to make to meet one built in East Greenwich. He died April 17, 1758, in the sixty-seventh year of his age, and was buried in the old burial-ground, now the "Newport Cemetery," as were his wives and several of their children. Their headstones are still extant, and from these monumental inscriptions is gathered the only record we have of the family of Major James Greene. He married (1) Roby, daughter Caleb and Deborah (Sayles) Carr, who died December 22, 1728, in the thirty-fifth year of her age. She was born about 1693. He married (2) Susannah —, who died December 10, 1754, in the forty-fourth year of her age. Daniel Wightman, December 5, 1717. He resided in Cranston (then a part of Providence), near where the State Farm is now located. He was a blacksmith and iron manufacturer. Near his residence he erected and operated iron works, extensive for the times, and was in partnership with his brothers-in-law the "Brown Bros." of Providence. July 30, 1764, he was ordained a Baptist minister by Elders Charles Holden, John Gorton, and Thomas Burlingame. He married (1), September 26, 1723, Martha, daughter of James and Mary (Harris) Brown, and great-granddaughter of Rev. Chad Brown, the first minister of the First Baptist Church of Providence. She was born October 12, 1703, and died July 27, 1725. Buried in North Burying Ground, Providence. He married (2), March 13, 1727, Abigail, widow of Arthur Fenner and daughter of John and Alice (Smith) Dexter. Her grandfather, Rev. Gregory Dexter, was born at Olney, Northamptonshire, England. He went early to London, where he became a printer, and with Coleman kept a stationer's shop there. He was the friend and correspondent of Roger Williams. He came to America and settled in Providence, R. I.

Abigail, second wife of Elisha Greene, was born April 26, 1696, died January 11, 1770, and was buried near the State Farm at Cranston. Elder Greene removed to Gloucester, R. I., about 1773, as in that year he held a deed of land there, some of which he sold to his son Elisha, Jr.<sup>1</sup> He died at Gloucester, 1780 (probably in November). His will, dated May 31, was proved by the Court, December 11, 1780 (see No. 322).

"Elisha Greene from Cranston in 1773 had a deed of some land in this town—he sold some of it to his son Elisha Greene, Jr., also of Cranston—same year."

He was born May 22, 1702, and died August 8, 1738. He was the son of John and Waite (Waterman) Rhodes and great-grandson of Roger Williams, whose daughter Mercy married Resolved Waterman. On Town Records the wife of Resolved Rhodes is given "Phebe Greene," which is an error, as above record is sustained by the fact that he "and wife Mary" gave receipt for legacy received by will of their great-aunt Isabel Burton, September 15, 1724 (see Austin's Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island, pp. 268, 367).

CHILDREN:

332. RESOLVED RHODES.

Samuel Tillinghast, who married John Greene's niece, Deborah Greene, daughter of his brother, Major James Greene, records in his noted Diary (now deposited at the Library of Rhode Island Historical Society at Providence): "Dec. 8. 1757— Uncle John Greene died at Potowomut," where he had been sick for some time and where he was visited by Mr. Tillinghast; for the Diary also shows, "Nov. 9, 1757—Watched with Uncle John Greene at Potowomut"; and "Dec. 10, 1757—Went to Burying of Uncle John Greene at Potowomut" (see note, "Long Island Greens," Appendix II.).

He married (Town Records) Anne Wylis, August 13, 1749. Diaries show that his death occurred at Potowomut, but the date is not given.

Warwick Land Evidences, October 9, 1733:

He lived to be ninety-five years of age, and his wife, who died the same year, 1787, three months later, was in her eighty-ninth year. His granddaughter, Elizabeth Slocum, daughter of his son Jabez, was devoted to him until his death and "cared for him through his second childhood." She was a woman of bright intellect and remarkable memory, and according to the Chadsey record, prepared by William's great-grandson, Jeremiah Greene Chadsey, in 1840 (in possession of A. B. Chadsey of Wickford), she was able at that date, in her eightieth year, to give a clear account of her grandfather. He told her that "he was born in Wales in the Island of Great Britain in the year 1692. In 1715 at the age of 23 he came to this continent and landed first in the Southern states. The next year he came to Newport and soon after crossed the Narragansett Bay and fixed his residence at Sand Hill in North Kingstown four miles south of East Greenwich."

With his brothers he was engaged in the Iron Works at the forge in Potowomut and also on Pawtuxet River, near the Warwick line, which industry proved a most lucrative one for the family. <sup>1</sup> Much of the above information is taken from the records of Professor Ray Greene Huling, great-great-grandson of Andrew Huling, the brother of Honor Huling, first wife of Jabez Chadsey, senior; and the author of "The Greenes of Quidnesset," published in Narragansett Register, 1883-84.

Quaker preacher, and was also engaged with his brothers in the Iron Works, which were in full operation in 1741, one year before the birth of General Nathanael Greene, his fourth son. He married (1), September 13, 1733, his second cousin, Phebe<sup>s</sup>, daughter of Benjamin<sup>4</sup> (Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) and Phebe (Arnold) Greene, who died May 3, 1737 (see Certificate, Appendix II.). He married (2), April 18, 1739, Mary, daughter of Jacob and Rest (Perry) Mott, born April 25, 1708, died March 7, 1753. She was the mother of Major-General Nathanael Greene of the Revolutionary army. Her father was Deputy from Portsmouth, R. I., 1705-9, and her grandfather, Jacob Mott, senior, served as Deputy in 1674. He with three others built the first Quaker meeting-house at Dartmouth, Mass., 1699. He left by will (proved 1712) to his "son Jacob confirmation of half the farm as per deed" (August 28, 1705). Adam Mott, the emigrant ancestor, came from Cambridgeshire, England, in the ship Defence, July 2, 1635. He and his second wife, Sarah Lott (widow), were members of the First Church at Roxbury, but removed to Portsmouth, R. I., 1638, where he had a grant of land, June 23, 1638. He was made freeman, March 16, 1641. Was clerk of the military company, 1642.

Phebe (Arnold) Greene, first wife of Nathanael, was the granddaughter of Stephen Arnold of Providence, R. I., who was Deputy for thirteen years, 1664-1690, inclusive, and Assistant for nine years, 1672-98; and great-granddaughter of William Arnold of Rhode Island, who it is claimed came from Cheselbourne, County Dorset, England, and was a lineal descendant of Roger Arnold of England, twelfth in descent from Ynir, King of Gwentland in Wales (Somerset's Arnold Family). Nathanael Greene died in October, 1768, and was buried in the old Friends' meeting-house lot at East Greenwich, his grave being marked by a rough, reddish granite stone about one foot above ground. His will, made March 25, 1765, was proved December 24, 1770. The third wife of Nathanael Greene was Mary Gardiner (see below).

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

389. JACOB, born March 7, 1739-40, married Margaret Greene.
 390. PHEBE, born March 20, died October, 1741.
 391. NATHANAEL (Major-General of Revolutionary army), born July 27, 1742, married Katharine Littlefield.

 395. PERRY, born November 9, 1749, married Elizabeth Belcher.

The following from an old family record gives slight difference in dates:

"Nathanael Greene, son of Jabez, married Phebe Greene and had issue; Benjamin was born the first day of the 5th month [July] 1734. Thomas was born the 11th day of the 9th month [Nov.] 1735. My wife Phebe died the 11th of the 3rd month [May] 1737. I was married to Mary Mott the 18 of the 2nd month 1739: Our son Jacob was born the 7th of the 1st month, [March] 1740. Our daughter Phebe was born the 20th of the 1st month, [March] 1741, our daughter Phebe died the      of the 8th month 1741. Our son Nathanael was born on the 27th of the 5th month [July] 1742. Our son William born the 1st of the 9th month [Nov.] 1743. Our son Perry was born the 5th of the 9th month [Nov.] 1749. My wife Mary died the 7th of the 3rd month [May] 1753.

"Nathanael Greene married Phebe Greene 13th of the 7th month [Sep.] 1733 to Mary Mott the 18th of the 2nd month [April] 1739—third wife Mary Gardiner."

Friends' Records, Newport:

"Nathanael Greene son of Jabez married Nov. 28, 1754 Mary, widow of John Rodman and daughter of Samuel Collins and his wife Elizabeth." (Mary was born January 29, 1713).

"John Rodman of S. Kingstown, son of Thomas and Catharine, and Mary Collins, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth of Newport, were married Oct. 14, 1736."

John Rodman was the brother of Anne, who married Caleb Greene, son of John of Potowomut (see No. 472.)

As we find no Gardiner connection and have no proof of a fourth marriage, it may be inferred that the name was erroneously copied and was intended for Rodman, and that "wife Mary," for whom such careful provision was made in Nathanael's will, was the Mary Rodman above (see Appendix I.).

married, February 10, 1744, Anne (Hoxsie) Greene, widow of his brother Benjamin, and daughter of Joseph Hoxsie, "late of Westery" (No. 139). He died September 15, 1802 (Friends' Records, East Greenwich).

CHILD:

Samuel Tillinghast's valuable diary has this entry: "Mrs. Hoxsie mother of John Greene's wife died Mar. 6. 1758."

He was interested with his brothers in the iron manufactory, and was engaged also in mercantile business. He resided at East Greenwich. He married, March 13, 1735, Martha, daughter of Joseph Russell of Dartmouth, Mass., and aunt of Joseph Russell of Boston, who died September 30, 1770. She was the daughter of Jabez Greene's second wife, Grace Whitman, and was half-sister to Nathanael Greene, father of General Nathanael of the Revolution. She married, November 26, 1741, Caleb Greene of East Greenwich, son of John Greene of West Greenwich, who was not of the Warwick Greene family. He died September 3, 1743 (see No. 27 and note). "The Friends' Meeting Records give 'married 26th of 9. mo. 1741.' There were three witnesses to the marriage certificate named John Greene" (G. S. G.).

CHILD:

411. NATHAN GREENE, born November 2, 1742, married Hannah<sup>s</sup> Greene (James<sup>4</sup>, Jabez<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), whose record, with children, is given in No. 373.

Mary, widow of Caleb Greene, married (2), May 1, 1746, in Friends' Meeting, East Greenwich, Charles Atwood, son of Francis of Providence. They had five children: Nehemiah Atwood, married Joanna Snell; Charles Atwood, married Mary Brayton; Caleb Atwood, married Miriam Walton (see No. 309); Elizabeth Atwood, married Daniel Brayton, father of Judge Charles Brayton of Apponaug, Warwick; Mary Atwood, married Benjamin Brayton, brother of Daniel, above.

Warwick Records, lib. 2, folio 101, Council Book, June 8, 1752:

"Nathan Greene infant son of Caleb Greene deceased, being about 10 years of age or thereabouts having a legacy left him by his grandfather John Greene of West Greenwich late deceased, moves by his father-in-law Charles Atwood of Warwick, to the Council to appoint a Guardian," etc., and the Council appointed Thomas Greene of Warwick.

145. DAVID<sup>4</sup> GREENE (David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born at Jamestown, R. I., September 11, 1701. He married (1), December 23, 1721, Katharine Greene of East Greenwich, and (2), November 4, 1724, Mary, "daughter of Henry Knowles of South Kingstown," who died May 17, 1744, in her forty-second year (Records Friends' Meeting, East Greenwich). He died October 10, 1757, in his fifty-sixth year. His will, dated September 9, 1754, proved October 18, 1757, mentions "wife Hannah" (which would indicate a third marriage if the name is correctly copied); also "son David, daughters Mary Tillinghast, Patience and Waity, grandson David Hazard" (North Kingston Records, 48, 69).

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

412. MARY, born June 2, 1727, married Charles Tillinghast.
 413. DAVID, born August 28, 1728, married (1) Elizabeth —, (2) Esther —.

 416. PATIENCE, born November 7, 1733.
 417. ALICE (or ABBIE ?), born June 16, 1735.
 (There may have been also a daughter, Wait, born June 1, 1739, died July 17, 1744.)

One record states that "Patience (Brayton) and Abby (Kelton), daughters of David Greene, were Quaker preachers" (see Friends' Records). Their grandmother was a daughter of Ebenezer Slocum, prominent among the Quaker preachers.

One of the descendants of this line wrote, July 25, 1880:

CHILDREN:

418. LYDIA SHELDON, born —.

419. JOSEPH SHELDON, born —.

420. CHRISTOPHER SHELDON, born February 22, 1732. He married, 1752, Rosanna daughter of Israel and Mary (Rhodes) Arnold, born December 27, 1737. Israel Arnold was the great-great-grandson of William, the emigrant ancestor. Children: Remington, Israel, Lydia, Mary, Rosanna, and another. The eldest, Remington, born August 22, 1753, died December 17, 1829, married in 1778, Huldah, daughter of Stephen and Mary (Rhodes) Greene of Pawtuxet, R. I., born 1757, died October 14, 1823. Stephen Greene was son of Thomas and a grandson of John Greene of West Greenwich, and was not of the Warwick Greene family. He was born 1733, married October 24, 1754, and died October 1, 1819. His wife, Mary (Rhodes) Greene, died at ninety-seven years of age.

421. ELIZABETH SHELDON, born —.

422. ABIGAIL SHELDON, born —.

423. HANNAH SHELDON, born —.

424. MERCY SHELDON, born —.

425. MARY SHELDON, born —.

Stephen Greene, whose daughter Huldah married Remington Sheldon, had an uncle, Caleb Greene, who married Mary Greene, daughter of Jabez, and second wife, Grace (Whitman) Greene. Mary was thus half-sister to Nathanael, the father of General Nathanael Greene of the Revolutionary army (see No. 144).

John Remington, the emigrant ancestor and progenitor of all of that name in Rhode Island, came from Wales and first settled at Haverhill, Mass. He was probably exiled to Rhode Island, 1669, or before, for non-conformity to the tyranny of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. He became a citizen of Portsmouth, R. I., 1669. He gave to his son Thomas<sup>2</sup> the Haverhill estate, comprising "a house, four acres of land, two orchards and 40 acres of land on the river." Thomas settled on Prudence Island, and subsequently removed to Warwick. He bought Farm No. 1, containing 240 acres, of John Warner and Philip Sweet in 1692-3, for £57. He built a mansion and became a prudent, industrious agriculturist. His will, according to a singular custom of that period, was proved September 26, 1710, a short time before his death. He was probably buried on his farm, as his son William<sup>3</sup>, when he sold his share of the farm in 1712 to John Whitman, Jr., of Kingstown, reserved "the burial place where his father and grandfather were interred" ("Letters from the Pawtuxet," Providence Journal, June 21, 1859).

Thomas<sup>3</sup>, William<sup>3</sup>, and John<sup>3</sup>, sons of Thomas<sup>2</sup> Remington of Warwick, received by will the lands of their father; they to pay legacies to the other children—the five other sons and two daughters. John<sup>4</sup> Remington, who married Abigail Greene, was probably a son of William<sup>3</sup> or John<sup>3</sup>, as Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Jr., married Maplet, daughter of Captain Benjamin Gorton, and had no son John.

CHILDREN:

426. CALEB, born February 24, 1741, married Polly Remington.
 427. STUKELEY, born November 14, 1742.

154. JOSEPH<sup>4</sup> GREENE "of Jamestown" (David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Jamestown, May 30, 1724. He was a farmer and a member of the Society of Friends. He married, October 4, 1750, Abigail, daughter of Daniel and Mary Gould of Middletown. She was the great-granddaughter of Daniel and Wait (Coggeshall) Gould of Newport. Daniel, senior, was a Quaker preacher who suffered much persecution in early manhood. He was Commissioner, 1656; Deputy, 1672; Assistant, 1673-75. He died 1706, and was buried in Friends' Burial Ground.

Joseph Greene died at his home in Jamestown, March 5, 1815, aged ninety; and his wife, Abigail, died at Warwick, August 15, 1803, aged eighty-two (Records Friends' Society, Newport). Longevity prevailed in this family; the parents lived to a good old age, and of their five children two lived to be fourscore and four, two reached the age of ninety, and one, of ninety-four!

CHILDREN:

428. ANNE, born December 4, 1751, died unmarried.
 429. MARY, born March 18, 1754, died unmarried.
 430. JONATHAN, born February 22, 1755, married Abigail Earle.
 431. DAVID, born January 6, 1758, died unmarried.
 432. JOSEPH, born March 30, 1760, married Sarah Collins.

155. PATIENCE<sup>4</sup> GREENE (David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born February 15, 1726 (also given February 18, 1725). She was the youngest of eleven children. The eldest, her brother David, had a daughter named Patience, born 1733, and there is confusion of dates (see No. 416).

156. DAVID<sup>4</sup> GREENE (John<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born at Warwick, January 4, 1710. He lived at Coweset Bay and owned property there north of the road which leads to Coweset Station and wharf; which property (formerly belonging to John Dickinson) went to his son John. He married, in Friends' Meeting, East Greenwich, October 17, 1734, Alice, daughter of Robert Hall of North Kingstown. He died in 1775. His will, dated May 2, 1775, was proved September 11, 1775. His wife's will mentions all the children but Increase, who probably died young. Her bequests were as follows: "Son John to have half of Lot above country road, having already given him the other half [see No. 436]; also half of Lot which formerly belonged to John Dickinson and half of store and wharf house. Son David Jr and das. Elizabeth, Mary, Patience and Alice Nichols, one silver spoon."

CHILDREN:

- 433. ELIZABETH, born September 21, 1739, married Benjamin Greene.
- 434. INCREASE, born March 7, 1743, probably died before his father, as he is not mentioned in his will.

- 438. PATIENCE, married Pierce Spencer.
- 439. ALICE, born June 16, 1755, married Anthony Nichols.

CHILDREN:

- 440. INCREASE, born August 30, 1740, married Comfort Weaver.
- 441. THOMAS, born March 24, 1743, married Sarah Corey.
- 442. JEDEDIAH, born April 13, 1747, married Waite Bates.
- 443. JONATHAN, born February 2, 1748, married Lydia Nichols.
- 444. CALEB, born 1753, married Elizabeth Moon.

March 16, 1714, and married, November 13, 1740, Henry Matthewson, son of Francis and Sarah (Nichols) Matthewson of Coventry, R. I. She died March 8, 1741. Henry Matthewson's grandfather, Henry of East Greenwich, was Deputy in 1685 and owned considerable property. His father, Francis Matthewson, left by will, made March 20, proved April 28, 1750, "To son Henry half of homestead at death of testator and the other half a year after death of wife"; "To son Henry all bonds, notes, blacksmith tools &c." Inventory, £2530 3s. 9d.

159. INCREASE<sup>4</sup> GREENE (John<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 12, 1717, in Coventry, R. I. He removed to New York State, but the date of removal is not given. He was a farmer at Berlin, Rensselaer County, N. Y., where he died in 1810. He married (1), April 28, 1743, Phebe, daughter of Francis Matteson of West Greenwich, R. I. (Friends' Meeting Record), and (2), January 17, 1750, Ruth, widow of William Greene, and daughter of John Greene (of Kingstown and West Greenwich, not of Warwick Greens) and his first wife, Mary Aylesworth, who was on the maternal side a great-granddaughter of Rev. Chad Brown of Providence and of Rev. Obadiah Holmes of Newport.

CHILD BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

445. JONATHAN, born May 1, 1746, died young.

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

446. Daughter, born 1752, married Ichabod Scott.

447. ELIZABETH, born 1753, married (1) Job Whalcy, (2) Rufus Brayton.

449. RACHEL, born 1760, married Richard Stafford.

163. JOSEPH <sup>4</sup> GREENE "of Berlin, N. Y." (John <sup>3</sup>, James <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, February 19, 1728. He was a tailor and a Quaker, and wore the costume of that sect. In 1769 he removed from Warwick or East Greenwich to Berlin, Rensselaer County, N. Y., and was the third white settler in the town. In an old ledger of a shipping firm of Providence, R. I., 1775-78, was found record of transactions with George Washington, General Nathanael Greene, General Sullivan, and Jacob Greene and Sons. In this last transaction was an entry of the sale of "the house and lot in East Greenwich which we [the shipping merchants] bought of Joseph Greene." This was but a few years after his removal to New York State. He is said to have been a great friend of General Van Rensselaer and always stopped at his house when in Albany. He married (1), October 27, 1751, Phebe, daughter of John and Barbara (Rice) Langford of East Greenwich, R. I., born April 26, 1734. The old Langford place, about three miles from East Greenwich, was distinguished by an enormous elm tree of great age and beauty. Among the descendants of the Langford family, of whom Thomas of Newport was ancestor, were General Thomas Lincoln Casey, U. S. A., and Captain Silas Casey, U. S. N.<sup>1</sup>

The marriage of Joseph Greene was thus recorded: "Married; Joseph Greene of John of Warwick, and Phebe Langford of John of East Greenwich Oct. 27, 1751" (Vital Statistics, Rhode Island.). He died at Berlin, Rensselaer County, N. Y., in 1824, aged ninety-six. He married (2) the Widow Moon. (Above dates from family records.)

170. ELIZABETH<sup>4</sup> GREENE (Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Warwick, May 8, 1687. She married, July 25, 1706, Samuel Gorton of Warwick and Providence. He was son of Captain Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and grandson of Samuel<sup>1</sup> and Mary (Maplet) Gorton. He was Deputy from Warwick, 1708, died August 21, 1723. His will proved October 21, 1723, widow Elizabeth administratrix. By the will of her grandfather, "Thomas Greene of Stone Castle," Elizabeth (Greene) Gorton received "100 acres of land at Coweset"; and from the will of her husband's mother a legacy of £25 (see Austin's Genealogical Dictionary, p. 304), widow of Captain Benjamin Gorton admint. He was a merchant of prominence and a director in the Massachusetts Bank, and was highly respected by his associates. He married (1), February 22, 1727, Elizabeth, daughter of John and Sarah (Chandler) Gardiner and great-granddaughter of Lion Gardiner, the first proprietor of Gardiner's Island. It is a tradition of the Isle of Wight (Gardiner's Island) that "Thomas Greene Chaplain to John Gardiner (who had the same pay as the hired men and the keep of his horse extra) ran off with his daughter Elizabeth who was at school in Boston, and married her." She died in Boston, February 3, 1743-4. He married (2), September 6, 1744, Martha, daughter of Dr. John and Mehitable (Chandler) Coit and widow of Daniel Hubbard, born April 1, 1706. She was the great-granddaughter of John Coit, who came from Glamorganshire, Wales, and was the first shipwright of New London, Conn. The mother of Mrs. Greene is mentioned as "a woman of unusual energy and power, physically and mentally." Family correspondence states that "Thomas & Martha [Coit] Greene owned the first coach in Boston having their Coat of Arms a deer's [buck's] head" (see Chandler Family). Thomas Greene died in Boston, August 5, 1763, and was buried in the family vault at Granary Cemetery, Boston. In compliance with his expressed wish, his children presented Trinity Church, Boston, the same year with a fund, called the "Greene Foundation," for the support of assistant rectors. We learn from The Greene Family in England and America, recently published by Mr. Frederick Amory of Boston for private distribution, that "this fund was originally 500£ but now increased twenty fold it furnishes a substantial addition to its funds" (see Annals of King's Chapel, vol. i., p. 496, containing engraving of Thomas Greene's autograph); also that Mr. Greene "was long a member of the parish of King's Chapel where he occupied part of pew No 56, previously owned by his mother." He removed to Trinity Church about 1740. Mr. Greene owned land on Newbury Street (now Washington), Boston, south of West Street, and running back to the Common. There were several houses on this land, one being his mansion house. A plan of the estate is on file in Suffolk Probate Office. It is referred to in his will, dated December 6, 1761, proved August 6, 1763. The Boston Theatre stands on part of this estate.

He was first employed in America at Saybrook, Conn., but after a few years purchased the "Isle of Wight," at the east end of Long Island, called more commonly "Gardiner's Island" (Chandler Family, pp. 116-21). Here Hannah and Judge Chandler were married, October 23, 1716, by John Mulford, Esq. Mary, their daughter, who married Benjamin Greene, was the eldest of seven, who were "remarkable for their beauty and intelligence and held a high social position." John Singleton Copley Greene by his mother, Elizabeth Clarke (Copley) Greene, third wife of Gardiner, son of Benjamin Greene. (See The Greene Family in England and America, Boston, 1901.)

He was Commissioner, 1651-5 and 1660; Surveyor of Highways, 1652-6; and Assistant, 1663. The Town Council met at his house. 214. MARY<sup>5</sup> GREENE (John<sup>4</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at the Coweset farm, April 10, 1723. She married, April 19, 1752, Silas Clapp, son of John and Elizabeth Douglas (Quincy) Clapp, and a great-great-grandson of Dr. George Gilson Clapp, who claimed that the family were of Italian origin. He was graduated from an English university and afterward travelled extensively for twenty years, acquiring several languages. He sailed from London in 1665, and settled first in South Carolina, removing later to Westchester County, N. Y., near the Hudson, where he practised medicine. He was esteemed as one of the most learned men of the Colony.

Silas Clapp<sup>5</sup> (John<sup>4</sup>, John<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, George G.<sup>1</sup>) was a member of the Society of Friends, and a man of a cool, calm temperament. He was born at Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., February 27, 1717. His father-in-law, Captain John Greene "of Coweset," remembered him in his will, and appointed his "daughter Mary, wife of Silas Clapp," his sole executrix, leaving to her the homestead farm. Mrs. Clapp was of a delicate constitution, and was greatly taxed by long attendance upon her afflicted mother. She never rallied from grief at her father's death, and this depression so increased that her death came suddenly by her own hand on July 8, 1760, about two years later. It was during a visit to Block Island and Warwick that Silas Clapp became acquainted with his future wife, Mary Greene. He died, March 19, 1777, aged sixty-eight, and was buried on the Coweset farm, as were all the family of Captain John Greene. The homestead was left to his son, John Clapp, whose descendants continued to occupy it. Silas Clapp married (2), August 25, 1763, Elizabeth Greene (No. 369).

CHILDREN:

605. JOHN CLAPP, born May 14, 1754, died September 19, 1815, married, August 31, 1775, Anne Waterman, of Coventry, R. I., born May 27, 1748, died September 19, 1844. Had seven children: (1) Silas, born August 29, 1776, died October 8, 1853. (2) Mary, born August 30, 1778, died February 11, 1868, unmarried. (3) John, born August 8, 1780, married Catharine Godfrey, and removed to Abington, Conn. She retained her faculties and received her friends on her ninety-first birthday. (6) William, born January 24, 1786, died October 31, 1873, married Mary Reynolds. (7) Waterman, born April 18, 1788, married Eliza Woodward of Providence, and continued to reside, after the death of his wife, with his two daughters, on the old homestead farm at Coweset. He died in Warwick, August 9, 1884. The original house, after many years, was raised and somewhat enlarged; and it still retained some of the old furnishings—one chair bore the date of 1696. The family burial-ground was not far from this house.

606. PHEBE CLAPP, born March 14, 1756, died September 26, 1795, in her fortieth year.

607. DAVID CLAPP, born May 5, 1757.

Mrs. Catharine (Ray) Greene, wife of Governor Wm. Greene, wrote, March 25, 1792, that "Dorothy, daughter of Simon Ray of Block Island [her father's sister], married a Clapp at Rye; some are said to be living there yet—very clever people." This probably referred to John<sup>3</sup> Clapp, grandfather of Silas, who married Mary Greene. Silas's grandmother, Dorothy Ray, was a granddaughter of the first Captain Nathaniel Thomas of Marshfield, Mass.

Simon Ray, in his will, dated October 11, 1737, gives "to kinsman Silas Clapp 100 pounds in current money of the colony." (See Clapp Memorial, published by David Clapp & Sons.)

217. JAMES<sup>5</sup> GREENE "of Centreville" (William<sup>4</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born at Old Warwick, September 8, 1713. Freeman, May 6, 1735. He was an enterprising man, engaged in farming and manufacturing. He received from his father the "mansion house in Old Warwick" and valuable lands in the neighborhood of the tide-mill. In this home he resided for a number of years, but when Revolutionary troubles began, Old Warwick was much exposed to attacks from ruffians, and the house of James Greene was seized and converted into barracks, while he was forced to remove to his farm at Centreville. At this period the change was described as "going into the woods," and was a marked contrast to the delightful banks of the Narragansett. The Centreville farm in the course of time became sufficiently attractive, however, for a permanent residence. Like his father, James Greene was not ambitious for office and held only that of magistrate. Among the anecdotes illustrative of his good humor and tact while dispensing justice, the following was told of a simple-minded couple whom he had united in marriage, who soon proved to be uncongenial to each other. The husband had called upon "Squire Greene" to lodge a complaint against the "bad disposition" of his better half. He found his wife already there before him, having concluded her charges against the "vile wretch of a husband." Mr. Greene, after listening a few moments, asked if they had strong memories? Both answered, "No."—"That's it," said Squire Greene, "that's the whole affair; you have forgotten what you promised to do when I married you to each other. Now, I'll marry you again, and you must listen to every word, and you'll be happy for the future." The repetition of the ceremony restored them to good will, and they often declared that "Squire Greene married them a great deal stronger the second time than the first!"

Mr. Greene was also, like his father, a member of the Society of Friends, and was married in the Friends' Meeting-House at East Greenwich, June 15, 1735 (?), to Desire, daughter of Giles and Mary Slocum of that town. As a wedding gift, Desire received from her Quaker father a female slave! James Greene died May 30, 1792, in his seventy-ninth year. He left by will the homestead near Conimicut Point, inherited from his father, William Greene, to his "grandson Giles," and his own family mansion in Centreville to his only surviving son, James; his widow "to share one third of the profits of the real estate." The three lame and dependent daughters—Mary, Sarah, and Agnes—were to occupy a portion of the house and "be supported by their brother James." Ample provisions were also made for several slaves, including "Clara" (his wedding gift to his daughter), who always declared she was a princess, her father being an African king. But the "princess" in her later years had a fall to the cellar and could not escape injury, though "always kindly cared for until her death, when she was buried near the family graveyard." James Greene was the founder of the Centreville burying-ground. "He was buried in the James Greene cemetery on the east side of the river, about  $\frac{1}{4}$  of a mile south of the Bridge at Centreville."

CHILDREN:

(BARLOW ARNOLD, born February 11, 1749-50, is given in one account, but there is no mention in the family record of this twin brother.)
647. LYDIA ARNOLD, born February 23, 1752, married Nathan Westcott.
648. ELIZABETH ARNOLD, born September 2, 1758.

CHILDREN:

649. LYDIA CARPENTER, born September 3, 1744.
650. BARLOW CARPENTER, born September 12, 1747.

232. ISRAEL<sup>5</sup> GREENE (Barlow<sup>4</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Westchester County, N. Y., January 7, 1743-4, where his father had removed from Rhode Island. After some years Israel went to Dutchess County, and later was married there to Rachel Thorn of the distinguished Thorn family of that county. Both were birthright Quakers, and they probably joined hands at the meeting in the old Quaker settlement, "The Nine Partners." She died when quite young.

He married (2) Sarah Deane, the "Widow Haight," born April 18, 1757. She was a niece of Silas Deane, who was missionary to the Oneida and other tribes of Indians in New York State, and who was associated, by order of the United States Government, with Benjamin Franklin as Commissioner to the Court of France in 1785. The Deanes of Oneida County were for generations the accredited agents of the United States in adjudicating matters with various tribes of Indians, on Quaker principles. Israel and his second wife joined with the Platt family of Poughkeepsie, and removed in 1795 (?) to "the new settlement on Lake Champlain," or Cumberland Bay on the west shore of the lake. The patent was there granted in 1784 "for 2,000 acres of land" to Judge Zephaniah Platt and thirty-two others. The next summer the frame of a sawmill was raised, June 22, 1785—"The mill property being owned by Zephaniah and Theodorus Platt and Melancton Smith." Here at Plattsburg, Israel died, August 26, 1831, in his eighty-ninth year.

In 1836, Thomas Deane, U. S. Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who was a cousin of Mrs. Greene, paid her a memorable visit, for they had not met for nearly sixty years. Mrs. Greene died February 7, 1839.

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

- 651. ARMENIA, born October 4, 1785, married — Carhart.
- 652. DEBORAH, born August 28, 1787, married Dr. Beaumont.
- 653. THOMAS, born August 24, 1789, married Elizabeth Platt.
- 654. ANNA, born April 29, 1792, married Colonel Melancton Smith.
- 655. PLATT ROGERS, born September 21, 1796, died unmarried.

Additional information, kindly contributed by a relative of the family, was received too late for the proper insertion. The following account of the children by Israel Greene's first marriage was copied from his quaint record in his own handwriting:

"the Days of } the week }

6.	PHEBE GREEN	Born	ye	th 24	Day of	Ye	th 10	Mo.	1772
7.	JOSEPH	"	"	th 13	"	"	th 11	"	1773

3.	ANNE	"	"	rd 23	"	"	th 10	"	1781"

Phebe, the eldest child, married Phineas Lounsberry, and lived to the advanced age of ninety-six. She was known far and wide for her goodness as "The Widow Lounsberry." When her father and his second wife removed to Plattsburg, she adopted their eldest child, who married from her home (see No. 651). Joseph, son of Israel, was of a delicate constitution, and did not accompany his father to Plattsburg, but some years after his marriage, in Columbia County, to Gertrude Hogeboom, he also removed there with his wife and twin children, who were born at Kinderhook. Their daughter, Charlotte Anne, born at Plattsburg, December 17, 1809, married, November 24, 1831, Joel S. Fisk, and had William, Jr., who married Mary J. Driggs, and has a son, Wilbur D. Fisk; Elizabeth S., who married Albert Johnson,—resides at Spokane, Wash.; and several others.

Hannah, third child of Israel, married Benjamin Hasbrouck, lineal descendant of the famous Huguenot, "Abrahame the Patentee," and had several children. Elizabeth, the eldest, lived to an advanced age, and Catharine, the youngest, married Wm. Henry Rice of Albany, and had an only child, Katharine.

The three youngest children of Israel's first marriage are not further mentioned, and probably died young.

Another family letter discloses the fact that Israel Greene had three sisters not mentioned in these records, viz.: Mary, Amy, and Anna. The last named "married Peter Halleck of Union, Clinton County, N. Y., and became the grandmother of Fitz-Greene Halleck, the poet, from whom he took his baptismal name. She was a woman of unusually bright intellect and never lost her mental vigor although ninety-nine years of age at the time of her death, which occurred in the little settlement of Union, N. Y., in 1830. She is buried there in the rural graveyard of the Quakers."

An Israel Greene, son of Barlow, is recorded born "January 22, 1726," who must have died in infancy for the above date is verified by Israel's granddaughter.

248. PHEBE<sup>5</sup> GREENE (Philip<sup>4</sup>, Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Occupasuetuxet, March 25, 1732. She was the eldest daughter of Judge Philip Greene. She married, January 1, 1754, Anthony Low, only son of Captain John and Frances (Holden) Low of Old Warwick. She was baptized by immersion, by Rev. Dr. McSparran, July 23, 1756. She died November 20, 1759, and was buried in Providence. Captain (afterward Judge) Anthony Low was born in 1725, and died in 1802.

They had two children: son born and died 1783 at Sunbury, Ga., and a daughter, Elizabeth Greene Low, born Sunbury, Ga., September 29, 1785, the day following her father's death. She married three times. The name of her first husband is unknown; he lived but a few months. She married (2), February, 1804, William Roberts, who died of consumption in Savannah in 1807. He died there about 1857.

(2) Louisa Jane Roberts (sister of Wm. Joseph), born September, 1813, died unmarried at Marietta, Ga., January 30, 1897, and is there buried.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greene (Low) Roberts survived her third husband David Roberts, fifty-five years, being but twenty-eight years of age at the time of his death. She died November 12, 1868, and is buried at the cemetery at Marietta, Ga., with her two daughters.

662<sup>b</sup>. ANTHONY LOW, Jr., born at Old Warwick, December 10, 1757, was drowned January 18, 1780. "This unfortunate Youth, as he was diverting himself on the Ice in the River, fell threw the Ice and was Drowned: his Body was taken up the 28th day of February and was Buried" (his father's record in Family Record Book). Anthony, Jr., was unmarried. He resided with his father's sister, Mrs. Nathaniel Kiese (née Barbara Low), in North Carolina.

662'. CHRISTOPHER LOW, born at Old Warwick, June 28, 1759, died March 24, 1760.

(The above descendants of Judge Anthony and Phebe (Greene) Low are all recorded in the quaint little Family Record Book, in his elegant handwriting, which is now in possession of Mrs. M. F. Greene of Providence, R. I., from which and from an unbroken series of family letters from 1775 to 1901 these data were taken and kindly contributed by her daughter, Miss Mary A. Greene.)

Judge Anthony Low married (2), January 9, 1766, Sarah, daughter of Captain Samuel and Hannah (Bennett) Stafford and granddaughter of Amos and Mary (Burlingame) Stafford. They had eight children: (1) Phebe, (2) John, (3) Anne, (4) Thomas, and (5) Sarah, all died young and unmarried; (6) Barbara, married John Littlefield; (7) Samuel (Captain) married Elizabeth Holden, and their eldest son, Joseph Holden Low, married Mary Anne Greene, daughter of Jeremiah and Phebe (Hughes) Greene (No. 678); (8) Anne Frances, married Christopher<sup>6</sup> Greene (Wm.<sup>5</sup>, Philip<sup>4</sup>, Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) (see No. 673).

250. COLONEL CHRISTOPHER<sup>5</sup> GREENE "of Centreville" (Philip<sup>4</sup>, Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), of the Revolutionary Army, was born at the Occupasuetuxet homestead, Warwick, May 12, 1737. He was the cousin (third) and intimate friend of General Nathanael Greene, their homes being not far apart. He early received all the advantages in the best lines of education, under the guidance of his father, Judge Philip Greene, who was so distinguished for his intellectual powers, and by assiduous application he made great proficiency, laying up a stock of knowledge exactly suited to that profession to which he was afterward unexpectedly called. He received the mill estate from his father in 1761, and conducted the business till he became an officer in the Revolutionary Army. When at an early age, he was elected by his native town to a seat in the colonial legislature, which he continued to fill by successive elections, until the commencement of the Revolutionary War. At this period the legislature established a military corps called "Kentish Guards" for the purpose of fitting the most select of her youth for military office, and young Greene was chosen Lieutenant. In May, 1775, he was appointed by the legislature a Major in what was then called an "Army of Observation,"—one brigade of one thousand six hundred effectives under the orders of his distinguished kinsman, Major-General Nathanael Greene. He was from this situation called to the command of a company of infantry in one of the regiments attached to the Army of Canada, conducted by General Montgomery, in which campaign he shared all the vicissitudes and difficulties, evincing on all occasions that unyielding intrepidity which marked his military prowess in every other scene. In the attack upon Quebec, Captain Greene belonged to the column which entered the lower town, and was taken prisoner. With his elevated mind he could not gracefully submit to the ills and irksomeness of captivity, and it is asserted that he often declared he would never again be taken alive.

As soon as he was exchanged, he rejoined his regiment, with which he continued without intermission until promoted to the Majority of Varnum's regiment. In 1777 he succeeded to the command of the regiment, and was selected by Washington to take charge of Fort Mercer, commonly known as Red Bank, on the Delaware. His future career and the noble manner in which Colonel Greene sustained himself is familiar history, as is also the event of his fall at Croton River, when surprised by the enemy at dawn on the 14th of May, 1781, the event being justly recorded as a "triumph of barbarity over valor" (from Memoirs of the War in the Southern Department of United States, by Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Lee). When this tragedy closed his brilliant career, Colonel Greene was but forty-four years of age. (It is a coincidence worthy of note that his illustrious cousin, General Nathanael, died at the same early age.)

He married, May 6, 1757, his third cousin, Anna, daughter of Jeremiah and Welthian (Greene) Lippitt, born November 15, 1735. She was the granddaughter of Moses<sup>3</sup> (Moses<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) and his wife Anphillis (Whipple) Lippitt of Old Warwick (see Nos. 187, 529). Soon after his marriage Colonel Greene settled upon the estate given him by his father, Judge Philip Greene, which should be distinguished from his birthplace.

On the occasion of a recent pilgrimage (October 18, 1901) made by several of the historical associations of Rhode Island to the ancestral home and birthplace of Colonel Christopher Greene at "Pastuxet," the following interesting items were contributed: "Col. Greene has been described by one who served under him as being rather above the average height, and a very handsome man. As a commander he made his men 'toe the mark' nor was any man allowed to flinch from duty; he is also said to have been himself a very brave man. In early life his father gave him a large tract of land comprising several hundred acres lying west of the south branch of the Pawtuxet river, and embracing what is now known as Riverpoint, Arctic, and a part of Centreville and Quidneck villages, R. I. This estate [upon which Colonel Greene settled after his marriage], with the adjoining property, owned by others of the Greene family, was known for over half a century as Greenville. The exact site of the residence of Col. Christopher, however, is not now definitely known, but a great granddaughter who died a few years ago, distinctly remembered its destruction by fire when she was a little girl, and thought the date was about 1817. The location was not far from the present French Catholic Church at Arctic Centre. Col. Greene had a large family of children. The eldest son, Job Greene, was the father of Simon Henry, both of whom served their town and their State with eminent ability in exalted offices.

"It is a fact unparalleled probably in the history of this country, that each generation in the line of the Greens referred to, has represented the town of Warwick in the Rhode Island General Assembly from Dr. John <sup>1</sup> Greene to the present time, when Mr. Francis Whittier <sup>9</sup> Greene, a great-great-grandson of Col. Christopher, represents Warwick in the Legislature."

Extract from Minutes of the old Congress:

"In Congress Nov 4. 1777—

"Resolved: That Congress have a high sense of the merit of Col. Greene and the officers and men under his command, in their late gallant defence of the Fort at Red Bank on the river Delaware, and that an elegant sword be provided by the Board of War, and presented to Col. Greene.

CHARLES THOMPSON, Sec'y."

daughter Betty were not always graciously received by the spirited maiden. The following account, contributed by the great-great-great-granddaughter of the Judge, Miss Mary A. Greene of Providence, is the true story of Dr. Franklin and Betty Greene:

"In the stormy days of 1775 and 1776 Benjamin Franklin returned from France to America, crowned with laurels as the greatest scientist and diplomat of the age. It was natural that Dr. Franklin when visiting Gov. William Greene at East Greenwich should become a firm friend of Judge Philip Greene, who rode frequently from his home at Occupasuetuxet to the State House in East Greenwich to hold his court, and that the ancestral house beneath the elms of Occupasuetuxet should receive the distinguished guest beneath its roof.

"It was natural, too, was it not, that the distinguished Dr. Franklin, being a widower of sufficiently long standing to begin to take notice, should be attracted by the brilliant mind and piquant wit of the youngest daughter of the house, Betty, then at an age when fascinating women are said to be most dangerously fascinating; when an experience of the world has added dignity and grace to the charms of beauty and of mind. Perhaps it was natural, too, that Mistress Betty Greene, while enjoying the intellectual conversation of the distinguished Dr. Franklin, should find him a trifle slow and tedious, especially when he became sentimental. Certain it is, that Mistress Betty positively and steadfastly refused all the Doctor's invitations for a horseback ride with him, though she owned one of the fleetest saddle horses in the county and was exceedingly fond of riding.

"Her conduct became so marked that her father at last deemed it necessary to remonstrate with her. 'My daughter,' said he, 'why do you persist in such discourtesy to Dr. Franklin? No one should treat a guest under his roof as you are treating him. Moreover, Betty, Dr. Franklin is the most famous man in the whole world, and any girl ought to feel flattered by his attentions. He is old enough to be your father, and, therefore, your behavior is especially rude. I command you, my daughter, to be more polite to him hereafter, and the next time he asks you to ride, you must go with him.'

"In those days children were brought up to obey their parents, even when they were no longer children. Mistress Betty dared not say 'Nay' when Dr. Franklin proposed a ride to Providence a few days after. The saddle horses were brought to the door. The handsome old Doctor and the haughty Mistress Betty cantered out from under the elms planted by her great-grandfather, Deputy Gov. John Greene, when he built the house 100 years before for his eldest son, her grandfather, upon his coming of age.

Along the beautiful avenue of locust trees, level as a floor, as it is to this day, out into the well-travelled bridle-path leading to the banks of the Pawtuxet, through the fields that gave to the home of the Greens its name in the Indian tongue, Occupasuetuxet, 'The meadows through which the river flows,' and so up to Providence town they went.

"Tradition fails to tell us what they talked about. Perhaps it was the glories of the French Court. Perhaps it was the fate of her handsome and gallant brother, Col. Christopher Greene, the future hero of Red Bank, who, when last heard from, was toiling through the Maine woods with Arnold's expedition, bound to capture Quebec, and of whom no news had been gained for many anxious months. The outcome of the war, too, might have been their theme. But there must have been some other topic of conversation. We are sure of that, and possibly we can imagine what it was. At least we know the good old Doctor's conversation was not entirely fatherly in its tone, for when they reached home, at the close of the day, Mistress Betty informed her honored father of the result of the day's outing in these words: 'Don't you ever ask me to ride with that old fool again.' Which shows that the American girl of 1776 was not less free to express her mind, regardless of the considerations of age and high station, than her sisters of 1901."

Betty Greene died unmarried in 1822, and was buried in the family burying-ground.

Her father was the great-grandson of Deacon Simon Huntington, born in England in 1629, who was one of the early colonists of Norwich, Conn. Without a collegiate education, Rev. Jonathan became both a physician and a preacher, and "in both professions maintained an honorable rank." He was a man of warm sympathies and early became interested in the condition of the colored race, laboring faithfully for their improvement. He held the pastorate at Worthington for ten years, 1771-1781. Benjamin Ellery Greene died in Boston, May 27, 1806, and was buried in the burial-ground at the foot of the Common. He was an industrious, frugal man, principally engaged in agriculture and gardening. He died July 28, 1842, aged ninety-one, and was buried in the old burial-ground at New Haven, Conn. "Mr. Lewis S. Greene was the oldest inhabitant of this town, where he resided for upwards of fifty years. He was of the family of Greenses of R. I. and a connection of Gen. Greene of the Revolutionary Army. His residence here was purely accidental, having been landed here from a Providence vessel bound to

New York which made a harbor here on her passage. For some years he pursued the occupation of a baker, but in later years that of a gardener, whence he acquired the appellation of 'Gardener Greene.' Though generally in good health, he for many years possessed the strange hallucination that he was heir to the throne of England and went through a long line of heraldic descent to prove his title."—New Haven Herald, 1842.

Joseph Bucklin late of Coventry, deceased." No children. She had previously married — Waterman, and by this marriage she had one son, with whom she afterward lived and at whose home she died. Captain Greene received lands in Coventry by will of his grandfather, Captain Benjamin Greene (see Appendix I.).

His wife, Patience, married (2) Oliver Hazard of South Kingstown, who was the great-uncle of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry (his sister, Mercy Hazard, married James Freeman Perry). Children of Patience by this second marriage were: Mary Hazard, born March 15, 1762; Samuel Greene Hazard, born February 15, 1764; and Elizabeth Hazard, born April 12, 1767 (see The Hazard Family, by Mrs. Caroline E. 713. WILLIAM GREENE SPENCER, born June 7, 1770, died November 28, 1838 (?), unmarried.
714. RUTH SPENCER, born January 11, 1772, unmarried.
715. MARGARET SPENCER, born December 21, 1777, died September 28, 1801, in her twenty-fourth year. She married, February 18, 1798, John R. Sherman, son of James Sherman.

The Spencer family has been traced back three generations in England to 1558. John, of Newport and East Greenwich, the great-grandfather of Captain Rufus Spencer, was probably a son of one of the four emigrant brothers, Michael, William, Thomas, and Gerrard, who came to America and were of Cambridge, Mass., in 1634 (see Austin's Geneal. Dict. R. I., p. 186). John, it is certain, had sons bearing the names of Michael, William, and Thomas, for his son John deeded lands to them, 1696-1700. This son John married Audrey, daughter of Deputy Governor John Greene (No. 18). John, senior, of Newport, was the nephew and heir of the first John Spencer, who came to this country in the Mary and John, 1633 (who mentioned him in his will, made at Newbury, Mass., in 1637, proved at Salem, 1648), and who was probably a brother of the four emigrants mentioned above, and was therefore a lineal descendant of the Spencers of Stotfold, Bedfordshire, Eng., who, it is stated by Collins, "claimed descent from the baronial family of de Spenser, of whom Robert de Spenser came over with William the Conqueror, and was, as his name imports, steward to that monarch." It is interesting to note that at a much earlier date than the marriage of John and Audrey (Greene) Spencer, of the third generation, there was also connection between these two families. The third Sir Thomas Greene of Greene's Norton married Philippa, daughter of Baron Ferrers and his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas "Le Spenser" (see Greene pedigree). The will of Peter Greene of Bowridge Hill, Gillingham, County

Dorset, England, which was proved in 1583, mentions one John Spencer, who was possibly a relative (see Our New England Ancestors, "Spencer and Allied Families," by Henry Whittimore).

I. John Walton died July 22, 1778. Samuel Greene in his will, 1780, gives his "daughter Mercy Walton, widow, the privilege to live in his dwelling-house so long as she remains a widow, if she thinks fit."

Military service of Job Greene of Coventry:

"Confirmation of officers' commissions by General Assembly":

1. Vol. viii., 45-6, Nov., 1776:
 Col. John Sayles' Regt., Capt. Malachi Hammett's Company: Micah Whitmarsh, 1st Lieut.; Job Greene, 2d Lieut.; Jos. Hopkins, Ensign.
2. Vol. viii., 78-9, Dec., 1776:
 Col. Stanton's Regt., Capt. Malachi Hammett's Company: Micah Whitmarsh, 1st Lieut.; Job Greene 2d Lieut.; Wm. Whipple, Ensign.
 (Col. Jno. Topham succeeded to the command of this regt.)
3. Vol. viii., 589, Sept., 1779:
 "Officers for the Alarm Company of the Town of Coventry": Sam'l Wall Capt.; Abel Bennett 1st Lieut.; Job Greene, 2d Lieut.; Jonathan Nichols, Jr., Ensign.
4. Vol. ix., 96, June, 1780:
 Among "Officers to command the several Trained Bands or Companies of Militia within the State" appear in 2d Battalion, county of Kent, Coventry Senior Class Company, Abel Bennett, Capt.; Job Greene, Lieut.; Jonathan Nichols, Ensign.
5. Vol. ix., 408. The same appointments were reaffirmed for 1781.

At the outbreak of the Revolution Job Greene (senior) was fifty-eight years old and his eldest son, Job, was twenty-nine. The above records do not absolutely determine to which of the two this service should be credited. So far as age is concerned it might be either for Rhode Island had not only to furnish its quota for the Continental (Regular) Army, but had to maintain an army for home defence against a British force quartered within its borders from December, 1776, to October, 1779, and every able-bodied male citizen was ordered to be enrolled regardless of age, from sixteen years up.

In above cases 1 and 2 the company officers are the same except the ensign, and the second entry doubtless refers to the same company transferred to another regiment. From association with Bennett and Nichols the Job in the Alarm Company (case 3) is undoubtedly identical with the Job in cases 4 and 5. In Sayles' regiment (vol. viii., 45), among thirty officers named, six are designated as "Jr." In Stanton's regiment there are five "Jr.'s." As Job Greene, senior, was a well-known man who had been Deputy from Coventry, 1757 (Rec. R. I., vi., 4), there is strong presumption that he and not the younger man was the Job made lieutenant, as the latter would doubtless have been noted with the others as "Jr." to distinguish him from his father. It is not known what the term "Senior Class Company" means—whether the elderly men were there enrolled, or if it were made up of veterans, or men who had already had considerable military service.

"Dr." Greene was buried in the north burial-ground at Newport. He married, November 16, 1733, Sarah, daughter of Philip and Martha (Holmes) Tillinghast of Providence, born March 5, 1710. She survived her husband twenty-eight years, and died April 7, 1774. She was also buried at Newport. She married (2) — Carpenter (see Newport Historical Magazine, vol. i., p. 159). She was cousin of Samuel Tillinghast, author of the noted Diaries, who married Daniel's sister, Deborah.

786. ROBY, born January 7, 1735, died January 29, 1753.

The James Greene mentioned in the following note from the Diary of Samuel Tillinghast should also have been recorded as eldest (?) child of Daniel and Sarah Greene if we read correctly: "Mar. 18, 1758—James Greene son Daniel 'prentice to James Greene son Elisha died about 12 this night—buried 21 March. Elders Holden Gorton and Fish preached."

Samuel Tillinghast resided at Apponaug, Warwick. He was a merchant, trader, and writer. His Diaries from 1757 to 1758, now deposited in the Library of the Rhode Island Historical Society at Providence, contain much interesting matter concerning the social habits of the times, and are also useful in showing his many respectable family connections and his intimate relations with the Greene family. His name does not appear in connection with these Diaries, but the author has been fully identified with the Samuel Tillinghast, merchant at Fulling Mill, Apponaug (see Newport Historical Magazine, vol. i., p. 159). He died in 1787, and his wife died December 25, 1750, in the fortieth year of her age. Both were buried in the Baptist burial-ground of East Greenwich village.

CHILDREN:

787. THOMAS TILLINGHAST, born August 16, 1737, died January 27, 1739 (?).

788. (Daughter) TILLINGHAST, married Benjamin Greene, died in Ohio.

The record of Deborah's children is a little uncertain, and one account does not mention any children.

Samuel's parents, in another account, are given "Philip and Martha (Holmes) Tillinghast," but the will of Benjamin Greene, as quoted (No. 387), proves beyond a doubt that he was son of Joseph and Freelove, as above.

"In memory of Samuel
Son of Major James Greene of Newport and of Susan his wife Died Aug. 23d 1758
Aged 20 years."

"In memory of Freelove
Wife of James Greene
Died March 6th 1751
In the 24th year of her age."

James Greene married (2), September 4, 1754, Abigail Freeley of Newport, who died before 1780. He married (3) Susannah Lynch. "James Greene, of Elisha of Gloucester, deceased, married 19. Aug. 1782—Susannah, daughter of Mary Lynch late of Portsmouth R. I." (Portsmouth Records). In Providence Records she is mentioned as "daughter of Mary Lynch of Boston."

James Greene died "about two years after his father," at Gloucester, R. I., which must have been shortly after his third marriage. He appointed, October 28, 1775, "son Josiah Attorney" (Providence Records, vol. xiii.).

James Greene purchased a farm at Gloucester, 1783 (Gloucester Records of Deeds).

She received by will from her father "household goods &c. and one third of his books." Her husband was appointed executor of her father's will, but declined, and Edward Greene, son of his wife's brother Elisha, was appointed in his stead.

She married, July 30, 1741, Joseph Wickes, son of Thomas and Anne (Cole) Wickes, and great-grandson of John Wickes, the emigrant ancestor. He was born May 31, 1719. (He was married (2), June 22, 1758, by Elder John Gorton, to Bridget Price.)

- 826. MARY WICKES, born July 19, 1754.
- 827. WILLIAM WICKES, born July 30, 1756.

(The last two names General Greene gave as children of second wife, but if Joseph Wickes did not marry the second time till 1758, which date is plainly written, Mary and William were of the first marriage.)

The dates of Captain Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> Greene above and those of his cousin Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> (David<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) seem to have been confused. There is reason to conclude that Captain Ebenezer married (perhaps 1751-2) Ann, daughter of William and Phebe (Stafford) Arnold, born April 2, 1734. She married (2) about 1771 Captain John Ladd, and is mentioned in the family correspondence as the mother of Caleb Ladd; is also referred to as "the widow Greene," as will be seen by comparison with record of Catharine<sup>6</sup> Greene (Christopher<sup>5</sup>, Samuel<sup>4</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>).

The will of James Sweet, dated January 3, 1760, proved July 10, 1763, gives "to brother Thomas 5 acres in Coweset with Mansion House [on] part of land purchased of Joseph Wickes, he to pay Ann Greene widow of Ebenezer 240£. bills of credit old Tenor, and gold necklace 60£. being less 7£ what my land is bonded for."

This mention of Ann seems to prove her the widow of Captain Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> Greene (it could not have been his father Ebenezer<sup>4</sup>, for he died in 1728, and this will is dated nearly three years after the death of Captain Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> in 1757). And the fact that Captain Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> Greene's sister Mary (No. 351) married Joseph Wickes, who is also referred to in same will, seems to emphasize the probability that Ann Arnold above (and not Frances Rice) married Captain Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> Greene. And as his widow, she married (2) Captain John Ladd.

Captain Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> Greene died March 23, 1757. Inventory of his estate was dated April 11, 1757.

CHILDREN:

828. EBENEZER, born August 3, 1753.

829. WILLIAM, born November 9, 1754.

Perhaps also a son Peter, as stated by Alexis, son of Caleb Ladd, whose mother (first wife) was Catharine<sup>9</sup> Greene referred to above.

Nathan Greene, Sr., died at East Greenwich, May 19, 1809. His father, Caleb, as before mentioned (see No. 144), was the son of John of West Greenwich, who was not a descendant of John Greene, surgeon, of Warwick, although his wife, Mary <sup>4</sup> Greene (Jabez <sup>3</sup>, James <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was thus descended. Nathan's son, Welcome Arnold Greene, after his father's death, at an early age entered the employ of his cousin, Samuel Greene Arnold, a prominent merchant of Providence, and was soon entrusted by him with the responsible position of supercargo. In this capacity he made voyages to South America, Spain, Norway, Russia, and the East. Returning from his voyages, Mr. Greene accepted the position of cashier of the Mechanics' National Bank of Providence, which he filled from January 7, 1830, to July 11, 1836, when he resigned and withdrew from active business. He was a member of the "Franklin Society for the Encouragement of Domestic Industry," and also of the "Rhode Island Historical Society," where he filled several offices and was for years its valued Treasurer. Mr. Greene was a member of the Society of Friends. Welcome Arnold Greene, Jr. (born 1843), was graduated from the University of Albany as LL.B., in 1863, and practised law for a few years in Providence, R. I., though at the time of his marriage he resided in New Bedford, where he conducted an iron foundry. Thence he removed to Rhode Island, and later abandoned his profession and devoted himself to historical studies.<sup>1</sup>

CHILD:

862. HANNAH, born December, 1760, married Jabez Chadsey, Jr.

"The homestead home of James<sup>2</sup> Greene and his posterity went to Jabez<sup>4</sup> Greene who gave it to his son Jeremiah<sup>5</sup>, who sold it to his [Jabez's] brother Nathanael, the father of the Revolutionary General Nathanael."

The above was copied by General George S. Greene from the "Annals of Mr. Rufus Waterman, senior, at his residence 'The Grange.'" It will be noted that the statement is made (No. 141) that Nathanael<sup>4</sup> inherited the homestead farm from his father, but General Greene made the following note in pencil under the record of Jabez<sup>4</sup> Greene, father of Jeremiah<sup>5</sup>: "Jere. sold 1758 to his uncle Nathanael."

A family letter mentions "William Weaver, born 1736, removed to Bennington Vt. 1773 and had a daughter Hannah Weaver who married a Bell; Rufus Weaver, who died at Cazenovia N. Y.; John Weaver, who died 1784; and Thomas and Andrew Weaver"; also a sister of the above, "Mary, who married Isaac Greene and lived near Quidneck Pond." Silas Weaver, who married Susanna Greene, was referred to in this connection, and it is supposed he was the eldest of these brothers. Susanna, his wife, received by will of her father, Jabez Greene, dated April 20, 1753, "eight hundred pounds in Bills of Credit O. T." (see Appendix I.).

386. GRIFFIN<sup>5</sup> GREENE "of Ohio" (Jabez<sup>4</sup>, Jabez<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Warwick, February 16, 1749. He was one of the proprietors of the Greene Forge at Potowomut. He married, February 16, 1769, Sarah, daughter of Judge Philip<sup>4</sup> (Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) and his wife Elizabeth (Wickes) Greene, who was his third cousin and the sister of Colonel Christopher Greene (No. 255). He was Commissary of Rhode Island troops, 1775; Paymaster of Colonel Greene's regiment; and aide-de-camp of Major-General Nathanael Greene while he was Quartermaster-General of Revolutionary Army, 1778. September, 1779, he was a partner in fitting out two privateers in Rhode Island. In 1788 he removed to Marietta, Ohio, where, in January, 1802, he held the offices of Postmaster and Collector of Customs. He received legacy by his father's will of land in Warwick, R. I. (see Appendix I.). He died at Marietta, Ohio, June, 1804. The following entry is from Elder John Gorton's Journal, April 10, 1782: "Buried Griffin Greene's child." This was probably an infant, born before the removal of the family to Ohio.

CHILDREN:

863. RICHARD, married and lived at Pittsfield, Ill.
 864. PHILIP, of Marietta, Ohio.
 865. GRIFFIN, of Marietta, Ohio.
 866. SUSAN, of Marietta, Ohio, died young.

Hildreth's Pioneer Settlers of Ohio, No. 8 in list of "Families who lived in Farmer's Castle Belpré 1792": "Griffin Greene Esq. wife & 4 children from Rhode Island;

Richard
 Griffin

387. BENJAMIN<sup>5</sup> GREENE "of Newport" (Nathanael<sup>4</sup>, Jabez<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born July 7, 1733-4. He was engaged in the manufacture of iron with his five brothers. He married Freelove, daughter of Joseph and Freelove (Stafford) Tillinghast. He died September 16, 1762. His will, dated July 13, 1761, proved October 9, 1762, mentions "wife Freelove," "brother Thomas," "brother-in Law Samuel Tillinghast of Apponaug," and "brother-in Law Nicholas Tillinghast." His widow, Freelove Greene, died at Newport, November 8, 1787. Left no children. She was granddaughter of Elder Pardon Tillinghast of Providence.

Town Council of Warwick, August 28, 1759: "Whereas Benjamin Greene, son of Nathanael, hath together with his family removed to Newport to dwell there for the better support of his Family and desires to dwell there—The Clerk shall give him a certificate of Residence in Warwick."

Land Evidences of Cranston (vol. i., p. 257) show that in 1762 "Benjamin Greene of Newport, son of Nathanael of Potowomut, sold to Nathanael Greene merchant of Warwick, 237 acres of land given him by his [great-] grandfather Benjamin Greene—wife Freelove."

Warwick Records, Book of Wills, No. 4, p. 121: "The estate of Capt. Samuel Tillinghast is indebted to Heirs of Joseph Tillinghast late of Newport, deceased, 104*£*. 12*s*. 9¼*d*. also to Nicholas Tillinghast, 95*£*. 2*s*. 1¾*d*. and to Freelove Greene, 24*£*. 12*s*. 9¼*d*." (See No. 323.)

"To great grandson Benjamin Greene son of grand daughter Phebe Greene [wife of Nathanael<sup>4</sup>] and to his heirs and assigns forever, Farm at Mashantituck or Secunset and house thereon 237 acres. If he dies before the age of 21, then to his brother Thomas, and if Thomas dies before 21 then to go to grandchildren."

"To grandson Thomas Greene, son of granddaughter Phebe Greene, all lands in West Greenwich—with like remainder to his brother Benjamin.

Lands mortgaged to the Colony for Loan Money shall be redeemed by Executors."

Jacob Greene is described as "not so muscular in frame as his illustrious brother Nathanael, nor so vigorous in constitution. He was also of a less sanguine temperament." He always resided at Coventry, and was actively engaged with his five brothers in the iron works at the forge at Potowomut. He was Commissary of Purchases in the American army.

In 1772 a sloop belonging to him was seized while transporting rum and sugar from East Greenwich to Newport, and some of the property was sent to Boston for adjudication, contrary to the law of the Parliament regulating the trial of such seizures. (This seizure probably hastened the destruction of the Gaspee in June, 1772, an event which was sure to come from the determined and energetic people of Narragansett Bay, whose loyalty was greatly impaired by the acts of the home government unjustly controlling their commerce and manufactures.—G. S. G.)

Before the death of his brother, General Nathanael Greene, Jacob became sole owner and manager of the forge. He resided in the house built by his brother. He had a store on the shore where his anchors and other heavy articles were deposited, trade being carried on between places on the river in sloops of fifteen tons. It was said that Jacob Greene always embarked in the vessel that was freighted at Apponaug with the implements of his skill. "He was an affectionate, indulgent man, active in business, and esteemed for his ability." He continued to manage the forge until his death in 1809 at the age of sixty-nine. His large estate was divided equally among his children. His wife Margaret died December 13, 1802. (See Letters of Henry Rousmanière in Providence Journal, 1859.)

CHILDREN:

867. POLLY (MARIA), born 1762, married Benjamin Sumner.

868. THOMAS, born May 27, 1767, married Jane Dean.

869. JABEZ, died February 7, 1808.

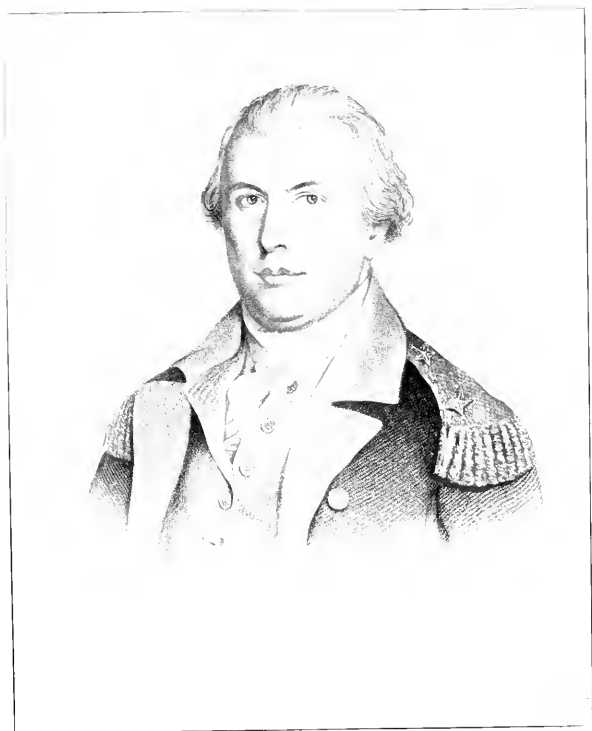

870. MARGARET, born 1772, died 1786.

871. JACOB VARNUM, born 1773, married Patience Cox.

872. JULIA, married Theodore A. Foster.

The administrators of the estate of Jacob Greene were Thomas Greene and Jacob Varnum Greene, his sons, Benjamin Sumner and Theodore A. Foster, his sons-in-law. Jacob and his brother Nathanael were appointed executors of the estate of their father, Nathanael<sup>4</sup> Greene.

in his bright, gay-tempered son, who evaded the iron rule of his sire for his own conscience sake, whenever occasion presented itself. A brave, ingenious strategist long before George Washington found him out! The youngsters of that day called him 'Natty,' but to the Quakers he was known as Nathanael, though not 'without guile,' as, despite his broad-brimmed hat, his hair would persist in curling under it, and despite his collarless, spike-tailed drab coat, Nathanael was a sad dandy at heart and a worldly Quaker!"

His father, holding narrow, restricted views, firmly believed that his boys should receive only the most elementary education, but should, each in turn, be trained to work at the old "Forge Mill" (supplied with one of the largest trip-hammers on the coast), which theory of manual training is even at the present day, usually, fairly well received. Like his brothers, therefore, the young Nathanael was engaged in the manufacture of iron, the business being regarded in the light of a family partnership whose members, from a feeling of Quaker humility, called themselves "blacksmiths." In 1740 Nathanael's father and the other five sons of Jabez Greene had become owners of the entire mill property. The old forge at Potowomut, near the family homestead, had been most successfully operated, and, in 1741, they built another at Coventry which was equally successful and in full operation the year before Nathanael's birth. Its prosperity maintained over one hundred families, the village being named Greenville. Later, Nathanael and his five brothers established the larger forge on the south-west branch of the Pawtuxet River in Coventry, near the Warwick town line, which was also for many years in successful operation.

Notwithstanding his business activity the young Nathanael found time to acquire a large amount of general information, making a special study of mathematics, history, and law. Professor John Fiske, in his American Revolution, vol. i., p. 150, wrote: "From lowly beginnings he had come to be, though still a young man, the most admired and respected citizen of Rhode Island. He had begun life as a blacksmith, but, inspired by an intense thirst for knowledge, he had soon become a learned blacksmith, well versed in history, philosophy, and literature."

Apropos of the above quotation, it may be stated that Mr. Richard Ward Greene Welling of New York (great-grandson of the distinguished General's brother, Perry Greene), who made the acquaintance of Mr. Fiske while at Harvard, wrote to the Professor a few years ago in regard to the inaccuracy of his introductory phrase, and cited the fact that the American ancestor, John Greene, surgeon, and his son John, Deputy Governor of the Colony of Rhode Island, were men of distinction in Old and New England, and also that the books of "The Forge" firm showed large accounts for anchors, cables, and heavy iron work amounting to thousands of pounds, which at that period represented wealth. To this communication Professor Fiske replied as follows:

"CAMBRIDGE, Jan'y 16, 1898.

"Thanks for note on Greene. I have for some time intended to alter the form of expression as liable to mislead. Shall look to it for next edition."

In a recent publication by Archdeacon Cyrus Townsend Brady he makes the following allusion in his preface to General Greene: "Next to Washington, this New England Blacksmith—who so highly educated himself that, for relaxation, he read the Latin poets in the original by the light of the camp-fire—stands as the most brilliant soldier, strategist, tactician, and fighter of the Revolution. . . . And his character was as great as his genius."

From his mother, Mary Mott, Nathanael is said to have inherited some of the strongest traits of his character, and the old traditional story that when her boy forsook Quakerism to assume the dangers and responsibilities of military life, she said to him, "Well, Nathanael, if thee must engage in this carnal warfare in defence of thy country, never let me hear of thee being wounded with thy back to the enemy," bears evidence of her bravery and patriotism, which were certainly nobly emphasized in the son's career.

In his boyhood and early manhood Nathanael was an involuntary member of the Society of Friends, his father being their leading preacher. It was the rule of the Society that all persons born of parents who were counted among its members were by the fact of such birth also considered members. In 1773 Nathanael attended a military meeting with his cousin Griffin Greene (No. 386), and for engaging in the military drills he encountered a remonstrance from the Quaker authorities, and after due consideration he was excluded from their Society.

In 1769 an agreement had been made by Nathanael, Griffin, John, and Benjamin Greene for the management of the forge and mills at Coventry, and Nathanael had been thus freed from his father's stern rule, so that he was able to better command his own time. Though fond of his home, and undoubtedly still honoring and respecting his father, notwithstanding the contrast in their temperaments, he must have rejoiced in this change of life whereby he was enabled to gratify his thirst for education and pursue his plan for self-improvement. Soon after his removal to Coventry he became active in organizing the first public school of that place, and was deeply interested in all educational matters. In April, 1770, he was elected Deputy to the General Assembly from Coventry, and served almost continuously until he was made a Major-General in the Continental Army. In 1774 he was influential in forming the military company known as the "Kentish Guards," at East Greenwich; and of the thirty-seven charter members, ten bore the name Greene. In December of the same year he was appointed by the General Assembly, with four others of high military rank, to revise the militia laws of the Colony. "This was the commencement," wrote General George Sears Greene, "of his military career, from which he rose to a military rank and esteem second to none but the Commander-in-Chief in a contest with the mother country, renowned for her military prowess."

General Francis Vinton Greene, in one of his able articles, "The United States Army," published in Scribner's Monthly, September, 1901, quotes the following from the late Professor John Fiske: "In every campaign since the beginning of the war, Greene had been Washington's right arm, and for indefatigable industry, for strength and breadth of intelligence, and for unselfish devotion to the public service he was scarcely inferior to the Commander-in-Chief."

The career of General Greene, ending in the meridian of life, has been so worthily portrayed by his talented grandson, Hon. George Washington Greene, and his distinguished kinsman, General F. V. Greene, that it is unnecessary herein to enlarge upon the chief events which are familiar history and are simply mentioned below. (See Sketches of the Life and Correspondence of Nathanael Greene, by Wm. Johnson, 2 vols., 1822.) For his services in the war, General Greene was presented with two pieces of captured ordnance, a British standard, and a gold medal. On January 18, 1782, "in consideration of his important services," the General Assembly of South Carolina voted him 10,000 guineas, while the Legislature of North Carolina on April 13, 1782, voted him 5000 guineas and 25,000 acres of land. By resolution of the Legislature of the State of Georgia, May 1, 1782, he received 5000 guineas and 24,000 acres of land. This included a confiscated plantation of the Hon. John Graham, Lieutenant-Governor of Georgia (who adhered to the British), which was situated on the Savannah River, about twelve miles from the city of Savannah. It was known as "Mulberry Grove," and was one of the finest plantations of those days, comprising 2171 acres. At a later date the General wrote of its extent and comfort to his friend, Ethan Clarke, whose daughter afterward married the General's son, Nathanael Ray Greene. The deed of gift was dated March 5, 1785. Cumberland Island, near the southern border of the State, was part of this grant from Georgia.

While in command of the Department of the South, General Greene was repeatedly thanked by General Washington and by Congress. When hostilities were about to cease, General Washington wrote in General Orders from Army Headquarters at Newburgh, N. Y., January 23, 1783, expressing the sense he entertained "of the extraordinary abilities, bravery and prudence displayed by General Greene in conducting the operations in the Southern Department." After the close of the war, General Greene removed his residence from Rhode Island to Georgia, where, at Mulberry Grove, on June 19, 1786, he died suddenly. His death was from a congestive chill induced by exposure to the hot sun when unprotected. Major-General Anthony Wayne, who was with him when he died, in notifying the authorities of Savannah of the sad event, said: "He was great as a soldier, greater as a citizen, immaculate as a friend. The honors—the greatest honors of war—are due to his memory."

August 8, 1786, Congress resolved that a monument should be erected in honor of General Greene's patriotism, valor, and ability, to which the attention of Congress was called after the war of the rebellion by his distinguished kinsman, the late Hon. Henry Bowen Anthony [grandson of James and Rebecca (Pitman) Greene], U. S. Senator from Rhode Island; and in 1877 an equestrian statue was erected in Sherman Square, east of the Capitol, at Washington, D. C. In 1864, every State was invited by Congress "to furnish for the old Hall of the House of Representatives, two full-length marble statues of deceased persons who have been citizens thereof and illustrious for their renown." One of the two contributed by Rhode Island was that of General Nathanael Greene, and in presenting it on behalf of his State, Senator Anthony said: "Among those who, in the Revolutionary period, won titles to the national gratitude, never disavowed, he whose statue we have placed in the Capitol, stands, in the judgment of his contemporaries and by the assent of history, second only to the man who towers without a peer in the annals of America." A monument to General Greene was also erected by the people of Georgia in Johnson Square, Savannah, March 21, 1825, the corner-stone being laid by his deeply attached friend, the Marquis de Lafayette.

On July 20, 1774, General Greene was married by Elder John Gorton to Katharine, daughter of John and Phebe (Ray) Littlefield of New Shoreham, Block Island, born 1755, died September 2, 1814. The ceremony took place at the residence of his third cousin, Wm. Greene (afterward Governor of Rhode Island), which was at Coweset, Warwick, on the Greenwich line, where he had so often been a welcome guest and where he had met the best society of the Colony. Catharine Ray, the wife of the Governor, was aunt to the bride. The following is an exact copy of the invitation to the marriage, sent in the General's own handwriting, addressed to Miss Mary (Polly) Greene (Richard<sup>s</sup>, John<sup>d</sup>, Thomas<sup>s</sup>, Thomas<sup>r</sup>, John<sup>l</sup>), who afterward married Samuel Brown of East Greenwich:

"Nathanael Greene }
Kitty Littlefield } present their compliments to Miss Polly Greene and desires the favor of her company at William Greene's Esq the 20th this instant at 10 o'clock A.M."

Katharine or "Kitty" Littlefield was of the noted Littlefield family who settled in New Shoreham, Block Island, in 1721, and who became prominent and influential in public affairs. She was the granddaughter of Captain Simon and Deborah (Greene) Ray (No. 67), and great-granddaughter of Simon Ray, who came from Braintree, Essex County, England, and settled on Block Island, and his wife, Mary (Thomas) Ray, daughter of Captain Nathaniel Thomas of Marshfield, Mass.

The devotion of General Greene to his wife and family has been portrayed by his descendants as exceptional, and his grandson, Hon. George Washington Greene, tells us that he delighted in his children, and when it became possible for him to remain with them "all the humor and freshness of youth came back to him." After the war and the strain of public life, it was his ambition to retire to the peace of his fireside. His death, at the early age of forty-four years, left his widow with five children, the eldest but little more than ten years of age. Mrs. Greene was married (2), June 28, 1796 at Philadelphia, by Rev. Dr. Ewing to Mr. Phineas Miller, and removed with her family to Dungeness, Cumberland Island, Ga., about 120 miles from Savannah. She died at this home, September 2, 1814, and her youngest daughter, Mrs. Louisa Catharine Shaw, became the owner of the estate. For forty years after Mrs. Greene's second marriage none of the General's descendants lived in or near Savannah.

Inscription at Dungeness, Cumberland Island:

"In Memory of
Catharine Miller, widow of the late
MAJOR-GENERAL NATHANAEL GREENE
Commander-in-Chief of the American Revolutionary Army in the Southern Department in 1783—who died Sep. 2, 1814 aged 59 years.
She possessed great talents and virtue."

This stone has been mistaken for that of her illustrious husband, the cenotaph to his memory, also placed at Dungeness, rather tending to emphasize this error, which should now no longer prevail, as the burial-place of Major-General Nathanael Greene, so long a matter of uncertainty, has recently been discovered (see below).

Asa Bird Gardiner of New York; Hon. Henry L. Greene of Riverpoint, R. I.; Miss Mary A. Greene and Theodore Francis Green of Providence; Rev. Frederic I. Bassett and Miss Margaret L. Chace. General Stevens spoke of the military career of the great hero from 1775 to 1781.

The address of Mr. Henry L. Greene was full of interest, embracing many of the important points in the history of the ancestors of General Nathanael in England and America. His closing words were: "The limit of time allowed on this occasion will not permit me to dwell upon the high, noble, and honorable traits of character which were transmitted from generation to generation in the ancestry of General Greene, and which found in him a magnificent fulfilment, which shed a glorious light around his posterity, and the grand republic he helped Washington to establish."

Mr. Theodore F. Green gave an interesting account of the General's boyhood and early manhood, and alluded to the appreciation in which he was held at that period, as follows: "Greene's talents, his attainments, his character, his mind, were such as did not invite popular attention, but . . . were such, however, as to make a deep impression upon the intelligent and discriminating few with whom he came into personal contact. These had the opportunity to measure his mastery of facts, to estimate his mental powers, to test his public spirit, and to prove his absolute sincerity and singleness of purpose."

Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner, who is a member of the Greene family (Reynolds line) and the President of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, told the interesting story of the finding of the tomb and remains of General Greene by the committee of the Society. On December 17, 1783, Major-General Greene attended the meeting of the Cincinnati in the Senate Chamber at Providence, and was then elected by his brother Continental officers of the Rhode Island line the first President of the Society. He last presided at their annual meeting held in the State House at Newport, July 4, 1785. At the memorial meeting above referred to, Colonel Gardiner quoted the resolutions adopted by the Society, in consequence of the inquiry suggested by the Savannah press and citizens, the result of which was the appointment of a committee "to make inquiries and do whatever should be necessary toward ascertaining the burial-place of its first president, the great patriot and soldier, who next to Washington aided so potentially in securing the Independence of the United States." The members of said committee were: Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner, LL.D., L.H.D., Chairman; Hon. George Anderson Mercer, A.M., President Georgia Historical Society; Hon. Walter G. Charlton, A.M., President Society of Sons of the Revolution of Georgia; Hon. Philip Dickinson Daffin, Chairman of the Savannah Park and Tree Commission; Hon. William Harden, Secretary of the Society of Sons of the Revolution of Georgia, and Librarian of the Georgia Historical Society; and Mr. Alfred Dearing Harden, A.B., LL.B., Member of the South Carolina Society of the Cincinnati. The committee entered upon their inquiries and search with great earnestness, and were soon rewarded with most gratifying success, which will forever set at rest the wild traditions and conflicting statements of the past. The President's address, delivered at the annual meeting held at Newport, July 4, 1901, and published by the Society, gives not only a remarkably clear account of every detail of this search, but many items of historical accuracy in connection with the death and burial of the illustrious General Nathanael Greene, and it should command the attention and interest of all who bear the name. A letter recently written by the Secretary of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati will be of interest in this connection:

"To the Editor of the 'New York Times':

"A committee of gentlemen appointed by the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, of which General Greene was the President at the time of his death, instituted a search in February and found the remains in an old vault in Colonial Park (the site of a former cemetery), in Savannah, Ga., where they were deposited when he died in 1786. They were identified by a variety of concurrent and unmistakable circumstances, and chiefly by the name plate found on the coffin. This was so much corroded that, although it revealed a part of the name of the deceased, it was brought North to be wholly cleaned by modern processes. The restoration was perfect and gave the name, age, and date of death of Gen. Greene distinctly.

"The plate was returned to Savannah and presented to the Georgia

Historical Society, whose President, the Hon. George A. Mercer, and several members were among the committee which discovered the remains. The following letter from the Corresponding Secretary of the Georgia Historical Society to the Secretary of the Rhode Island State Society of the Cincinnati settles the matter in the estimation of the persons best qualified to give judgment:

“DEAR SIR: I am directed by the Georgia Historical Society to return, through you, to the Cincinnati of Rhode Island, our sincere thanks for the coffin plate of Gen. Nathanael Greene, recently discovered in this city. The interesting relic has been suitably encased in glass and securely placed in the archives of our society.

“The unmistakable inscription sets forever at rest the question of the identity of the remains and the spot of his burial. Much credit is due your society for the patriotic interest displayed in this matter.

[Signed]           “OTIS ASHMORE,
“Cor. Secretary, Georgia Historical Society.”

“Mr. Ashmore is the well-known Superintendent of Public Education of Savannah, and an antiquarian and local annalist of wide reputation.

“GEORGE W. OLNEY.

“NEW YORK, August 30, 1901.”

It should be stated that the remains of the eldest son of General Nathanael, George Washington Greene, who was drowned in the Savannah River, March 28, 1793, were also found in the vault beside those of his father.

The following letter was received by the compiler of this Genealogy:

“SAVANNAH, GA., 31st May, 1901.

“DEAR MADAM: Your letter of the 1st was duly received and it gives me very great pleasure to assure you that the evidence of the discovery of the remains of General Nathanael Greene is too positive to admit of doubt.

“The finding of the two bodies together in the vault, which upon investigation proves to my mind that it is the one owned by the Graham family, seemed to show that they were the remains of Gen. Greene and his son George W.; the size of one of the skulls indicated that it was that of Gen. Greene; and lastly, the coffin plate, which, after the removal of the rust on it, shows the inscription plainly, is of itself the most convincing evidence. This much is easily read on the coffin plate:

NATHANAEL GREENE

Obit June 19 1786

Æ 44 years.

If any one ever really doubted that the remains found in the vault in the old cemetery here, were those of General Greene, such doubt should now certainly be removed.

“Very truly yours,

“WM. HARDEN,
“Librarian.”

In concluding his address at Newport, Colonel Gardiner states that, “No decision has yet been reached as to where these honored remains shall finally be deposited, whether under the obelisk in Savannah, or under the equestrian statue at Washington, or under the new monument about to be erected at the State Capitol of Greene’s native State, or under the proposed monument on the Guilford Court House battle ground.

“In any final determination the Rhode Island State Society of the Cincinnati propose to make no suggestion, but to leave the subject wholly with Major-General Greene’s direct descendants, after due consideration, as seems most suitable, with the Governors of the States of Rhode Island and Georgia respectively.”

From The Republican, Auburn, N. Y., Wednesday, October 11, 1826: “Died in E. Greenwich, R. I. 26th ult. [September], William Greene, Esq., aged 83, the eldest surviving brother of Gen’l Nathanael Greene of the Revolutionary Army. Throughout his long life the deceased sustained the reputation of an honest man, a faithful friend and a good citizen. The ruling sentiments of his heart were love to God and good will toward men; and his conduct through life was guided by these principles. It may be said of him that he delighted in doing good and that he was never known to say a hard thing or intentionally do a wrong one. In the war of the Revolution he took a decided part, and throughout that memorable struggle was among the firm, steady and active supporters of American Independence” (Contributed by Wm. M. Robinson, Grand Rapids, Mich.).

at Potowomut. He married, December 5, 1775, Jane, daughter of William and Sarah Flagg of Boston, and granddaughter of Edward and Jane (Franklin) Mecom, sister of Benjamin Franklin. She was born in Boston, January 22, 1757, and died at Potowomut, April 6, 1782, when only twenty-four years of age. Her father, William Flagg, born about 1735, was the great-grandson of Lieutenant Gershom and Hannah (Leffingwell) Flagg of Woburn, Mass. Lieutenant Flagg was born about 1648, and was the son of Thomas Flagg, born 1616, who came from County Norfolk, England, settled at Watertown, Mass., in 1641, and who was probably ancestor of all the Flaggs in America. He died 1696-7. His son, Lieutenant Gershom, died July 6, 1690, probably in the expedition to Port Royal. (See N. E. Gen. Reg., vol. vii., p. 246; Drake's Researches, p. 46.)

Belcher of Newport, born 1758, baptized (with her mother and brothers and sisters) February 25, 1770, at Trinity Church, Newport. A miniature of Mrs. Elizabeth (Belcher) Greene, now in possession of her descendants, shows her to have been a high-bred and attractive lady. (See Newport Hist. Mag., v., p. 317.)

CHILDREN:

892. WILLIAM PERRY, born June 10, 1784, married (1) Mary Olucy, and (2) Susan E. Mumford.

893. ALBERT COLLINS (Maj.-Gen.), born April 15, 1791, married Catharine Celia Greene.

The emigrant ancestor of the Belcher family was Gregory Belcher, who came from Braintree, England, to Boston, Mass., in 1634. He was prominent in the founding of the church at Braintree, Mass., where he was one of the early settlers. His son Josiah (named in his mother's will) was one of the founders of the Old South Church, Boston. The following from Rhode Island Colonial Records gives the record of Joseph, great-great-grandson of Gregory Belcher, and father of Mrs. Perry Greene:

Vol. v., 487: Joseph Belcher, freeman, Newport, May, 1756.

Vol. v., 54: October 4, 1756—Joseph Belcher, "Capt. 4th Co. of the Regiment to be raised to reinforce troops for this Colony at Crown Point, Lieut.-Col. Benj. Meekham commanding."

Vol. vii., 13, 366, 375, 436, 510, 576: Further records "Officers of the several companies of Newport": August, 1775, Joseph Belcher, "Col. Reg't. Newport County."

Joseph and Ruth Brownell of Portsmouth, R. I., born in Portsmouth, December 30, 1745, died September 26, 1834 (Friends Records, died January 26, 1824). He died March 10, 1832.

CHILDREN BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

904. SYLVANUS, born October 25, 1763.
 905. RUSSELL, born October 29, 1767.
 906. CASEY, born December 28, 1770, died young.
 907. MARY (POLLY), married William Burke, Jr.

398. RUSSELL<sup>5</sup> GREENE (Rufus<sup>4</sup>, Jabez<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at East Greenwich, March 9, 1738-9. He married, November 3, 1763, Barbara, daughter of Thomas Casey, who died July 26, 1785. He died in 1768. The will of "Barbary Greene, widow," dated June 17, 1785, proved September 24, 1785, bequeaths $100 to her father, Thomas Casey, and makes bequests to "sister Elizabeth Freeborn" and to other relatives. Russell Greene was named for his mother's family. She was a lineal descendant of Ralph Russell from Pontypool, Monmouthshire, England, who came to America, 1652, and was the progenitor of the Russells of New Bedford, Mass. (No. 143).

CHILD:

908. CASEY RUSSELL, born March 31, 1765, died December 4, 1768.

Captain Russell Greene was drowned February 24, 1768, in crossing Narragansett Ferry, and his body was never recovered. He was in his twenty-ninth year.

After the death of his wife (date not known), Sylvester Greene removed with his family to New Bedford, where he married again. The name of this second wife is not given. One account says that he went to New Bedford with his "four daughters who married and settled there"; but the birth of one (Phebe) is recorded twenty-two years later than the birth of the eldest, Mary, and it seems more probable that he went with his family of four children (including his son Nicholas) to New Bedford, and that Phebe was the child of his second marriage.

CHILD:

412. MARY<sup>5</sup> GREENE (David<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born June 2, 1727. She married, February 14, 1754, Charles Tillinghast, son of John and grandson of Pardon, son of Elder Pardon Tillinghast of Providence, born April 15, 1729, died November, 1776 (?). The will of Mary's father, David<sup>4</sup> Greene (proved October 18, 1767), mentions his "daughter Mary Tillinghast." (North Kingstown Records, 48/69.)

413. DAVID<sup>5</sup> GREENE (David<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), eldest son, was born August 25, 1728. He was made freeman of Jamestown, R. I., April 30, 1754. He "was a farmer, and was lame." He married (1), Elizabeth —, who died April 8, 1783, in her fifty-third year; and (2), Esther —, who died January 30, 1788. He died August 8, 1789.

CHILDREN:

960. DAVID, born November 4, 1760, married Sarah Allen.
 961. MARY, born June 14, 1765.
 962. JONATHAN, born July 25, 1767, died December 29, 1821.

CHILDREN:

CHILDREN:

 982. JOSEPH EARLE, born January 2, 1806.
 983. JACOB BARNEY (OR BARNES), born March 18, 1808.

432. JOSEPH<sup>5</sup> GREENE "of Jamestown" (Joseph<sup>4</sup>, David<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born March 30, 1760. He died at Jamestown, R. I., August 11, 1844, aged eighty-four. In his will he mentions his Jamestown home as follows: "where my predecessors of the same name have lived for generations back, if not from the first settlement of the Island by the English emigrants." And in another clause: "that inasmuch as my home has been open during my life-time (as well as for generations back to the life-time of my ancestors of the same name) for the reception and entertainment of ministers, and others travelling in the service of Truth, so it shall continue to be a place for the reception and entertainment of such forever, in conformity with the preamble to this my Last will and Testament and in the discretion of my Trustees." He also mentions having chosen his burial-place, "in the north corner of my nether orchard, the spot which I and my two sisters herein after named, have selected for a place of burial for ourselves, &c." He makes ample provision for his "dear and tenderly beloved sisters, Anne and Mary Greene" (both died before him) and his "beloved brother Jonathan" and Jonathan's sons, "John, David, William, and Joseph." The terms of his will and the many bequests to other relatives would indicate that Joseph Greene had no children.

The following is probably from Jamestown records: "Sarah Greene, wife of Joseph Greene and daughter of Jabez and Sarah Collins of Hopkinton died Sep. 9, 1827 aged 46 yr. 11 m. 5 da." If wife of this Joseph (born 1760), she must have been twenty years his junior. (For will, see Appendix I.)

"Jonathan Greene son of James Greene of Coventry, and Lydia Nichols daughter of Jonathan, both of East Greenwich married by Elder John Gorton of Warwick, in said Greenwich Oct. 7, 1770" (Elder Gorton's marriage list).

 1026. TURPIN, born September 20, 1796, married Martha Hall.
 1027. RANSOM, born August 10, 1798, married Diantha Greene.

In a letter from Dr. Caleb Greene, son of Turpin and grandson of Caleb, he mentions his recollection of his grandmother's reference to the Coventry home as "down country," as elderly people then called it.

From the Record and Pension Office, Washington, D. C. (all Dutchess County): "The records of this office show that one Caleb Greene served as a private in Captain Richard Sackett's Co. of Colonel Morris Graham's Regiment, New York, Rev. War. His name appears on a pay-roll, not dated—with remark—'Entered Feb. 16 1778,' and his name is last borne on a pay-roll for the period from Aug. 1 to Sept. 18, 1778, without special remark relating to his services."

"The records also show that one Caleb Greene, rank not stated, served in Captain Francis West's Co. of Militia, from Dutchess Co., in Vanderburgh's Regiment of N. Y. Militia, Rev. War."

His name appears on a pay-roll for September, 1778, dated at Fort Clinton, September 23, 1778, with remarks, "Commencing Sept. 18, Ending Sept. 24 No. of days 7."

"The records further show that one Caleb Greene, rank not stated, served in Fields' regiment of Dutchess Co., N. Y., Militia, Rev. War. His name appears on a return of Capt. Josh. Dykman's Co. to West Point 8 days 1780, without special remark as to his service."

A descendant writes that the above is quoted exactly from Revolutionary War Records, and there is no doubt from family traditions that all this service was rendered by this Caleb Greene. He lived in Dutchess County until after his fourth child was born, 1783. Then he went to Easton, Washington County, and from there to Pompey, N. Y.

She married (1), December 28, 1777?, Job Whaley of West Greenwich, son of Thomas Whaley of Coventry, R. I.; and (2) Rufus Brayton, when he removed from Rhode Island to New York State and resided at Berlin, N. Y.

Captain Caleb Greene was alluded to in family correspondence as "an uncommonly amiable and affectionate man." He found that the war had so interrupted his business, he removed with his brother William to Foster, R. I., and engaged in farming. "This was not to his liking, and he soon returned with his family to Warwick; but finding no satisfactory business there, he removed thence to Providence, where he again met with disappointment, and was finally induced against his judgment (and it was said through the influence of his wife) to accept the command of a slave-ship bound for Africa. His friends noticed at the time of sailing, that he seemed to feel disgraced and was much depressed. Upon his arrival on the coast of Africa, he was taken sick and died there of fever soon after, thus sadly closing his embittered life" (Family letter, copied 1871).

He was grandson of John Gardiner of Gardiner's Island and his first wife, Mary King. He resided at Worcester, where his first wife, Hannah, died, December 15, 1765. His house was described by Timothy Dwight, D.D., in his Travels as "one of the handsomest which I have seen in the interior of the country."

Gardiner Chandler was Selectman, 1754-55-56; Treasurer of Worcester County, 1754-62; Sheriff of Worcester County, 1762-75. August 10, 1757, as Major and commander he marched with Captain John Curtis's company to Sheffield, 105 miles distant, to aid in checking the advance of the French after the surrender of Fort William Henry. February 5, 1762, he was chosen by the General Assembly, "Collector of Excise" for Worcester County. He died at Worcester, June 28, 1782, in his fifty-ninth year. (For further record, see Chandler Family, pp. 231-6.)

Nathaniel Greene lived for many years in Providence, where he was a prosperous merchant. His store was still standing a few years ago (1891). There came to that city one Thomas Jenkins of Nantucket, Mass., who, in 1783, formed an association of about thirty men, mostly merchants or mariners, among whom were Nathaniel Greene and Samuel Mansfield, who became his son-in-law. This little company moved to Hudson, N. Y., and were prominent in its early settlement. Nathaniel Greene is mentioned as "one of Hudson's energetic, active citizens." He was the first Recorder appointed by the Governor and Council in 1785, and was one of nine who contributed eleven shillings fourpence each to defray the cost of a city seal, the said seal being still in use (see History of Hudson, by Stephen B. Miller). Mr. Greene was appointed one of the trustees of the Presbyterian Society at its organization in 1790. He subscribed £40 to the building fund of the church. In a list of those whose estates were taxed for 1797 he was assessed £820. He died at Hudson, April 29, 1806. His widow lived to be ninety years of age, and died also at Hudson, April 27, 1831, where both were buried. It is recently learned through the superintendent of the cemetery that "Nathaniel Greene's tombstone has to all appearances been in place ever since his death in 1806, the position of stone being horizontal and raised about two and a half feet from the ground." His death is thereon recorded at sixty-eight years, but the exact date is not given (for inscriptions, see Appendix III.). Mrs. Greene, in old age, became very feeble and was nearly blind, but it was said "she was always able to tell the value of a coin by the touch." The story is told (but not vouched for) that when a neighbor who was nearing his end asked her what message he should bear to her husband in the other world, she replied, "Tell him I have doubled the property since he left." The estate inherited by her descendants was a large one for those days.

CHILDREN:

1227. ELIZABETH, born December 15, 1766, married Samuel Mansfield.
 1228. CATHARINE, born —, married Elisha Jenkins.

In a private letter the writer mentions that he vaguely recalls having seen an advertisement of "Nathaniel Greene & Son" in an old Providence newspaper, but we find no record of any but the above children.

Providence Land Evidences (1792?): "Nathaniel Greene and wife Keziah to John Mumford of Newport: Sold  $\frac{1}{4}$  of building sold by Thomas Greene, Jonathan Greene of East Greenwich, tailor, and wife Lydia—mortgage 22 May 1792" (see No. 443).

January 7, 1792: "Nathaniel Greene of Hudson, N. Y. and Keziah his wife sold lot in Providence purchased of — Low, to Grenell & Sayles."

February 25, 1800, Governor De Witt Clinton deeded to Nathaniel Greene of Hudson, Dutchess County, N. Y. (consideration, $1.00):

Lot 37, Town of Homer, 600 acres.

Lot 82, Town of Junius, 600 acres.

Lot 17, Town of Camillus, 600 acres.

All these towns were in Cayuga County. Now, Homer is in Cortland, Junius in Seneca, and Camillus in Onondaga County (Book A, p. 388).

When the term of service expired most of the men of the regiment enlisted in the regiment of the line, Colonel Benedict Arnold, in 1778. Rev. Mr. Leonard was called to his home by the sickness of a child; he overstayed his furlough a few days, and when, on his return to camp, he was met at Danbury, Conn., with the news that he had been censured and superseded, it so affected him that he shot himself on August 14, 1778. He was son of Rev. Nathaniel<sup>5</sup> (George<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, James <sup>2</sup>, Thomas <sup>1</sup>) and Priscilla (Rogers) Leonard, who were settled at Plymouth, and was born there, November 5, 1740. H. C., 1759, Yale, 1766. He was of the noted Leonard family whose progenitors were James and Henry, sons of Thomas Leonard of Pontopool, England, who came to America in 1650, and established at Raynham (Taunton, Mass.) the first iron works in Plymouth Colony in 1652. The first wife of Rev. Extracts from Miss Larned's History of Windham County:

P. 149: "26 April, 1775. General Assembly of Conn. Raised a regiment in Windham Co. Israel Putnam Colonel. Chaplain, Rev. Abiel Leonard, the eloquent and patriotic pastor of Woodstock's 1st Church. The society could not bring itself to vote consent to such a sacrifice, but 'by its silence manifested its resignation to said appointment.' "

P. 150: "18 July, 1775. At Cambridge, Mass., Putnam's division was paraded in full force at Prospect Hill and after hearing the Declaration read with great pathos and solemnity by Chaplain Leonard, each soldier responded thrice with deep and fervent Amen."

P. 160: "In the winter of 1675-6 a majority of Putnam's Regiment re-enlisted in the 20th Regt. Continental Army, 'Rev. Abiel Leonard, Chaplain.' Woodstock would gladly have recalled her ministerial favorite at the close of the winter's campaign, but yielded to the wishes of the Commander-in-Chief and their own honored leader, as expressed in the following letter:

" 'To the Church and Congregation at Woodstock:

" 'Mr. Leonard is a man whose exemplary life and conversation must make him highly esteemed by every person who has the pleasure of being acquainted with him. It therefore can be no surprise to us that they are not [willing] to part with him. His influence in the army is great. He is employed in the glorious work of attending to the morals of a brave people who are fighting for their liberties—the liberties of the people of Woodstock—the liberty of all America. We therefore hope that knowing how nobly he is employed the congregation of Woodstock will cheerfully give up to the public a gentleman so very useful, and when by the blessing of a kind Providence, this glorious and unparalleled struggle for our liberties is at an end, we have not the least doubt but Mr. Leonard will, with redoubled joy, be received in the arms of a congregation so endeared to him as the good people of Woodstock are. This is what is hoped for. This is what is expected by the congregation of Woodstock's sincere well wishers and very humble servants

" 'GEORGE WASHINGTON,
" 'ISRAEL PUTNAM.

"HEADQUARTERS, CAMBRIDGE, 23 March, 1776.'

(Original letter in possession of Hon. Horace Everett's family, Council Bluffs, Iowa.)

"The prayers and preaching of Mr. Leonard were often commended by patriot journals. On the Sabbath after the evacuation of Boston by the British and its occupation by the Americans, he is reported to have 'preached an excellent sermon in the audience of his Excellency the General and others of distinction, from Exodus iv. 25.' "

P. 179: "And Woodstock's beloved Leonard passed beyond human judgment. His brilliant career closed in great darkness and sorrow. Overstaying his furlough in consequence of the dangerous sickness of one of his children, he was met (at Danville, Conn.) on his journey back to camp by the tidings that he had been censured and superseded. Keenly sensitive to public opinion he felt unable to endure the disgrace and in the first shock of mortification he took his life with his own hand."

P. 194: "The church at Woodstock hill was very seriously affected by the long absence and death of Rev. Abiel Leonard."

A portrait of Rev. Mr. Leonard, by the celebrated artist Copley, is in possession of his descendants.

From the Massachusetts Historical Society Collection, 1900-01, p. 68, we learn that "At one time Mr. Greene was in partnership with his cousin Benjamin Greene, and at another with his half-brother Joseph Greene, on King Street, and on Greene's Wharf, Boston. He was appointed Register of Deeds for Co. of Suffolk, Oct. 4, 1786." The Boston Gazette of May 8, 1786, published an article by a correspondent which compared the claims of Mr. Nathaniel Greene and his opponent, of which the closing argument was as follows:

"If the child of him who was one of the first merchants of this place, as old Mr. Greene certainly was; If the man who has eminently served the tradesmen and mechanics of this town by his business (though unprofitable to himself) as certainly Nathaniel Greene has done; If a needy and numerous family of young children as his assuredly is; If a firm and unshaken attachment to the late revolution as most decidedly he possessed during the whole of the late war, can render him an object of the suffrages of the generous, virtuous electors of this town; our correspondent thinks that tomorrow's votes for County Register will be fully in favor of Mr. Nathaniel Greene."

Several trials, however, were necessary before a majority of votes could be obtained, and the appointment made on October 4th, as above. The following advertisement appeared in The Independent Chronicle, October 12, 1786:

"Nathaniel Greene

Presents his compliments to the respectable inhabitants of the county of Suffolk, and informs them that that he has opened his office for the Registry of Deeds, at the house formerly occupied by Mssrs Brimmers, near the sign of the Lamb; where constant attendance will be given after sunrise.

"BOSTON Oct. 11, 1786."

The date of his death recorded by the Boston Gazette, Monday, January 31, 1791, differs from that given above: "Died On Saturday last Nathaniel Greene Esq. in the 53rd year of his age; Register of Deeds for Suffolk Co. His funeral will be Tomorrow at half past 3 P.M. from his house near the Mall which his Relatives and Friends are requested to attend without further invitation."

In 1778 he was proscribed as a loyalist and banished from his country by the Legislature of Massachusetts. He associated himself with his father-in-law in commerce at Antigua, but after the Revolution, returned to Boston, and was for a long time President of the Union Insurance Company of that city. He and his wife and children, John Rose, David Ireland, Charles Winston, and Rebecca Greene, were naturalized by the General Court of Massachusetts in May, 1789. He died at Ballston Springs, N. Y., June 21, 1812. The following tribute to his memory was contributed by his great-grandson, David G. Haskins, Jr.: "Very few persons have passed through life so much beloved and esteemed as was Mr. Greene by a numerous circle of friends and acquaintances. His singular sweetness of temper, his undeviating politeness, his uncommon attention to strangers, and his extensive connections in business, made him known and admired in every part of the Union; and he was justly considered both at home and abroad as one of the most accomplished gentlemen of New England. He was for many years a distinguished merchant, and was alike esteemed for his integrity and his attention to business."

CHILDREN:

1286. CATHARINE TAYLOR, born about 1763 (?), died in Leamington, England, 1839. She married, about 1799, in Nova Scotia, Edward Brabazon Brenton, son of James and Rebecca (Scott) Brenton, who removed from Rhode Island to Nova Scotia about the time that the Taylor family settled there. Edward Brenton studied law and became Judge of Supreme Court, Halifax, and held important offices. England, where he died in 1845, leaving one daughter, Mary Elizabeth, who, at the age of ninety, was still living at Leamington. Edward Brenton was great-great-grandson of Governor Wm. Brenton of Rhode Island, and of Governor John Cranston, and a nephew of Admiral Jahleel Brenton of the British Navy.

Through their great-grandmother, Ann (Winslow) Taylor, the children of Wm. and Mary (Greene) Taylor may claim descent from John Rogers, the martyr. Their grandmother Taylor was a Miss D'Ambrige, said to have belonged to the Huguenot family whose descendants came to America, and also claimed descent from John Rogers.

CHILD:

1290. CATHARINE GREENE HICKLING married, December 18, 1793, Hon. Wm. Prescott, son of Colonel William Prescott of the Revolutionary Army, born at Pepperell, Mass., August 19, 1762. He taught for some time at Beverly to enable him to prosecute his legal studies, and there began the practice of law. He soon rose to distinction in the profession in which his talents, his integrity, and his industry gained for him a high rank. In 1828 he retired from the bar, after more than forty years' service. He died December 8, 1844, and was buried in the family crypt under St. Paul's Church, Boston (Prescott Mem., Part I., p. 76). There were seven children, of whom four died in infancy. The eldest surviving was Wm. Hickling Prescott, the celebrated historian, born Salem, Mass., May 4, 1796, married, May 4, 1820, Susan, daughter of Thomas C. Amory, a merchant of Boston. (2) Catharine Elizabeth Prescott, born Salem, November 12, 1799; married Franklin Dexter, son of Hon. Samuel, the eminent lawyer and statesman. (3) Edward Gordon Prescott, born Salem, January 2, 1804, a lawyer, Colonel in the militia, and Representative in the Legislature. Later he studied for the ministry, and in 1837 settled as an Episcopal clergyman in New Jersey. His labors proved severe, and to restore failing health, he decided to visit St. Michael, one of the Azores Islands, but died suddenly, April 11, 1844, three days after he embarked. He married in New Jersey.

558. MARTHA<sup>5</sup> GREENE (Rufus<sup>4</sup>, Nathaniel<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), was baptized March 9, 1747. Her uncle, Thomas Greene, brother of Rufus, her father, was her godfather. She married (2d wife), William Taylor, whose first wife was her sister Mary (No. 552). It is supposed that her uncle Thomas presented her at baptism with a quart silver tankard, the history of which is of peculiar interest. It had engraved upon it the initials T. G. and M. G., but as the latter belonged to both wives of William Taylor, it is difficult to determine to which sister the tankard was presented, though, as stated above, it is most natural to conclude it was a christening gift as the uncle, "T. G.," was Martha's godfather, as above stated. Upon the death of Mr. Taylor, the tankard came into possession of his daughter (by first wife), who married Edward B. Brenton, and was inherited by her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, the family living at that time (1839) in England. An intimate friend of the Brentons in 1878 secured the tankard, the proceeds of the sale of which were to be appropriated for a memorial (or charity), and it passed to the trade, finally coming into possession of a Brenton descendant. The tankard was made by Paul Revere, goldsmith, of Revolutionary fame (see illustrations in chapter on "The Family Arms"). Mrs. Martha (Greene) Taylor died in 1781, ten years after her sister's death, but whether the event occurred in Boston or Nova Scotia is not stated.

John Greene married, December 26, 1765, Azubah, daughter of Daniel and Mary Ward of Worcester, Mass., born November 11, 1737. William Ward, her emigrant ancestor, came from England in 1639, "of Sudbury Mass. 1643," and later of Marlboro. He was Representative in General Court; died 1687. His grandson, Obadiah, son of Richard, moved to Worcester, Mass., where he died in 1717. Obadiah's wife, Joanna, was a granddaughter of Edward and Rebecca Garfield. Daniel (son of Obadiah and Joanna) and his wife Mary were the parents of Azubah Ward, who married John Greene, and they were the great-grandparents of Mrs. Lucretia Garfield, widow of President Garfield.

She married, October 25, 1774, in Boston, Captain John Callahan, born at Cork, Ireland, December 15, 1745. His mother was Eleanor Clifford, an English lady, who married (2) a Mr. Gould. They lived in Cork. Captain Callahan ran away from home at the early age of ten and went to sea. He afterward became captain. He was a strong abolitionist and freed all his slaves, which made him poor. His wife made many voyages with him, and their children were born in different parts of the world. Captain Callahan's letters to his wife (unfortunately destroyed) were very interesting, as exhibiting the strong points of his character. He died in Demerara, November 18, 1806, "much lamented—a fond husband; an indulgent parent; a worthy member of society and an honest man."

569. GARDINER<sup>5</sup> GREENE "of Boston" (Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, Nathaniel<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Boston, Mass., September 23, 1753. He spent several years in Demerara, British Guiana, engaged in successful business. He married (1), June 2, 1785, Anne, daughter of Dr. William and Ann (Livingston) Reading, born January 29, 1762, died, s. p., October 25, 1786. He married (2), November 25, 1788, Elizabeth, daughter of Daniel Hubbard, Jr., and his wife, Mary<sup>5</sup> Greene (Thomas<sup>4</sup>, Nathaniel<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), born in Boston, March 23, 1760, died in Demerara, South America, September 7, 1797. After the death of his second wife, Mr. Greene returned to Boston, and was President of the Boston branch of the United States Bank. He married (3), in London, England, July 3, 1800, Elizabeth Clarke, daughter of John Singleton Copley, the celebrated artist, and his wife, Susannah Clarke. Elizabeth's brother John became Baron Lyndhurst and was Lord Chancellor of England. She was baptized in Trinity Church, Boston, December 9, 1770, died February 1, 1866, and was buried in the family tomb in the Granary Burial Ground, Tremont Street, Boston. Gardiner Greene died in Boston, December 19, 1832. In his will, dated May 21, 1828, he devised his estate: "For the ardent love and tender affection I have toward my Dear Wife Elizabeth Clarke, born Copley—over the $3,000 annual settlement made in London on y<sup>e</sup> 2<sup>ed</sup> July 1800, in Lieu of Dower, my Dwelling house that I bot of Jona. Mason Esq., besides $200,000" (further items of will, Chandler Family, p. 224). This estate, which he "bought of Jonathan Mason Apr. 2, 1803, with mansion house and brick stable, for the consideration of forty thousand dollars" contained at the time of Mr. Greene's death 103,945 feet and was appraised at $142,000, being sold three years later for $160,000. It was on the crest of the hill known afterward as Pemberton Square. The house has been described as "having no architectural pretensions of any kind but the natural beauties of the site improved by taste and art made it altogether the most splendid private residence in the city."

 1326. MARY COPLEY, born July 21, 1817, married James S. Amory.

In 1818 Mr. Greene presented to Harvard College all the proof engravings of the historical paintings of his father-in-law, John Singleton Copley, the artist.

The following note was found among the papers of the late General George Sears Greene:

"John Singleton Copley, artist, commenced his career in Boston, where he painted many portraits of public men and private citizens, a few of which are mentioned by Drake. Desiring to widen his career and see what others had done (he had heretofore been self-instructed) he went in 1774 to England and to Rome. Having accomplished the object of his visit as far as his time and means would allow he returned to England, being joined there the next year (1776) by his wife and children, where he pursued his profession with great reputation to the close of his life [1816]. Sabine classes him as among loyalists, which is not correct, as he always sympathized with his native country in the contests with the Home Government."

In this connection it is interesting to note the honor paid to the artist's memory. He was buried in the fine old parish church at Croyden, about nine miles south of London, where some of the most famous of the Archbishops of Canterbury were laid, among them Archbishop Grindall, who was the great-great-uncle of Edward Rawson, Secretary of Massachusetts Bay Colony, who married a niece of John Greene, surgeon, of Warwick, R. I. The remains of Mr. Copley, "famous painter and Royal Academician," were placed in a vault in one of the side aisles. When the church was destroyed by fire (1867 ?) the plain slab on the floor of the church, inscribed with a modest record of his rank as an artist and the date of his death, 1816, escaped, in part, the ravages of the fire, although many elaborate monuments were destroyed.

married, August 3, 1777, Sarah Davis of North Kingstown. He removed to Concord, N. H. (probably about this date). The following was taken from a note on the margin of the Greene Pedigree Chart at the Boston Athenæum Library: "As regards the branch which settled in New Hampshire the first person of special note seems to have been Peter Greene. He signed the Association test, 1776, but afterwards was imprisoned at Exeter for being supposed to have sided with the King. The ground on which the State House was built at Concord belonged to him."

615. JAMES <sup>6</sup> GREENE (James <sup>5</sup>, William <sup>4</sup>, Peter <sup>3</sup>, John <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born in 1754. He was one of the earliest cotton manufacturers in the State, and was the first proprietor and manager of the Greene manufactory at Centreville, Warwick, the second cotton mill built in this country. It is written of him that although he "inherited Quaker principles which were also strengthened by an appropriate education, he could not withstand the temptation of gunpowder." He was a Revolutionary soldier and rose to the rank of captain of a military company, engaged September, 1778, in the expedition on Rhode Island against the English forces there encamped. After this adventure he settled down as a private citizen. He lived in Centreville, in the house built by his father, one of the first three in the village. He was married (1) by Rev. Joseph Snow, pastor of the Beneficent Congregational Church of Providence, November 17, 1782, to Rebecca, daughter of Saunders and Mary Kinnicut Pitman, born March 11, 1763, died July 7, 1806. "She was much beloved and lamented and the kindness with which she dispensed her bounty to the afflicted, seemed to double the blessings she bestowed." She was the grandmother of Hon. Henry Bowen Anthony, United States Senator.

Captain Greene married (2) Mercy, daughter of Captain William and Phebe (Arnold) Waterman of Warwick, who died February 28, 1851. He died October 14, 1825. Captain Greene was not ambitious for public honor, and was "too modest to receive more than his merits deserved. He exhibited a symmetry of purpose and action that grew, and he lived and died in the light of universal approbation. He was a quiet man, at all times averse to pomp or parade. By his prudence he added to his hereditary wealth and by his integrity he left to his posterity a reputation for manly and useful virtues." He is described as "tall and muscular, of commanding presence, mild voice, and genial manner, bearing a strong resemblance in mind and person to his father, James <sup>5</sup> Greene of Centreville." Both were buried in the James Greene cemetery, about one quarter of a mile from the bridge at Centreville, Warwick.

She married, December 25, 1768, Moses Lippitt "of the Mill," so called because he owned the grist mill built by Thomas Stafford, the first and only one in Warwick, where he ground corn for the whole town. He was the son of Moses<sup>4</sup> (Moses<sup>3</sup>, Moses<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) and Waite (Rhodes) Lippitt, born May 6, 1745, died June 14, 1833. John Lippitt, his great-great-grandfather, was one of the early proprietors of Providence in 1638, and one of the thirty-eight who signed the agreement for form of government May 16, 1647; and was also one of the commission appointed to form a government under the charter of Warwick in 1648.

He "built and resided in the house on the hill, afterward the residence of Alexander Allen, postmaster of the village. He introduced the art of coloring yarn, blue, in his shop near his mansion, which was then a useful trade." The Methodists were holding meetings at that period, full of the wildest excitement, and Deacon Cady was described by those who listened to his addresses as being "not very fluent, though every word was significant and every sentence impressive. He had good natural abilities, but his eyesight was defective and his educational advantages were limited. His daily deportment betokened sincerity and an abiding faith in the principles he proclaimed." He died in Providence. His first wife was Miss Waterman of Killingly, Conn. The account from which the above quotation is made gives to him seven sons and three daughters, but does not designate by which marriage. Among them two sons, Jonathan and Lawton, became Methodist ministers; a daughter, Lucia, married Resolved Waterman, and died in Centreville (before her husband's removal to Providence), leaving two children, Rev. Henry Waterman, Episcopal clergyman, and Nancy Waterman, who married Kollin Matthewson of Providence.

640. WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> GREENE (Elisha<sup>5</sup>, Elisha<sup>4</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Warwick, October 8, 1757. He married Mary Tibbitts. They lived for many years in Frenchtown, Warwick, and then removed to Coventry, as they were so near the seacoast, Mr. Greene feared that his sons might desire to "follow the sea." He was for some time prosperous in business, but, "out of the kindness of his heart, he put his name to a paper to accommodate a friend," and thereby lost all his property. He then removed with his family to central New York. The following account of the removal is from a recent (1900) issue of the Newport Mercury:

"Then was the cry, 'To the West, to the West,' so [about the year 1805] he gathered up all his worldly possessions, stored them in his wagon, took his wife, 'Aunt Lizzie' [his step-mother's daughter], and the younger members of his family and started for 'Up Country,' as it was termed. They found lodging places at the inns along the way. They would rise early in the morning, and the women and children would walk while the men were preparing the horses for the day's journey. When they caught up with the women they would stop and cook a breakfast, for they also carried their provisions along. It took about a week to make the journey. The reason for their going into central New York was because their son Benjamin had gone there and was teaching school. He had purchased a few acres of land and had a house ready for them when they arrived. The house stood a few rods north of where Burril Greene now lives in the town of Willet (then Cincinnatus), Cortland County, New York. There they lived very happily for several years, when he was taken sick, and after a short illness, died, November 6, 1818. Soon after that Aunt Lizzie returned to Rhode Island. His widow lived alone eight years, when she had a slight stroke of paralysis. Then she went to live with her son James, where she spent the remainder of her days, nearly ten years. She died August 10, 1836."

At the time of her father's removal (with his second wife, Sarah Deane) from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to Plattsburg, about 1795, Armenia was adopted by Phebe (Greene) Lounsberry, the daughter of her father's first wife, who was at that time married and who cared for her until she grew up and was herself married from this half-sister's home. After the death of Mr. Carhart, as his widow, she lived on with Mrs. Lounsberry to an advanced age, and when the latter died, at the age of ninety-six, she removed to Green Bay, Wis., to be with her brothers Thomas and Platt Rogers Greene.

She married, in 1816 (second wife), Colonel Melancton Smith, U. S. A., Commandant at Fort Moreau, Lake Champlain, 1812-14. He was son of Hon. Melancton Smith, who was a member of the Constitutional Convention, and his wife, Margaret Mott of Long Island. He died at Plattsburg, N. Y., in 1818, aged thirty-six. Mrs. Smith was the namesake of her aunt, Anna<sup>5</sup> (Greene) Hallock, who was grandmother of the poet, Fitz-Greene Hallock. Mrs. Hallock, who lived to an advanced age, is mentioned as "a woman of keen intellect. who stored up mental wealth from the sparse, dry volumes that fell in her way when young, but whose suppressed genius—owing to Quaker environments and the hardships of life in the pioneer days of Clinton Co.—found expression later, in the melody of verse of her gifted grandson the poet, and in the deft pencil of Mary Hallock Foote, author and artist." In 1831, when Mrs. Smith visited her aunt, she was pictured as "sitting erect in her easy chair, still tranquil as a saint—no disfigurement of extreme old age—even comely in her pretty Quaker costume and sweet Quaker speech. Eyes and ears dulled from multiplied decades, but with mind undimmed, she still preserved a memory for what was past and gone, yet retaining also, an interest in the present." Mrs. Smith died in 1879.

CHILD:

1409. ELIZABETH SMITH, born at Plattsburg, N. Y., December 19, 1817. She married, July, 1837, Hon. Morgan Lewis Martin, who died 1887. They had six children: Leonard Martin, born 1838, died unmarried, 1890; he was educated at West Point, Colonel in Engineer Corps during the war of the Rebellion, which service impaired his health, causing him to resign, 1865; Annie Martin, born 1846, died 1862; Melancton Martin, died infancy; Sarah Greene Martin, unmarried, resides at Green Bay, Wis.; Morgan

Lewis Martin, married, 1888, Louise Wetmore; Sarah Beaumont Martin, resides at Green Bay, unmarried.

Mrs. Smith, in 1831, some years before her marriage, removed with her father's family to Green Bay, Wis., where her daughter, Mrs. Martin, still resides (1902) at the age of eighty-five, with faculties unimpaired. The mantle of her great-aunt Hallock, seems also to have fallen upon her with a gift of rich intellectuality, and she retains also a charm of manner and power of expression, most remarkable in one of more than fourscore years. In a letter bearing date 1888, she wrote of her grandfather, Israel<sup>5</sup> Greene: "Himself in full communion (as was my grandmother) with all the peculiar tenets of George Fox as to dress, Quaker speech, and non-resistance to war, it is strange that he should have been so unfortunate as to be the patriarch of two generations of fighting men—soldiers and sailors!" His eldest daughter married Dr. Beaumont, surgeon, U. S. A., and his youngest (by first marriage) married Colonel Melancton Smith, U. S. A., who was father of Admiral Melancton Smith, U. S. N. His youngest son, Captain Platt Rogers Greene, was also of the Army, and last, was the bright great-grandson, Leonard Martin, a graduate of West Point, 1861, who became an artilleryman and "commanded batteries the most exposed in eighteen battles and skirmishes along the Potomac, and who was given a colonelcy in the third year of the war."

The first wife of Colonel Melancton Smith, Cornelia Jones, had four children, the youngest of whom, Melancton, was with Farragut's squadron in the assault on Fort Hudson, and made many honorable records of service in the United States Navy during the long period of forty years, when he was retired with the rank of Rear-Admiral, May 24, 1871. He was born in 1810, and being nearest the age of Mrs. Martin (daughter of his father's second wife) they "were brought up in the closest bonds of affection, which lasted until his death in 1893," which event occurred at the home of his sister in Wisconsin. His wife, Mary Jones, had died eight years previous, in 1885. They left no children.

On reduction of the Army, May 17, 1815, he was retained 2d Lieutenant of 5th Infantry; Adjutant, 1820, by appointment of his Colonel, James Miller; 1st Lieutenant, March 27, 1820; retained in 5th Infantry at reduction of the Army, March 10, 1821; 1st Lieutenant and Adjutant, Colonel Josiah Snelling: Adjutant on Register for 1827. He died unmarried.

married, in Providence, February 27, 1782, Thomas Hughes, born May 30, 1752, only son of Joseph and Mary Hughes. Thomas Hughes was 2d Lieutenant, 11th Continental Infantry, January 1 to December 31, 1776; 1st Lieutenant 2d Rhode Island Regiment (Colonel Israel Angell's), January 1, 1777; Captain, June 23, 1777; transferred to 1st Rhode Island, June 1, 1781, and served to the close of the Revolution with the rank of Captain (see Heitman's Official Register of Officers of the Continental Army). He served throughout the War of 1812 with the rank of Major. The place of his birth is not recorded, but family tradition states that the family was of Scotch-Irish descent. In the Rhode Island Colonial Records (vol. x., pp. 412 and 413) he is mentioned as of Freetown, Mass., and he may have been born there. He died December 10, 1821, at his home in Centreville, and was buried in the family burying ground of his brother-in-law, Colonel Job Greene, on the adjoining farm. Major Hughes was one of the original members of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati. He was a small, wiry, energetic man, of refined tastes and fond of reading, with reddish hair and blue eyes, and was a very efficient officer.

Some time after his death, his widow removed to North Scituate, R. I., with her unmarried daughter and several orphan granddaughters. She died there August 8, 1844, and was buried beside her husband at Centreville. She was the eldest child of Colonel Christopher Greene, the distinguished Revolutionary hero.

In 1896 the Greene family burying ground at "Beaver Dam," Centreville, R. I., was abandoned, and the remains of Major Hughes, his wife Welthian, and their maiden daughter, Sally, were removed to Greenwood Cemetery, Phenix, R. I. A marker of the Sons of the American Revolution has been placed by the Rhode Island Society at Major Hughes's grave. The few surviving descendants of Major and Mrs. Thomas Hughes are the widow and daughter of John Waterman Aborn Greene, living in Providence, and the son and daughter and one granddaughter of William Greene, son of Jeremiah and Phebe (Hughes) Greene.

Mrs. John W. A. Greene of Providence has in her possession the Hughes family Bible, with the family records and a few relics. This account, based upon the records from the Hughes family Bible, is kindly contributed by Miss M. A. Greene of Providence.

They had several children, who died young. A daughter, Mary Elizabeth Hughes, who died about 1847, aged twenty years, was a very talented young woman in art, music, and languages. Mr. John Luther Hughes was a man of unusual refinement of character and taste. He was remarkably industrious and energetic, a leading member of the City Council of Providence, and one of the most efficient members of its "Committee for Improving the Public Schools." He was a merchant and later, a mill owner in Rhode Island. The Providence Public Library stands on the site of the house he built at the corner of Washington and Greene Streets.

October 27, 1768, died April 18, 1845. Her mother died in her infancy, and she inherited from her, considerable property, the legacy including a portion of the large estate of her grandfather Babcock, of Westerly, who gave it to her mother on the occasion of her marriage with Captain Rhodes. Mrs. Greene was a "woman of uncommon judgment and energy, and was remarkably gifted in conversation. Her executive ability and powers of endurance were great, and she was most faithful in the discharge of her duties, esteeming no sacrifice too great, no labor too severe, which would establish and maintain the happiness of her family. She was guided by strong religious principles, and passed through the world with her faith clear, her hope bright, and her charity unspotted."

Her children were all born at the first home built by Colonel Job at Centreville in 1785. He was the owner of the land lying on the westerly side of the north branch of the Pawtuxet River, from the bridge at Centreville (which in 1751 was called "Daniel Greene's Bridge") down to the junction of the two branches of the Pawtuxet, his southwesterly boundary being near Quidnick, where the line now is, between the towns of Warwick and Coventry, the area of his land being over five hundred acres. At Centreville he had a saw and grist mill. In 1801 he sold his rights in the spinning mill to "Almy & Brown" of Providence, and in 1805 he sold them sixteen acres of land, his saw and grist mills, and water power, and his residence, built 1785. He then built (1805) on a tract of thirty acres of land west of his original residence, a second house, where he died August 23, 1808.

- 1418. CHRISTOPHER RHODES, born September 19, 1786, married Mary Ann Lechré.
- 1419. SUSANNAH, born May 5, 1788, married Lovewell Spalding.
- 1420. MARY ANN, born May 25, 1794, married Abner M. Warriner.
- 1421. SIMON HENRY, born March 31, 1799, married Caroline C. Aborn.

In May, 1780, the General Assembly approved the following officers of the Kentish Guards for the ensuing year: Richard Fry, Captain; William Arnold, 1st Lieutenant; Charles Greene, 2d Lieutenant; Job Greene, Ensign.

The latter was undoubtedly "Colonel Job of Centreville," for he could not have made the Coventry records, as comparison of dates and rank will show. The official records of "Major Job of Coventry" (No. 318) should not be confused with the above (see Pub. R. I. Hist. Soc., vol. iv., p. 171; R. I. Col. Rec., vol. ix., p. 59). The sword which Congress directed to be presented to Colonel Christopher Greene of the Revolution was sent to his son, Colonel Job, with the following letter:

“WAR OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES,
“NEW YORK, June 7, 1786.

“SIR,—I have the honour to transmit to you, the son and legal representative of the late memorable and gallant Colonel Greene, the sword directed to be presented to him by the resolve of Congress of the 4th November, 1777.

“The repulse and defeat of the Germans at the fort of Red Bank on the Delaware, is justly considered as one of the most brilliant actions of the late war. The glory of that event is inseparably attached to the memory of your late father and his brave garrison. The manner in which the supreme authority of the United States are pleased to express their high sense of his military merit, and the honourable instrument which they annex in testimony thereof, must be peculiarly precious to a son emulative of his father’s virtues. The circumstances of the war prevented the obtaining and delivery of the sword, previous to your father’s being killed at Croton river in the year 1780. On the catastrophe, his country mourned the sacrifice of a patriot and soldier, and mingled its tears with those of his family.

“That the patriotic and military virtues of your honourable father may influence your conduct in every case in which your country may require your services, is the sincere wish of

“Your most obedient

“JOB GREENE Esq.”

“H. KNOX.

(Wightman) Arnold of East Greenwich, born March 29, 1769, died July 9, 1861, at East Greenwich, aged ninety-two. Her grandfather, William Arnold, was son of Israel, and grandson of William the emigrant ancestor. She is said to have been a very handsome woman, possessed of rare capabilities, and her descendants speak of her with pride. She enjoyed the distinction, according to family history, of having knitted stockings for the soldiers of the Revolutionary War, of the War of 1812, and of the Civil War! Dr. D. H. Greene in his History of East Greenwich, wrote:

"The great 'Spinning Contest,' to celebrate the adoption of the Federal Constitution and to encourage manufacturing in Rhode Island, was in 1789 [one year before Mrs. Greene's marriage]. On that occasion, forty-eight patriotic ladies assembled at the Court House in East Greenwich, and, with their own wheels, their own flax, and for their own use, spun one hundred and seventy-three skeins of linen yarn in one day, from sunrise to sunset. . . . The young lady who spun the most on that day was Miss Lydia Arnold, afterward the wife of Dr. Jeremiah Greene." A granddaughter, the namesake of Mrs. Greene, adds to this account: "My grandmother was so sure of victory, that she placed the laurel on her distaff before she commenced spinning!"

Samuel and Abigail (Graham) Payne were married at Goshen, Conn., December 15, 1755. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, from Vermont, in Captain Daniel Comstock's company, Colonel Fletcher's Battalion, as was also his eldest son, Zerah Payne, who was killed in the service. His brother Abram was also in the service and was one of General Wolfe's grenadiers at the taking of Quebec. The family records show that Samuel was a soldier in the French and Indian War.

Mrs. Mary Ann (Payne) Wilson died at De Funiak Springs, Florida, November 19, 1899. The following is a daughter's tribute to her memory: "My mother's life was a beautiful one of self-sacrifice and heavenward duty—a life that helped every one who came in contact with it. Even down in Florida, where she spent the last years of her life, she was busied in trying to help and uplift the native white people there, commonly known as the 'Crackers'—a people whose condition is so pitifully ignorant of everything!

"On the morning of the day we laid her away, I stepped on the veranda and saw a young girl who belonged to one of these families, and whom mother had helped to a higher life, crouched in one corner, sobbing and moaning, 'O, I loved her so! I loved her so!' And many instances like this occurred then and in the days that followed, until we, who lived closest to her, felt that we had never realized half the beauty and goodness of her life. She exerted such a helpful influence over those who came in touch with her that to the very last she retained this power of winning strong, true friendships." After the death of his wife, Mr. Wilson bravely struggled to face life without her devoted and ennobling companionship, but his strength steadily failed, and he died at De Funiak Springs, Florida, on December 10, 1901, where he was laid to rest beside his wife.

In 1860 she resided in the family of Rev. O. S. Hoyt at New Haven, Vt. She died at Vergennes, Vt., March 11, 1876, unmarried. Colonel William Greene "was Commander of the Kentish Guards, the independent company of Volunteer Militia of East Greenwich, in which Gen. Nathanael Greene acquired the first elements of his military knowledge." Colonel Greene was also cashier of the Rhode Island Central Bank of East Greenwich for many years.

Susannah Greene and her sister Patience were adopted by Governor Greene in their youth. Their father was lost at sea and their mother remarried. Dr. Jerauld died March 29, 1802 (see below). Susannah is mentioned in the will of her grandmother, Catharine Greene (who married the first Governor William, and who died November 28, 1777) as "granddaughter Susannah Jerauld" (see No. 99). The second husband of Susannah's mother was Oliver Hazard, great-uncle of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry (see No. 290). By will of her great-grandfather, Captain Benjamin Greene, Susannah and her sister, Patience Greene, received legacies: "To great grand daughters Susannah and Patience Greene daughters of grandson Samuel Greene, 2000 pounds each in bills of credit O. T. when of age or at their marriage—son-in-law Wm. Greene to have the care of it."

CHILDREN:

1542. HORACE JERAULD, went to Chili, South America.
 1543. PATIENCE JERAULD, born June 28, 1777, died January 7, 1864.
 1544. MARTHA JERAULD, born 1784, died July 17, 1804.

In Dr. Greene's History of East Greenwich, p. 159, he states that "Dr. Dutee Jerauld in 1742, when 20 years of age, came from Medfield, Mass., to East Greenwich—that he had five sons and four daughters, among whom was James, Town Clerk of Warwick for many years." This James could not have been the husband of Susannah Greene, for he married Mary, daughter of Henry Rice, and of his large family of eleven children, the youngest was born November 24, 1792, five months after the death of Susannah (Greene) Jerauld (June 23, 1792). Gen. Geo. S. Greene recorded her husband several times as "Dr. James son of Dr. Dutee," but this was evidently an error. Dr. Dutee may have left a brother in Medfield, who had a son James, who was a physician, and this nephew may have married Susannah Greene. The following inscriptions are from tombstones in the North Burial Ground, Providence, R. I.:

" Patience Jerauld daughter of
 Dr James and Susannah,
 Jerauld
 Born June 28 1777
 Died Jan 7, 1864
 Aged 86 years "

" In memory of
 Miss Martha Jerauld
 daug<sup>tr</sup> of
 Dr. James Jerauld of Medfield who departed this life
 Born July 17
 Died 1804

705. PATIENCE <sup>6</sup> GREENE (Samuel <sup>5</sup>, William <sup>4</sup>, Samuel <sup>3</sup>, John <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born at East Greenwich, R. I., May 13, 1754, died November 2, 1809. She married, February 11, 1773, Welcome Arnold, son of Jonathan and Abigail (Smith) Arnold of Smithfield, R. I., born March 25, 1745. The marriage took place at the home of her uncle, Governor William Greene, where Patience had lived since her childhood. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold made their home in Providence, and resided on the corner of South Main and Planet Streets. Mr. Arnold was one of the five men in Providence who "kept a carriage." His wife is mentioned as a "most beautiful and amiable young lady," and before her marriage she was also honored with the attentions of Nathanael Greene, afterwards the Revolutionary general. The two young men were warm friends, and, according to family tradition, were both most affectionately attached to the Governor's niece, whose preference for young Arnold did not destroy friendship, as is so frequently the result of such experience, but seemed to more strongly unite them in their devotion to each other. The President of Rhode Island College, Mr. Manning, once remarked that "he had spent an afternoon with two young men of such superior minds, that he was sure they would make distinguished figures in the world." These young men were Nathanael Greene and Welcome Arnold. Mrs. Arnold survived her husband nearly eleven years. She was a devoted wife and faithful mother. "None lived more beloved or died more lamented." Welcome Arnold was the grandson of Thomas <sup>4</sup> (Richard <sup>3</sup>, Thomas <sup>2</sup>, Thomas <sup>1</sup>), claiming descent from Richard of Somersetshire, England, and the ancient and illustrious Arnold family (see Somerby's Genealogy of the Arnold Family, p. 9). Tristram Burgess, in his Memoir, says: "Let it be remembered that Welcome Arnold was from youth to the day of his lamented death, a pattern man; a distinguished example for all who would act wisely and succeed well." He began his business career when but twenty-four years of age. Shortly before his marriage, he entered into partnership with Caleb Greene, under the name of Greene & Arnold, but the firm dissolved in 1776. He is said to have been "a man of inexhaustible resources," and was abundantly prosperous in all his undertakings. He acquired a large estate and became one of the most distinguished merchants and statesmen of his time. In 1778 was Representative to the General Assembly; for many years active in political life, and was a liberal patron of religious and educational societies, being one of the Trustees of Brown University (Rhode Island College) from the first. He was tall and distinguished in appearance, and free from all affectation. His home and fireside were ever exempt from business troubles and responsibilities, and when his end was approaching he referred all worldly cares to his son with calm resignation. He died August, 1798. (See Memoir of Welcome Arnold, by Tristram Burgess, 1850.)

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold had fourteen children, but only four lived to maturity.

February 10, 1803, Nancy, daughter of Samuel Burlingame of Cranston, and had eight children, the eldest of whom—Alexis—stated that his grandfather, "Capt. His marriage to Ann (Arnold) Greene took place about this date, as his son Job was older than Caleb, who was born 1773. The will of James Sweet (Warwick Wills, ii., 485), dated January 3, 1760, proved July 10, 1763, mentions "Ann Greene widow of Ebenezer" (see No. 352). 780. SAMUEL<sup>6</sup> GREENE "of Coventry" (Job<sup>5</sup>, Fones<sup>4</sup>, James<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Coventry, April 13, 1769. He married (1), July 14, 1793, Barbara, daughter of Captain James and Abigail (Fenner) Sheldon of Cranston, born August 24, 1770, died March 12, 1820. He married (2), September 3, 1820, Mary, daughter of Moses and Anstice (Holden) Lippitt of Cranston, R. I., born November 20, 1780. He was a farmer and lived at his father's homestead at Coventry. (One account says that he removed to Killingly, Conn.) Moses Lippitt, father of Mary, was son of Christopher, who was the grandson of Moses Lippitt of Old Warwick. Samuel Greene died March 4, 1861, aged ninety-one. His wife, Mary, died July 25, 1855, aged seventy-four.

CHILDREN BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

CHILDREN:

- 784). His son, Caleb Robinson Hill, born November 15, 1817, married July 20, 1842, Mary Warner, daughter Captain Wm. and Catharine Townsend (Warner) Harrison of Apponaug, and great-great-granddaughter of Thomas and Phebe<sup>5</sup> (Greene) Warner (William<sup>4</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) (see No. 223). They had four children: (1) Wm. Fones, born May 1, 1843, died January 12, 1875, (buried in Spencer burying ground at Coweset), married, September 17, 1867, Anne, daughter Peleg and Marcena (?) (Gorton) Spencer, born January 3, 1848, and had one child, Mary Elizabeth. (2) Anne Elizabeth, born April 19, 1848, died —. (3) Frank Robinson, born April 5, 1850, died August 7, 1872. (4) Charles Greene, born February 15, 1852, married December 24, 1874, Mary A. Tefft of South Kingstown, and had two children: Frank R. and William. Frank R., Sr., is a hardware merchant of East Greenwich, R. I.
1697. WICKES HILL, born September 14, 1788, married Sarah Vars, who died September 22, 1866 (?).
1698. THOMAS HILL, born January 6, 1793, married Lucy Ann Allen, half-sister of his brother-in-law, Thomas Gould Allen.
1699. SALLY HILL, born October 6, died December 26, 1800.

The following note was found among Gen. George S. Greene's papers and refers to the homestead occupied by Caleb and Sarah (Greene) Hill:

"Thomas Hill brother of Wickes . . . May 1, 1868, told me [Edward Greene, son of Chris<sup>r</sup> W.] that deeds in his possession at the old homestead, Potowomut, showed that his great grandfather Thomas Hill bought his land there of one Reynolds, originally; also that he, the said Thomas, was partner with John Greene in the ownership of the mills, later the 'Forge of Potowomut.'"

Catharine (Rhodes) Barton. She was first cousin to Captain William Barton, who so courageously captured the British General Prescott. She was brought up in the home of a Baptist minister. Daniel Greene and his wife Rebecca owned property in Providence, but removed to New Hampshire, it is said, before the birth of their children.

Land Evidences, January 10, 1793: "Daniel Greene and wife Rebecca" of Claremont, Cheshire County, N. H., deed all estate "of late Honored brother Josiah Greene late of Providence, deceased, Blacksmith, two lots of land and dwelling houses thereon, etc., on west side of the River in said Providence. The one thereof is the house and lot wherein the Rev. John Pitman and his wife, the widow of the said Josiah [Greene] now dwell. The other is the house and lot which the grantee and the said Josiah purchased of Nathaniel Gilmore." (The last name is possibly an error in copying, as Josiah had a brother-in-law, Nathaniel Richmond, who married his half-sister, Susannah, which name may have been intended.)

The above seems to prove conclusively the relationship between Daniel and Josiah. As the latter is mentioned as "Honored brother," and not half-brother, the inference is that they (and also Elisha) were sons of James Greene and his first wife, Freelove Burlingame (note that Daniel's eldest child was named Freelove). The dates given of other children of James<sup>5</sup> are after his marriage to his second wife, Abigail Freeley, September 4, 1754 (see No. 329, and Appendix I.). The only records in possession of the descendants of Daniel Greene give the date of his death from his tombstone as 1815 "aged 69 years."

CHILDREN (born in New Hampshire):

- 1701. FREELOVE.
- 1702. CATHARINE.
- 1703. PHEBE.
- 1704. MARTHA.
- 1705. NANCY.
- 1706. MARY.
- 1707. REBECCA.
- 1708. JAMES, married —.
- 1709. ELISHA BARTON, born April 7, 1786, married Lydia McLaughlin.
- 1710. CYRUS DANIEL, } born 1789, married August 12, 1824.
- 1711. MANDANA, } born 1789.

Two of Daniel's children, viz., Martha and Freelove, were named for his sisters, who are mentioned only in his brother Josiah's will.

there) about 1748 (?). As his record is not preserved, it is possible that he accompanied his brother Daniel when he removed from Rhode Island to New Hampshire (see No. 789 above).

under Rev. Enos Hitchcock, D.D., his father being a prominent deacon. Lieutenant Morley Greene probably removed from Providence between 1788 and 1793, and the absence of all knowledge of him for some years probably led to the error of starring his name in the record of the Cincinnati Society, July 4, 1793. In 1822, however, his name was included in the list of "surviving members," and he is recorded as having attended the meetings of the Society until about 1800. The date of his death is not learned. In family letters and records he is mentioned as "eldest son of James Greene." He was eldest son of the Deacon's second wife, Abigail Freeley.

From Heitman's Register of the Continental Army:

"Greene—John Morley (R. I.) Ensign 2d R. I. March 1, 1779; wounded at Springfield 23 June, 1780; Lieutenant 1780; Transferred to 1st R. I. Jan'y 1781, and served to the close of the war."

Greene, father of Susannah, also resided there, and was Deacon of the First Congregational Church of Providence. Susannah was probably about ten years younger than her husband and was his second wife. Nathaniel Richmond married (1), March 22, 1783, Sally, daughter of Dr. Bezaleel and Bebe (Carpenter) Mann of Attleboro, and had three children (see Richmond Family, by Joshua B. Richmond, pp. 37, 92). Nathaniel Richmond, great-grandson of Captain Edward, son of the American ancestor, John Richmond, from Ashton Keynes, Wiltshire, England, lived in Providence after his second marriage, and in his will, proved February, 1798, he was called "Scribner and Gentleman." He gave to his wife, Susannah, improvements of house, also use and improvements of lands on east side of Benefit Street, which he bought of Dr. John Milton Mann with $490 of the money which he received in right of his first wife, from her father, Dr. Bezaleel Mann, "to have and to hold during the minority of his child." He made bequests to his wife and his five children (three by first marriage), and gave $80 to the Congregational Society of Bristol, R. I. His wife and John M. Mann (probably his brother-in-law) were appointed executors.

Susannah (Greene) Richmond is said to have been a woman of very remarkable beauty. She married (2), January 19, 1809, Benjamin Adams. (See The Richmond Family, and Bristol Records, p. 569).

Nathaniel Greene Carpenter and Deliverance his wife, and James Greene, cordwainer, all of Cranston, R. I.; Benjamin Arnold, yeoman, and Sarah Arnold his wife, all of Coventry, R. I.; Reuben Westcott of Pomfret, Conn., laborer, and Hannah his wife; Dexter Greene of Killingly, Conn., laborer; Arthur Greene, yeoman, and Mary Greene, single woman, both of Gloucester; deeded to Edward Greene, "all right in the estate that belonged to Abigail Greene at the time of her death" (see No. 798).

"Gloucester June the 8th day 1777; Then was joined together in marriage Edward Greene the son of Elisha Greene Late of Gloucester & Prudence Davis Daughter of Edward Davis all of Gloucester.

Elisha Greene, Elder

Recorded by R. Steere T. Clk."

A true copy from the records of Gloucester.

Attest

C. W. FARNUM,

Town Clerk.

Edward Greene received by will from his grandfather, Elder Elisha Greene, " $\frac{1}{4}$  of Dwelling &c. blacksmith tools and improvements and Silver Seal." He was to "have certain stock and pay all debts." His brothers and sisters with their husbands deeded at various dates, 1783-96, "all their interest in the estate of their grandfather Elisha and father Elisha Jr. to their brother Edward Greene of Gloucester," and he sold the homestead farm—"Said Edward Greene sold the whole farm in this town to Joseph Cady of Killingly Conn. May 20 1796. The deed is signed by Prudence Greene as wife of said Edward and is recorded in Book 13, p. 347" (from Town Clerk, Gloucester, R. I.). He was appointed executor of his grandfather's will in place of Captain Solomon Owens, son-in-law of Elder Elisha, who declined to serve. The homestead farm was afterward owned by William Greene, son of Oliver and grandson of Peter and Elizabeth (Johnson) Greene (see No. 2664).

Greene died January 21, 1844, aged eighty-two years. We have no record of his marriage, and as no wife is assigned to him in the deed referred to, where his brothers' wives are all mentioned, it is probable he died unmarried.

CHILDREN:

CHILD:

1733. GORTON HALL.

Mary Greene was mentioned as "Single woman" and "of Gloucester" in deed referred to above; therefore her marriage took place after 1786.

son of Richard, of England, born June 8, 1765, died February 11, 1804. He was a merchant and lived at Newport. He married (2), October 3, 1804, Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins, widow of John Jenkins, who died October, 1821, aged forty-seven.

He was a merchant of Providence, R. I., with an honorable record, and was also an officer of United States Customs at Providence. He "died in Philadelphia, at the residence of his son-in-law, Charles Hunt Welling, Esq., Apr. 24, 1855"

(Providence Journal, April 26, 1855). He married (1), Mary, daughter of Daniel Olney of Providence, who died, leaving no children. He married (2), October 5, 1818, Susan Elizabeth, daughter of Hon. John Fry and Abby (Brenton) Mumford of East Greenwich, R. I., born December 13, 1792, died March 24, 1834. On the paternal side she was the granddaughter of Gideon and Elizabeth (Fry) Tibbitts-Mumford, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Greene) Fry, and great-granddaughter of Thomas Greene of "Stone Castle." Judge Mumford was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Kent County, 1776-77-78-79. He was one of the committee to audit accounts of the Committee of Safety, and was also a member of the Council of War, 1781. (For further public service, see Col. Rec. R. I.) He was the great-grandson of Thomas Mumford, the emigrant ancestor, who settled in Rhode Island about 1650, and his wife Sarah, daughter of Hon. Philip and Sarah (Odding) Sherman (see Mumford Memoirs, by James Gregory Mumford, M.D.).

On the maternal side Mrs. Greene was the great-granddaughter of Jahleel and Frances (Cranston) Brenton of Newport, daughter of Governor Samuel Cranston, whose lineage is traced back to the time of David II. of Scotland (see inscription, Appendix III.). Jahleel Brenton was one of the original members and first commanding officer of the Newport Artillery Company, 1742, and was prominent in public affairs. He was the grandson of Governor William Brenton, who came from Hammersmith, Middlesex County, England, four miles west of London, in 1633, and, after residing a few years in Massachusetts, settled in Rhode Island, 1636. He was prominently identified with the founding of the new colony and especially with the settlement of Newport (see Col. Rec. R. I.). He was a wealthy and influential man, and was largely interested in the public affairs of Boston as well as of Newport, retaining a residence in both places. When he came from England he brought with him a "grant" from Charles I., dated 1633, as Surveyor General of the New England Colony, which allowed him so many acres to the square mile of all lands surveyed. He thus acquired extensive properties. His home, located on Brenton's Neck, he called "Hammersmith," in memory of the old English home. Here he died in 1674, where he had retired after long public service. Jahleel<sup>4</sup> Brenton (Jahleel<sup>3</sup>, William<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>), his great-grandson (the brother of Mrs. William Perry Greene's grandfather, Samuel Brenton), became Rear Admiral in the British Navy.

William Perry Greene married (3), August 1, 1836, Sophia B., daughter of Samuel Ames of Providence. She died at East Greenwich, December 29, 1865, aged sixty-two. (In his will Mr. Greene's second wife is mentioned as "Susannah Elizabeth.") and the absence of acrimony in his pleadings, won the good feeling of all with whom he came in contact.

893. (Major-General) ALBERT COLLINS<sup>6</sup> GREENE (Perry<sup>5</sup>, Nathaniel<sup>4</sup>, Jabez<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born April 15, 1791. He received his academic education at the East Greenwich Academy. From twelve years of age he studied with Hon. George Brinkeroff of New York until he attained his majority, when he was examined by a Judge of the Supreme Court and admitted to the Bar. He afterward completed his law studies at the Law School at Litchfield, Conn., and in 1813 returned to Rhode Island and commenced the practice of law in East Greenwich. He was eminently successful, and as an advocate before a jury had no superiors. He was a member of the Rhode Island House of Representatives from 1815-25 and from 1822-25 he was Speaker of the House. In 1816 he was elected Brigadier-General of the brigade of militia in Kent County, which office he held till 1821, when he was elected Major-General of the militia of the State, retaining this office for two years. In 1825 he was elected Attorney-General of the State and was annually elected by the people till 1843, when he declined being a candidate for the office. During the eighteen years in which he held the office of Attorney-General, his professional duties carried him into every county of the State and brought to him a larger and more extensive intercourse with the people than had been the lot of any other public man in the State; and his bland manner and courteous kindness to every one secured for him the love and esteem of the people to a degree which has never been equalled. In 1843 he was elected Senator to the Assembly from Providence under the new Constitution, and was re-elected in 1844. In October of that year he was elected by the Legislature, Senator of the United States, and served the full term, from March 4, 1845. He was again elected, in 1851, State Senator, Rhode Island; and, in 1857, Representative to General Assembly from Providence, and also for 1858, which office he resigned before the winter session, closing then his political career. He belonged, as did his numerous family, to that great conservative party, which was formed by Washington and his friends on the reorganization of the Government after the close of the Revolutionary War, whose principles of action have guided our statesmen in the establishment of this great and prosperous nation. His genial, dignified manner and courteous address of,

For many years previous to his death, John Greene of Centreville lived in the house built by Colonel Job Greene, and where probably all his children were born (see No. 664). In early life he was employed by Colonel Job on his farm, but later he entered the employ of the Warwick Manufacturing Company, and rose eventually to become the owner of the largest portion of its property. He confined his business entirely to the manufacture of cotton goods in both the mills at Centreville. The older mill was located where now stands the main building of the Kent Woolen Company, and was built in 1794 by the Warwick Manufacturing Company. The second one was built in 1807 on the east side of the river and was called the "Green Mill," because it was painted that color, and not because of the name of an owner. The members of the Warwick Manufacturing Company were Colonel Job Greene, John Allen, Captain Wm. Potter, and James McKerris. Previous to the death of John Greene, July 16, 1851, Christopher Allen of Kingstown and James Waterhouse, formerly of England, fitted up the old mill for the manufacture of woolen goods, and became the pioneers of that business at Centreville. They were followed by Wm. D. Davis, General James Waterhouse, and finally by the present Kent Woolen Company. (Above information by courtesy of Hon. Henry L. Greene of Riverpoint, R. I.)

Joseph Langford Greene and his brothers, Thomas Rix Greene and Daniel Safford Greene, were, after the death of their parents in 1812, under the guardianship of their great-uncle (?) Thomas Rix. The wives of Joseph L. and Daniel S. were lineal descendants of the Rev. John Maxson, born in 1638, the first white child born on the island of Aquidneck, now Rhode Island. His father, Richard, was killed by the Pequots. Rev. John settled in Hopkinton (Westerly), R. I. He became an eminent Seventh Day Baptist minister, and continued the beloved pastor of the church at Hopkinton until his death in 1720. David Maxson was his great-great-grandson, and the father of Elizabeth and Susanna Maxson, who married Daniel Safford and Joseph Langdon Greene, as above stated.

He was of Providence, a member of the Society of Friends. He received by will, August 20, 1757, from his grandfather, John Greene of Potowomut, a farm in West Greenwich, R. I., which said John received from his grandfather, Thomas "of Stone Castle." Caleb's will, dated July 26, 1810, bequeathed to his "son Thomas and wife Waite" his "mansion house and mill privilege" in Smithfield. He married (1) Amey, daughter of Daniel and Martha (Jenckes) Harris, who died May 2, 1768. He married (2), January 13, 1780, Mary Russell, widow of Ezekiel Comstock of Smithfield, R. I., born February 22, 1743, died December 30, 1815.

He married Mercy, daughter of Captain Peter and his second wife, Mercy (Wanton) Cooke, born July 8, 1746, died January 5, 1825. Thomas Greene was a Quaker preacher of prominence in Smithfield and adjoining towns, and when the war broke out, being a Quaker, he would not take up arms; and his property, which was considerable for those times, was confiscated. He was obliged to flee to Nova Scotia to escape imprisonment, where, we are told, "the family was regarded as most unworldly and was noted for its refinement." Some of the children were born there or at Rutland, Vt., where Thomas lived for a time after his family had joined him, with the exception of his daughter Mercy, who married in Nantucket. One of his descendants visited the old farm at Rutland and was heard to call it the "Old Homestead." After the death of his wife, Thomas Greene went to Nantucket, Mass., to reside with his daughter Mercy (Mrs. Jethro Mitchell), and died there, October, 1829. (See No. 1121.)

of Rhode Island, viz., William, born 1670, filled the office, 1732-33; his brother John, born 1672, from 1734-40; Gideon (son of their brother Joseph), 1745-46 and 1747-48; Joseph, son of Governor William, 1769-75.

Captain Peter Cooke was Captain of the First Company of Scituate of the Providence County Regiment, June, 1769, and in June, 1770, Captain of Providence Troop of Horse of Second Company of Scituate (see Civil and Military List, R. I., by Joseph Jenckes Smith). The family tradition is, that Captain Peter received some seven hundred acres of land in Foster, R. I., as reward for his military services, but his residence was at Scituate after 1768. In Rhode Island Colonial Records, vol. vi., p. 546, he is mentioned as "Mr. Peter Cooke of Scituate," when appointed with "Caleb Greene Esq. of Coventry" (and others) as manager of a lottery for raising a sum of money to repair roads, etc. He died at the advanced age of ninety-six years, as given in the records of Dorcas Cooke (deposited at the Rhode Island Historical Society), who had charge of the Cumberland, R. I., records, 1776-1838. The Cooke family were members of the Society of Friends, as were the family of Thomas Rodman, the maternal grandfather of Anne (Greene) Cooke, who married Catharine Fry, sister of Thomas Fry, the husband of Welthyan<sup>3</sup> Greene (Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), her great-great-aunt on the paternal side. Her father, Caleb Greene, was third cousin of General Nathanael Greene. She received from her grandfather, Rodman, as did her three sisters, a legacy of £600 by will, dated January 4, 1772. Of the "sixteen children" of Charles and Anne (Greene) Cooke mentioned in family correspondence, four died in infancy.

She was the granddaughter of Samuel Brown of South Kingstown, at whose home William Minturn's parents were married by Rev. James McSparran. William died at Newport, August 23, 1799. His widow died April 6, 1821.

William Minturn was probably a descendant of the emigrant Richard of Southampton, L. I. He was a man of wealth and highly esteemed in Newport for his benevolence and public spirit. "His success as a merchant was largely due to his decision and promptitude in his youth—when he entered a merchant ship bound for England, as second mate. This was during the war of 1763, and the vessel was captured by the French, who would not yield it without high ransom. The captain being destitute of means, young Minturn stepped forward and assured him if he would put him on shore in England he would proceed on foot to London and so represent the above facts to a large mercantile house in that city that he would win success. The captain and crew consented, and he accomplished his purpose, returning with the ransom. The owners of the vessel rewarded him by appointing him captain and he soon became a ship-owner. Later he was one of the founders of Hudson, N. Y. In 1791 he removed to New York City, and died eight years after, having displayed in every relation in life a character marked by justice, firmness, and charity."

Sylvester G. Hazard died February 14, 1812.

The following account was contributed by a grandson of Dr. Greene:

"In 1884, at the age of 14 years Rowland Greene was placed with his uncle, Dr. Robert Wickes, to prepare for the study of medicine, where he remained until the death of Dr. Wickes about three years later, attending school in the neighborhood, and afterward continuing to study with a Latin teacher in Cranston until a master was provided at the school near his father's, when he completed the year's study at home. At 18 years of age he was sent to Dr. Fiske at Scituate, with whom he finished his studies in his 21st year, shortly after his marriage. He started housekeeping in that part of the Cranston house then in the possession of the widow of Dr. Wickes, and resided there about two years, thence removing with his family to a farm about 14 miles from Providence which was purchased for them by Elisha Harris, his wife's father. In 1814 they removed to Plainfield, Conn. (I am quite sure that Grandfather owned the 'Black Hill' farm, but have no memoranda concerning the purchase, etc.) School Records of 'the Plainfield Boarding School' run from 1817-1824—Benjamin Greene, Principal. I find also allusions to Samuel Boyd Tobey, Clark Collins, and Elisha Greene, as assistants."<sup>1</sup>

In The Friends' Review of Philadelphia, published September 19, 1859, was the following notice of Dr. Greene, preceded by a reference to the interruptions to his practice as a physician, caused by frequent ministerial journeyings; and referring also to the success and popularity of his school established at Plainfield, Conn., claiming that his numerous descendants could not desire a richer inheritance than the memory of his pure and spotless character:

"This dear and aged Friend was extensively known at all the Yearly Meetings on this continent, having been engaged in religious service at different times within the limits of most of them, and leaving, we believe, with all who knew him, a sweet memory of a mild, dignified, and Christian minister. . . .

"He became a member of our religious society from conviction, at the age of twenty-five years, and his gift in the ministry was acknowledged by Friends in the year 1803. From the time he put his hand to the plough, he looked not back, but exhibited a constancy in the service of the Saviour whom he loved, and a practical faith in Him as the object of his hope and trust that were truly edifying and encouraging.

"In all the varied trials and siftings through which our religious society has passed, Rowland Greene was ever found faithful to the truth, and unflinching in its support, standing in the front rank and with great meekness and gentleness, but with unwavering firmness, opposing error, and sustaining the beautiful order of the Gospel.

"To him, Friends have been accustomed to turn, as to a father in the church, and to look to him for wise and prudent counsel, which was never withheld. He was eminently a peace-maker; his meek and gentle spirit giving him a place and influence with all.

"To him, might—in more than common measure—be applied the language, 'Behold an Israelite, indeed, in whom there is no guile!'

"For several months he was very much confined to the house, his physical and mental powers gradually fading, but love, his peculiar characteristic, always abounding; and finally, without any appearance of suffering, he was gathered 'in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in, in his season.'"

He commenced clearing his farm and was getting his home in order, when the Indian war broke out, and he left Belpre to accept an appointment in the regular service. He went first to Rochester, Mass. (where he was born, March 19, 1755), returning to Marietta in December, 1791, where he was stationed for the defence of the settlement. Soon after his marriage, he was ordered down the Ohio River and could not return for about a year, during which period his wife lived at her father's in Warwick, her first child being born there in 1794. The following year she returned with her husband to his home at Belpre, where he remained until his death.

After the merchant marine was in a great measure destroyed by the embargo, he removed to Marietta, Ohio, and became a merchant there. His father removed to Ohio earlier and before 1849, Daniel "sold the farm where my father lived." This probably referred to the farm at Newport, Ohio. Daniel Greene married, in London, England, May 9, 1809, Mary Strout, born in London, June 26, 1788, who died at Marietta, Ohio, after a long illness, July 26, 1842. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, as indicated by the inscription on his tombstone. [A letter of recent date received from a descendant of Eliza Greene's brother states that "this stone was removed (probably stolen) within the last year."] His widow married (2) Stephen Piltcher. No children.

Green of the Massachusetts branch being recorded as having "died in Ohio," we may conclude that this John, so closely identified with Revolutionary struggles, was the first husband of Eliza Greene as above.

"Capt. Nathaniel Green, grandfather of John of Leicester, was a man of distinction." He received a commission as Captain of the first Foot Company in Leicester, Dec. 12, 1743. Within a year, war broke out between France and Great Britain, and Capt. Green was frequently called on to have his command in readiness to meet the enemy, as the following order will show:

"Sir, This moment I Received the Governours Express and pursuant thereto You are Required In his majesty's name on Your utmost Perill to Draw out of Your Military Ward twenty-five men compleatly armed and furnished with Amunition and fourteen Days Provision and march them without the Least Delay to Worcester and from thence to Proceed to Boston a french invasion being every moment expected. I say fail not at Your Perill.

Worcester Sept 22 1746

JOHN CHANDLER Col.

"Either you or Capt Whittemore with two more Commission officers must go & don't fail."

Directed—"In his Majesty's Service—to Capt. Nath'l. Green in Leicester." Captain Green died at Leicester, September 27, 1774.

Richard Greene was a man honored and respected; of industrious habits, social nature, and in every sense a gentleman. He was the first in his vicinity to abolish alcoholic drink from his harvest field.

The following is from an interesting account of the removal of Richard Greene to the West, contributed by his daughter, Mrs. Maria (Greene) Hayes: "He, with his father's family, consisting of father, mother, five sons, and five daughters, left great-uncle Dan, Greene's farm, August 6, 1796, and went to East Greenwich the same day (with the teams shipped on board a vessel the day after) in company with my grandfather Lawton's family, and my great-uncle Griffin Greene's family; also a colored servant named Violet. Called at New York to get some necessaries for the journey, and then shipped for New Jersey and there collected the teams of oxen and horses, came very slowly over the journey and after untold hardships arrived at Belpre, Ohio, about midwinter. The women and children came from Pittsburgh in a 'dug-out,' and were nearly lost in the ice, but the teams and wagons came by land. Grandpa Greene was nearly exhausted in his efforts to save his family from peril. They all lived in 'Farmer's Castle' till spring and then farmed for two years in Belpre. In the spring of 1798, came to Newport and kept a house of entertainment on the river bank, which was built with a shed roof, but I do not know how long it served them for a home. I think they built a log house a few years later, which afterwards gave place to a fine large double brick house, which still stands (1885) in preservation. It was built, I think, in 1809, and though some small changes have been made, it is very much the same. It has the old-fashioned window-seats, all panelled, and must have been a wonderful thing in those days for a country house. My father (Richard) lived the first year of his married life in the house with his mother, until he built his own log house about one mile below, on a beautiful knoll a little back from the river. The old log house gave place to a large frame house about 1833. Here all the children but the oldest were born, and here they all were married; and in the Newport (Ohio) cemetery all the dead lie buried. My father had a very high sense of honor and I never knew one that thought more of having his family honorable and respected. He scorned mean, low actions, and was in every way a true gentleman. He was very social and enjoyed visiting his friends as long as he lived. Always a great worker, he was never more cheerful than when hard at work on his farm. His only son, James, still lives (1885) at the old homestead, and we live on a part of Grandpa Greene's old farm."

He married (2), September 27, 1813, Frances Bowen (sister of his first wife), who died at Easter, 1879, at East Greenwich, aged ninety years. He left no children. He was a gentleman of most amiable disposition, energetic, and devoted to duty. He was prospered and enabled to cancel all mercantile obligations. A few years before his death, he removed to Potowomut, Warwick, R. I.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser, April 23, 1879:

"Died at East Greenwich, Rhode Island, on Easter Sunday, Mrs. Frances Greene, widow of the late Charles W. Greene, who was for many years principal of the school at Jamaica Plain.

"The departure of this most estimable lady, whose life has been prolonged beyond that of nearly all her contemporaries, will bring to the memories of many middle-aged and of some old men the pleasantest recollections of their school days. For very many years Mrs. Greene sustained the elaborate and never-ending duties pertaining to a large household of boys of all ages and dispositions, and so sweet and strong was her character that all who ever were inmates of that household, cherish sincere recollections of respect and affection for her memory. Aunt Fanny, as she was lovingly called by the boys, was a rare combination of a very decided and yet very tender nature. A word uttered by her, with little show of authority, was enough to quell a disturbance or to quiet the differences of any number of turbulent boys. Those boys, in their later years, cherish recollections of her, as of one as faithful to her trusts, as free from severity of manner. Mrs. Greene moved to East Greenwich, R. I., where she lived, for twenty-five years, a life of the greatest serenity and happiness, surrounded by friends and relatives, endeared to her by past recollections and attached to her by her cheerfulness; there a former pupil at Jamaica Plain and long resident physician at East Greenwich, was for many years, by his kind care, instrumental in making her declining age more cheerful and happy.

"Mrs. Greene was (as the writer of this tribute remembers, when nearly a half-century ago he was an inmate of her household) an invalid, and continued so; but with kind care which her sunny, happy, and religious character assisted, she has outlived nearly all her old friends. Her ninetieth birthday in November last, found her very fragile in body, partially blind, and quite deaf, but with mind as clear and nature as elastic as fifty years earlier. She expressed herself on that birthday, as happy and contented with the pleasant recollections of the past, when, because of increasing deafness and defective sight, she had been partially cut off from present enjoyments. She constantly expressed her willingness to go hence, relying as she did with almost childlike confidence upon the happy future soon to be opened to her.

"Her death, like her life, was eminently peaceful; there was at last but little of her body to die; a sudden cold carried her away without pain or unrest, and leaving behind with very many acquaintances and friends the sweetest memories of her tender, affectionate, and yet strong and conscientious life; hundreds who have been her boys will ever cherish the lovely memory of their days with her, and it may truly be said of her, 'Well done, good and faithful servant.'"—J. S.

She married Daniel Phelps. In family correspondence it is stated that she was drowned in the Connecticut River, while crossing on the ice with her husband and little daughter. The ice broke and the child was drowned with her. A letter from a son, Henry Phelps, dated "Malaga Sep. 28, 1817," was directed to Mr. Elijah Mason, whom he addressed as "Dear Uncle." He mentions his "brother Samuel in New York," and alludes to himself as follows: "I have been once to the East Indies, twice to the West Indies and am now in Spain. I have almost made up my mind to quit going to sea and am determined when that is the case to go to the country where you are" [Ohio]. He also mentions Captain Daniel Greene [his uncle] and Aunt Azuba, who "has long been married." The records do not give the date of death of Elizabeth

The letter mentions "Brother and sister Hyde." "Margaret Hyde died 3 weeks since"; mentions also "Francis Hyde," and "Cousin Harriet Avery spent 2 weeks with us." He was first President of the Clarke School for the Deaf, at Northampton, Mass., which was established largely through his efforts. It was the first permanent school in America where articulation was taught the deaf, and has caused a revolution in our methods of education of this large class of fellow-citizens.

In 1878, Mr. Hubbard organized and became first President of the Bell Telephone Company, which has owed its great success to his genius. He was also associated in many undertakings of a scientific and philanthropic nature, having been first President of the National Geographic Society; Chairman of the Affiliated Societies, now the Washington Academy of Sciences; Regent of the Smithsonian Institution; Chairman of the meeting to urge the ratification of the Olney-Pauncefote Arbitration Treaty; Chairman of the Committee of Awards of the Nashville Exposition, etc. He was a lover of art, and his collection of engravings, given by Mrs. Hubbard to the Library of Congress, is one of its glories. NOTE.—This marriage is also erroneously recorded on page 247, owing to the duplicate name, Gardiner Greene Hubbard.

(3) Mabel Gardiner, born November 25, 1857, married, July 11, 1877, Prof. Alexander Graham Bell (see below), and had four children: Elsie May, born May 8, 1878, married, October 23, 1900, Gilbert Hoxcy Grosvenor and have son, Melville Bell, born November 27, 1901; Marian Hubbard, born February 15, 1880; Edward, born August 15, 1881, died same day; Robert, born and died November 17, 1883. Was pupil-teacher at Elgin (Scotland) Academy in his sixteenth year, and later taught at Somersetshire College, at Bath, England. In 1870, he emigrated with his father and mother to Brantford, Ontario, Canada and in 1872, went to Boston, Mass., Hartford, Conn., and Northampton, Mass., where he taught his father's system of visible speech to teachers of the deaf. He also carried on experiments in electricity, which culminated in the telephone, the first patent for which was granted him in March, 1876.

In 1880, Mr. Bell invented the photophone, an apparatus where a beam of sunshine is made to do the work of wires in conveyance of sound from transmitter to receiver. This he has always considered as a greater invention than the telephone, but it has never been reduced to commercial use. Since that time, Mr. Bell has continued his experiments and investigations, but the graphophone is the only other invention for which he has applied for letters patent. He has always been intensely interested in the education of the deaf, and has done very much to promote the teaching of speech to the deaf, thus carrying on the work begun by his father-in-law, Gardiner Greene Hubbard. He has founded the Volta Bureau for the Increase and Diffusion of Knowledge Relating to the Deaf, and the American Association to Promote the Teaching of Speech to the Deaf. While he is interested in physical and all sciences, and is essentially scientific by nature and habit of mind, he is more especially devoted to the education of the deaf, and has given to this cause his best thought and most earnest endeavors.

Mr. Bell has succeeded his father-in-law as President of the National Geographic Society; is Regent of the Smithsonian Institution and member of its Executive Committee; and is also President of the American Association to Promote the Teaching of Speech to the Deaf.

Samuel Hubbard, and, as his partner, practised successfully a few years at the bar. He removed to Norwich, Conn., in 1824, where he built and operated mills and became a prosperous manufacturer and one of the best-known men in the State. He was also interested in educational matters, and "was the second President of the corporation of the Norwich Free Academy, of which he was one of the founders, contributing largely to its endowment, and throughout his life was its liberal benefactor" (see The Life and Character William Parkinson Greene*, an address delivered before the Alumni of Norwich Free Academy, January 25, 1865, by Elbridge Smith, A.M., Principal, etc. Printed at the Riverside Press, Cambridge, 1865). 2635. MARY AMORY, born May 3, 1860, at Newton, Mass.

"Rev. Mr. Greene was graduated from Harvard College in 1828, among his classmates being the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, Chief Justice Gilchrist of New Hampshire, and Dr. Henry I. Bowditch. He took his Master's degree in course and received the honorary degree of A.M. from Racine in 1854. After graduation, he studied medicine, taking his degree in 1831, and became a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society. Some years later, he entered the ministry, and was ordained January 15, 1855, by Bishop Eastburn; he was in charge of parishes in Waltham and Newton, and was afterwards Secretary of the Massachusetts Church Missionary Society. His failing health finally obliged him to relinquish active duties, but his interest in the work of the Church was unfailing to the last. His funeral was held in St. Paul's Church, Brookline, on Tuesday, July 9, 1872, and the services were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Manton Eastburn, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts, who was assisted by the Rev. W. W. Newton, the rector; and the Rev. Dr. Stone, a former rector of the parish. It is interesting to observe that in his official report to the diocese, the last entry made by Bishop Eastburn before his own death, was an affectionate tribute to the character of his friend, with whom he had long been in the most intimate relations. In this report, he also said of Mr. Greene: 'Christ Church, Waltham, of which he may justly be called the founder, and in which he always manifested an affectionate interest—and Grace Church, Newton, with its beautiful and convenient parsonage—are monuments of his Christian beneficence.' " (See The Greene Family in England and America.)

Mr. Greene was deeply interested in this family history, and was frequently in correspondence with the late Gen. George S. Greene concerning it. He employed Mr. H. G. Somerby to make research for him in England, especially in the counties where the early Greene were seated. The results not being entirely satisfactory, General Greene engaged Mr. Somerby to continue the search for himself, along lines indicated by him, but Mr. Somerby died before the work was completed.

She was married, November 28, 1837, to James Sullivan Amory, by Rev. Dr. Wainwright, rector of Trinity Church, Boston. He was son of Jonathan and Mehitabel (Sullivan) Amory, born in Boston, May 14, 1809, where he died on Trinity Sunday, June 8, 1884. Mary Copley, his wife, died in Boston, April 5, 1892.

From a recent letter written by Mr. John Warner, addressed to Hon. Henry L. Greene of Riverpoint, R. I.:

“ANTHONY, R. I., Dec. 23, 1900.

“MY DEAR FRIEND:

“ . . . Relating to the inheritance of the seal of the Greene family by Stephen Greene Warner—I find a will made by Stephen Greene [Judge] on the 6th of May, 1810, also his last will made the 16th day of August, 1817, recorded in Warwick. He made liberal provisions for his wife and a special item in both wills, viz.: ‘I bequeath to Stephen Greene Warner, son of my Daughter Marcy Warner, my Silver Clasp and Seal.’ The last item in the will is: ‘All my Real Estate of every kind and Nature, together with all my farming utensils and all the stock that I shall leave on the farm, after the decease of my said daughter, Marcy Warner, I give, devise and bequeath to my said grandson Stephen Greene Warner, his heirs and assigns forever. Provided, however, if the said Stephen Greene Warner shall not be living at the decease of his mother, nor any of his issue, or, if he shall die at any time before he arrives at the age of twenty-one years, leaving no issue, then I devise and bequeath all estate herein given to the said Stephen Greene Warner both real and personal to his brother George Greene Warner, his heirs and assigns forever.’

“My earliest recollections of the seal are about sixty-five years ago, when my older brothers were at home; several of the Greene family visited us frequently at the Conimicut farm. I recollect of hearing the names of George Sears, John F. Greene, and Jacob Greene and the discussion of the title to the seal. They all considered their rights equally good, and Stephen said the seal was his and in his possession [by inheritance]. After the death of my brother, some of the family offered to purchase it, but my sister objected while any of them were living. The family all appreciated the seal, an heir loom above all, and there were many. No one doubted it being the seal of the first of the family that came to this country [John Greene, surgeon] or [doubted] its regular descent to

Peter Greene	born in Warwick, 1682
John Greene	“ “ “ 1711
Stephen Greene	“ “ “ 1740
Marcy (Greene) Warner	“ “ “ 1777
Stephen Greene Warner	“ “ “ 1808
William Greene Warner	“ “ “ 1831

Wm. G. Warner devised all of his estate to my brother Daniel and the seal came into my possession as administrator. Sincerely yours,

(Signed) “JOHN WARNER.”

CHILDREN:

1336. ESEK<sup>7</sup> GREENE "of Milford" (Peter<sup>6</sup>, John<sup>5</sup>, Peter<sup>4</sup>, Peter<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Warwick, R. I., about 1770. He removed to New York State with his brothers John, Nathaniel, and Elisha, and thence, about 1803, to Milford, Mass. He married Ruth Thornton. None of the records state her surname, or dates, or place of marriage, but her will, made June 5, 1845 (see Appendix I.), mentions her "brothers Gideon and Ebenezer Thornton." Ballou's History of Milford, p. 779, gives the following: "Esek Greene, son of Peter and Elizabeth, came to this town with his wife Ruth, from somewhere in Rhode Island—ancestry not traced. No record of children of their own [but several foster children alluded to]. Mr. Greene purchased, in 1803, the water privilege (now known as Spindleville) and the farm lands adjacent, formerly possessed by Clark & Nightingale, and later by Cornell & Aldrich. Mr. Greene was a man in his prime, of solid sense and character and of some means." His grandson William, son of Oliver, stated that he accumulated much property in Milford. He was much respected by his fellow-citizens, who honored him with various official trusts. He brought with him to Milford his aged parents, for whom he filially cared during the remainder of their lives, and for whom he made provision in his will (see Appendix I.). His father, Peter Greene, died July 8, 1828, aged eighty-one; his mother, Elizabeth (Johnson) Greene, died October 29, 1834, aged eighty-four.

Mr. Esek Greene died May 7, 1833, and his widow died September 9, 1850. Probably they were all buried at Milford. "The wills of Esek and

"To all whom it may concern, these may certify that Nathaniel Greene, son of Peter Greene of Gloucester in the County of Providence and Sarah Babcock daughter of Daniel of Rehoboth in the State of Massachusetts, were lawfully joined together in Marriage on the first day of November A.D. 1792.

"Rec<sup>d</sup> the 12th day of November 1792. Recorded by R. Steere Jr.

CHILDREN:

2668. MARTHA, born May 19, 1814, married — Aldrich, and died, leaving no children.

2669. RUTH, born July 20, 1816, married — Blackmar and died, s. p.
 2670. STEPHEN, born November 15, 1818, married Abbie Farrows.
 2671. WILLIAM, born June 3, 1823, married Lucy B. Pray.
 2672. CANDACE, born August 13, 1828, died June 3, 1832.

The following items, sent to General George S. Greene in 1887 by the Town Clerk of Gloucester, are of family interest:

"Dec. 4, 1815, Valentine Inman sold to Oliver Greene of Gloucester 34 acres in Gloucester, Assena [Asenath ?] signed as wife of Valentine."

"June 22, 1842: Oliver Greene of Gloucester sold to William Greene of Gloucester [his son] his right in some land—Rhoda Greene signed as his wife."

"Oliver Greene of Gloucester bought land of Erastus Stevens Aug. 19, 1833—said Oliver sold the same to Russell Kelly Mar. 13, 1834 and Susan Greene signed as his wife."

"Oliver Greene, widower, died Oct. 17, 1863—77 years—oldest son [?] of Peter and Elizabeth Greene and I think father to William now living here."

"Oliver Greene's estate was divided in 1886 between William Greene, now living here, and Stephen Greene, and Ruth Blackmar."

The third item above may refer to a first wife of Oliver (?), although Rhoda Bowen is the only wife mentioned by the descendants. The following marriage record would indicate that Oliver had another son besides those given: "Nathaniel Greene of Foster, son of Oliver, married Dec. 6, 1829, Phebe Peck, daughter of Alexander of Coventry" (see Arnold's Vit. Statis., R. I.). Nathaniel was probably born as early as 1808, and Oliver <sup>7</sup> (born 1786) might have married Susan in 1807, and all the children recorded above have been by this marriage. Susan signed deed as his wife in 1834, and the last child recorded was born in 1828. Rhoda Bowen Greene signed a deed in 1842. Further examination of Gloucester and Foster town records may throw additional light upon these statements.

CHILDREN:

2686. RUTH, born November 29, 1787, married (1) —— Currier, (2) —— Bailey.
 2687. GARDNER, born Boscawen, died young.
 2688. THOMAS THOMPSON, born Boscawen, February 11, 1795, died young.
 2689. NATHANIEL (PETER), born November 20, 1797, married Susan Batchelder.
 2690. CHARLES GORDON, born July 1, 1804, married Charlotte Hill.

NOTE: Nathaniel must have been born as early as 1766, which would prove the dates of birth and marriage of Peter W. erroneous, or possibly confused with those of another Peter Greene? (Compiler.)

born 1760. They resided at Bowe, N. H., the township adjacent to Boscawen. The wife of his grandson, Admiral Green, recalled having visited at this home with her father-in-law, Peter Hazeltine Greene. It is said that a strong resemblance is traced between the New Hampshire and Rhode Island Greens, and there is no foundation for the theory that because some members of this family in the former State did not use the final e in their name, they were not connected with the Warwick, R. I., Greenes. Originally, the name was spelled Grene, and in old records and on old monuments in England the final e was never omitted. Therefore, as elsewhere stated, the descendants of John Greene, surgeon, have almost universally adhered to this form of spelling.

His mother died 1790, when but twenty-three years of age; and his wife also died young—in her twenty-seventh year. Dr. Harris was a man of cheerful disposition and very agreeable manners, which made him popular in the society at Centreville. Mr. Henry Rousmanière of Newport (1832-36), proprietor of Pawtucket Chronicle, in his estimate of his character, said: "He was a remarkable man, of sound respectability—as bold in large affairs as cautious in minutiae. His promise was so faithful as to be proverbial. He was practical, but progressive—a lover of money, but of truth as well. He was beloved in private and respected in public life." Dr. Harris married (2), in 1822, Maria, daughter of Edward Manton, who survived him.

1885, and "left a name which will be loved and venerated for many years to come. He was a man of strong and upright character, sterling integrity, and endowed with sound business qualifications." Mr. Greene removed from Providence with his family in 1838 to Clyde, Warwick, where he established and was proprietor of the Clyde Bleachery and Print Works, which industry proved most prosperous and grew to extensive proportions, being, after his death, under the management of his sons. It is now widely known as S. H. Greene & Sons Corporation (see No. 2750).

Mrs. Caroline C. (Aborn) Greene was the great-granddaughter of Samuel and Phebe (Rhodes) Aborn, daughter of John and Waite (Waterman) Rhodes. Waite Waterman was the daughter of Resolved and Mercy (Williams) Waterman, and granddaughter of Roger Williams.

One who was for many years on terms of closest intimacy with the family thus writes of Mrs. Greene: "Would that I had the pen of a ready writer to portray her many sterling qualities! The atmosphere of her home was peace and harmony, but there were frequent exchanges of pleasantry and humor, when her husband laid aside his dignity and became one with his boys—the mother looking on with smiling satisfaction. She had, in all her relations of wife, mother, and house-keeper, reached the ideal stage. Toward the last of her life she grew feeble, but I recall that the sudden passing away was most peaceful, while she was seated in her accustomed place by the window, with a smile upon her face!"

The following is vouched for by the same devoted friend. Not long after the death of Mr. Simon Henry Greene, the conductor on the railroad passing through the town, was asked if he knew the man who had just died. He replied: "Yes; I knew him well, and a whiter man never lived—and his sons are just the same!"

He was engaged in a manufacturing business, but was unfortunate and removed with his family, October 16, 1842, to Milwaukee, Wis., and later to Germantown in that State, where he became a successful farmer. He was a man of enormous physical strength and tireless energy. In the pioneer life in Wisconsin he was the man of affairs in the little settlement. He rose from an attack of fever to make a coffin for a baby who had died in the settlement, and brought on a relapse from which he died at Germantown, November 1, 1854. He was an earnest Christian, and spent all his spare moments in religious reading and study, going from place to place holding services, and even in the absence of a minister, officiating at funerals. He was a cabinet-maker, but also engaged in several other kinds of business. His widow died in June, 1877, at Appleton, Wis. (Another account gives his marriage date, October 27, 1832, and the place of his wife's death, Milwaukee, Wis.)

I., November 7, 1813. She was of double Greene descent, through her mother, Phebe Hughes, the daughter of Welthian<sup>6</sup> Greene (Christopher<sup>5</sup>, Philip<sup>4</sup>, Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), who by her marriage with Jeremiah Greene (William<sup>5</sup>, Philip<sup>4</sup>, Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), cousin of Welthian, thus strengthened the connection; her daughter, Mary Ann, being in the paternal line of the seventh, and in the maternal of the eighth, generation from John Greene, surgeon. Owing to the death of her mother, of consumption, November 27, 1815, Mary Ann was brought up in the family of her maternal grandfather, Major Thomas Hughes, who married Welthian Greene (see No. 663). They resided at Centreville, R. I., until after Major Hughes's death, when his widow removed with her granddaughters to North Scituate, R. I. Mary Ann Greene was there married, March 22, 1832, to Joseph Holden Low, eldest son of Captain Samuel and Elizabeth (Holden) Low of Old Warwick, born at Providence, July 12, 1802. They resided in Providence. Mrs. Low was

"a remarkably handsome woman of small stature with black hair and eyes and red cheeks; she was possessed of a remarkably brilliant and precocious mind. At the age of fourteen she contributed stories and poems to the Providence Journal and displayed a wonderful maturity of taste and literary discrimination." She died in Providence of swift consumption, July 20, 1835.

Mr. Low resided in Boston after 1880. The insurance company whose secretary he had been since 1850 retired him on a pension. He is described as "a man six feet in height, of commanding presence, clear-cut refined features, and courtly manners—a true 'gentleman of the old school.'" An old family letter adds, "and an honest man." His death occurred suddenly at Jamaica Plain, Mass., September 30, 1886, where he was then living with his daughter. In crossing a railroad track he was struck by an engine and instantly killed. Both he and his wife were buried at Swan Point Cemetery, Providence.

"Dr. Turner was one of the best known physicians in Rhode Island and one of the oldest practising physicians in the United States. He was one of Newport's most eminent citizens, whose works form a part of its history, and his life was full of interesting incidents. He was born on the Governor Greene farm at Warwick, about half a mile from the Court House in East Greenwich, and considered himself a Greenwich boy. About twelve years of his boyhood were passed in primary schools there and in the East Greenwich Academy. The next five years he lived in Portsmouth, near Bristol Ferry, where his father practised medicine. In May, 1833, he came to Newport and was under the instruction of Judge Joslin at the old John Frazer school-house for two years. It was about this time that his father united with Dr. Wm. Turner in the medical profession, and he entered their office as a student, becoming the partner of his father on the death of his uncle William. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1836, and after a year of travel he returned to Newport, in which city he afterward resided. In his younger days he was quite a politician, and was a member of the General Assembly, 1847-48; member of School Board, 1850-70; President of State Board of Health, 1880; and was City Physician for many years when that office was without pay or fees. He was also port physician for a number of years. On the breaking out of the Civil War, he was in the employ of the State to examine recruits; and, November, 1863, to June, 1865, was Acting-Surgeon at Fort Adams. For twenty-five years he was surgeon of the Newport Artillery Company, and when that company went to Providence for service in 1861, Dr. Turner offered his services as well to the war Governor. Four of the Doctor's brothers fought in the war of the Rebellion. Dr. Turner was Vice-President of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati; a member of Redwood Library for fifty years, during two of which years he was Director, and for two its President. 1560. ISABELLA MARY<sup>7</sup> GREENE (Ray<sup>6</sup>, William<sup>5</sup>, William<sup>4</sup>, Samuel<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born February 22, 1805. She married, May 16, 1833, Joseph Sherbourne Jenckes, born at Providence, April 24, 1804. They removed to Indiana, and she died at Terre Haute, August 1, 1863. Joseph Sherbourne Jenckes was son of Joseph and Mary (Bowers) Jenckes. The family were of Welsh origin and trace back to the time of William the Conqueror. Mr. Jenckes prepared for college at Greenwich and Exeter Academies, and was graduated from Brown University in 1824. He spent one year as private tutor in the family of the father of the late Admiral Scott at Fairfax County, Va. He read law one year with Peter Pratt and one year with Thomas Burgess of Providence. He removed to Indiana, June 9, 1827, and practised law there but a short time, though, after retiring from practice, he served one year (1838) as Judge of County Court. He always manifested great interest in educational matters, serving many years as Trustee of Common Schools, County Seminary, and State University. He was cashier of Terre Haute branch of State Bank of Indiana for about three years, but the great business of his life was farming. He was noted for his scholarship in the classics and for the great versatility of his learning. One of his sons wrote: "My own instructor—a College Professor for nearly half a century—told me that my father was undoubtedly the best classical scholar in the State." Joseph Jenckes, grandfather of Joseph Sherbourne Jenckes, born 1763, in Massachusetts, was also graduated from Brown in 1784 (?), and for several years after was one of its trustees. He resided in Rhode Island most of his life, dividing the time between his home in Providence (Jenckes and Benefit Streets) and his farm in Wickford, on the west shore of Narragansett Bay. His wife was Mary, daughter of Jerathmael Bowers, a large shipping merchant of Boston, who married Mary, daughter of Joseph and — (Watson) Sherbourne. He made the trying journey of about one thousand miles from Providence to Indiana in 1818 in a private carriage, accompanied by his son Daniel. The journey, in connection with the (at that time) malarious condition of the Wabash, proved too much for his strength and he was taken sick soon after his arrival, dying the same year.

Mrs. Greene was born at Charlestown, Mass., October 27, 1809, but lived the greater part of her childhood and girlhood in Groton, Mass. Her long married life of forty-six years was spent in untiring, unselfish devotion to her husband, children, and grandchildren; and to the latter she was a second mother, when their own was taken. She was much beloved by all who knew her, and her memory is still green in the hearts of many, both friends and relatives, although nearly twenty years have passed since her death; and her children and grandchildren with one accord "rise up and call her blessed." She died at Morristown, N. J., December 16, 1883. General Greene also died at Morristown, January 28, 1899, at the advanced age of ninety-eight. He was buried with his wife in the old burial-ground on an eminence back of the homestead at Apponaug, Warwick, R. I., which was so endeared to him.

More than half his lifetime General Greene was engaged in collating and perfecting the genealogical records of the Greene family and their ancestors, and was so thoroughly conversant with the work that he became the recognized authority thereon. His unflinching courtesy toward those who applied to him for information, caused him much additional labor, but his patience was inexhaustible, his love for the work being evident almost to the last months of his long and beautifully rounded life. The present work is his monument, and the gratitude of those who bear the name of Greene will be wide-spread and enduring, for the noble and helpful work he has accomplished. General Greene and his gallant sons have not only occupied conspicuous places in the family records, but have been devoted to their country's cause (see sketches following records).

GREENE MEMORIAL HOUSE,
APPONAUG, RHODE ISLAND.

"The Historic Greene Homestead"

"Extensive alterations and repairs of the old home of General George S. Greene were made early in 1900, under the supervision of his nephew, the late Albert R. Greene of Coweset; the selection of the antique furnishings and all details of the domestic arrangements being in charge of Mrs. Greene. Upon the door was placed a large and elaborate brass plate bearing the words, 'The Greene Memorial House'; and below, a brass knocker with the name, 'George Sears Greene.' The rooms are made attractive and artistic in their arrangements, and give evidence of thoughtful care and consideration. One of the upper apartments is known as 'The General's Room.'

"On April 26, 1900, the habitual quiet of the village of Apponaug was broken by an occurrence of unusual significance. The interest centred around the old, historic home of Gen. George Sears Greene, which, on this date, in the presence of a distinguished company from Providence, was formally presented by his youngest son, General Francis V. Greene, to the Episcopal Diocese of Rhode Island, for the special use of St. Barnabas Church at Apponaug.

"The services at the house, attending the consecration and presentation of the property, were presided over by Rev. Dr. Henshaw, President of the Standing Committee of the Diocese; and many of the Episcopal clergy of Rhode Island were present. General Greene, whose generosity and reverence for the memory of his father prompted him to make this munificent gift to the Diocese of the State, in making the presentation, referred to the influences which led him to decide upon this special disposition of the birthplace of his father. In this connection he dwelt upon the great affection which the old General cherished for his boyhood's home, his intense pride of ancestry, and his fervent devotion to the Protestant Episcopal Church. Reference was also made to the old Greene burial plot, located upon a picturesque eminence at the rear of the old homestead, where the old General rests with his fathers. 'These were the reasons,' said General Greene, 'which led me to decide to purchase the homestead from my sister and fit it up as a lasting memorial to my father.'

"Dr. Henshaw responded to General Greene as follows: 'Sir, it is a great and good work, and I am sure that hereafter you will have cause to be deeply thankful that God put it into your heart to do this thing. Your ancestors have distinguished themselves in this country in times of peace and war. I remember your honored father and your brother, Mr. Dana Greene, both of whom distinguished themselves in the service of their country. I remember, too, their strong attachment to all that concerned the church and its interests.'

"Mr. E. D. Bassett echoed the sentiments of Dr. Henshaw, saying that 'the name of the donor of the Memorial House was one which every Rhode Islander revered and honored. It is a source of congratulation to all of us that this memorial stands here in Apponaug to-day.'

"Rev. Samuel H. Webb also spoke briefly, and said: 'Since my residence in this State, I have long heard of the Rhode Island family of Greenes, and this act is what I should have expected of one of its members.'

"The consecration service followed, which was sacred and impressive. Later, the rooms of the house were inspected and part of the company visited the old Greene burial-ground to view the grave of General George S. Greene, with the monument, a huge boulder brought from the scene of the hero's fight at Gettysburg; and also were attracted by the large granite stone erected by the old General in memory of his father, which bears the genealogical record of the family, as follows:

" 'In Memory of
Caleb Greene, Esquire, of Apponaug
Born July 17, 1772
Died Dec. 4, 1853
Erected by his children.

He was the son of Caleb, of Samuel, of Samuel, all of Apponaug, which last was son of John Greene, Esquire, Deputy Governor of this Colony, son of John Greene of Salisbury, England, and original proprietor of this town in 1643, who was son of Richard, son of Richard, son of Robert Greene, Esq., which last were all of Gillingham, Dorsetshire, England.'

"The Memorial House at Apponaug will be hereafter used as a rectory."

He married, December 17, 1827, Mary Jane, daughter of Colonel William and Harriet (Gibbs) Moore of Newport. Soon after his marriage, Dr. Greene removed to Middletown, and was Representative from that town in the State Legislature. He died at his home, Greendale, Middletown, July 8, 1899, soon after his ninetieth birthday. He had a wide circle of friends, by whom he was held in the highest esteem. Dr. Greene was the last lineal descendant of General Nathanael of the Revolution bearing the name Greene. His wife's death occurred a few years previous to his own. They left no children.

"Dr. Nathaniel Greene passed much of his boyhood at East Greenwich, where his parents removed soon after his birth. In 1836 he purchased a farm at Middletown, five miles from Newport, known as Greendale. He was educated at the East Greenwich Academy. In 1824 he entered as freshman, Amherst College, and the next year entered Brown as sophomore, but left college before completing his junior year. He studied medicine with Drs. Peck and Clark, in Oneida County, N. Y., for about one year, and then returned to East Greenwich and completed his medical course under Dr. Charles Eldredge of that town. He engaged in farming for some years, his family being large landowners; but, in 1848, took up the practice of medicine in Rhode Island towns, in which he was eminently popular and successful. He was greatly respected as a man of high character and tone, and worthy of his race and antecedents. Dr. Greene commanded the company of volunteers raised in Portsmouth and Middletown for the service of the State against the Dorr government, and afterward was captain of a company of cavalry, with the rank of colonel. After a year or two the company disbanded. For several years Dr. Greene was President of the Aquidneck Agricultural Society, and was State Senator, 1848-51. On July 4, 1878, he was chosen President of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, which office he held until his death."—Extract from Dr. H. E. Turner's History of the Medical Profession.

Mrs. Greene on the paternal side was a lineal descendant of John Porter, who came to Massachusetts Bay from England in 1637, and who was (as verified by English records) sixteenth in descent from William de la Grand, a Norman Knight who went with the army of the Norman Duke, at the time of the Conquest, 1066. He acquired lands near Kenilworth, Warwickshire, England, and his son, Ralph, was made "Grand Portur" to King Henry I., 1120-1140. R. I., September 21, 1819. His early education was at the Lyon's School, Providence, after which he entered Brown University, but owing to illness he was obliged to give up the course. When health was restored, at the age of eighteen, he went to New York City and there began his successful business career of forty years. About 1850, Mr. Greene was employed as clerk by Messrs. Hoyt, Sprague & Co. His rare business ability, strict integrity, as well as his skill and taste in designing dress patterns, won early recognition, and after one year he was made a partner in the firm. Since 1875 Mr. Greene has not been in active business, but has been constantly engaged looking after his various business concerns. He has always felt a keen interest in the family history, and has in his possession the large gold medal awarded by Congress to his great-uncle, Major General Nathanael Greene, in recognition of his valuable services in the war of the Revolution, the only medal ever given by Congress to an officer in the army. She married, December 31, 1850, Charles Hunt Welling, a merchant of Philadelphia, and later of New York City. He was the son of John, Jr., and Elizabeth (Hunt) Welling of Hopewell, N. J., and was born at Maidenhead (Lawrence), N. J., October 3, 1816; died in New York, January 14, 1892. "The most distinctive feature of Mr. Welling's character was his strict integrity, the expression of it in action being perfectly a matter of course. After remarkable success in business, he met the unfortunate experience of sudden failure; but settled with his creditors for about sixty cents on the dollar, to their full satisfaction. With unabated courage and patience, however, he amassed, slowly and laboriously, a sufficient sum to pay them the remaining forty cents in full, to their infinite surprise. It was only after his departure with his wife and daughter for a trip abroad for much-needed rest that this fact became known to his family, through the daily newspapers, and any mention of it thereafter was always distasteful to him. The full significance of the magnitude of the sum he paid so gladly, and the pathos of the many years in which he practised rigid economy (though never failing to afford his children the highest educational opportunities) were not entirely realized until after his death. He was a man conspicuous for his integrity and great energy, but also possessed of strong domestic tastes, and of profound religious convictions." (Family correspondence.)

Mr. Welling removed from New Jersey to Philadelphia, and thence to New York City in the winter of 1864-5. He was descended from William Welling, who came from England (it is said with six brothers) and was settled in Trenton, N. J., as a farmer. He was killed by a falling tree. His son William also resided in Trenton, and was purveyor at headquarters when General Washington was in New Jersey. He was the father of John Welling, "Elder" of the Baptist Church at Trenton, whose son, John, Jr., the father of Mr. Welling, married Elizabeth, daughter of Jesse Hunt of Hunterdon County, N. J., as above.

The following information concerning the parents of his first wife is gathered from The Hazard Family. Jane Hazard's mother was a remarkably energetic and capable woman, and although left with a large family of children and small resources, she brought them up well and gave them all a good education. She was a Quakeress, and, it is said, made no enemies; was interesting in conversation, even in extreme old age. She had a passion for flowers, allowing no one but herself to cultivate them in her garden, where "nothing she ever planted died."

Dr. Daniel H. Greene, was a successful homeopathic physician and the oldest in East Greenwich. He was the author of the History of East Greenwich, to which town he was greatly attached, and of which "he had treasured up a great deal of legendary lore." His wife was Mary, daughter of Foxall and Hannah Schurman.

CHILD:

3234. WILLIAM HARWAR PARKER, born Centreville, R. I., May 4, 1847, was the namesake of his great-grandfather, whose name came from William Harwar, a High Sheriff of Essex, England. He married, December 5, 1871, Elizabeth Thornton, daughter of Admiral Thornton Jenkins, U. S. N., and his wife, Georgia Thornton, daughter of Francis A., U. S. N., and Anna (Heap) Thornton. 8, 1866, entered the navy as midshipman, November 1, 1828. He was the only child of William Smythe and Sallie (Reynolds) Jenkins. His mother died at his birth. His father died at his farm, Boone County, Kentucky, in 1847, and was buried on a bluff overlooking the Ohio River. The name Parker is one of the oldest and most distinguished in English naval history, but is rarely found on the army list. The name is said to be derived from de Parker, a Norman knight. In the list of English admirals, the names Sir Christopher, Sir Peter, Sir Hyde, and Sir William Parker are many times repeated. Dr. Alexander Parker of Virginia, who was grandson of Judge George Parker, High Sheriff of Essex, 1732, was the father of Judge Richard, mentioned above, who married Mary Beale of Richmond, Va. She belonged to the family distinguished in Revolutionary service. Judge Parker's will is on record, dated 1770 (?). On his coffin, when being removed, was discovered a silver plate, with the Parker coat-of-arms and motto. (See Journal United Service and works of Captain Chaloner.)

He married (1) Emma McAlpine and (2) Lavinia, the adopted daughter of his brother, Daniel Edgar Greene. He died about 1897 in Peabody, Kansas, leaving a widow and several children. He was known as "David Maxson 2d."

house and at Adams Academy. In October, 1850, he entered the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., where he was graduated a civil engineer, August 29, 1851, having by reason of previous preparation and hard work completed the three years' course in a single year. In October of the same year he returned to the Institute as instructor.

Mr. Greene married, January 31, 1855, at Adams, N. Y., Maria N., second daughter of the late Judge Calvin Skinner, born September 17, 1832. They have no children. In March, 1852, Mr. Greene was appointed chairman on the enlargement of the Erie Canal, and on the suspension of the work, 1853, he resigned and went to Ohio, where he was employed as division engineer on what is now the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad. In the completion of the location of that road, on Christmas morning, 1853, he drove the last stake in the Ohio River, opposite the city of Wheeling. After several other engagements, Mr. Greene was sent to West Point, February, 1856, where, as a private pupil of the late General Thomas H. Neill, he completed a course in topographical engineering. In 1861, having been appointed as an engineer in the U. S. Navy, he resigned his professorship at Troy and entered government service. Though he was offered the position of chief topographical engineer to the government of Peru, at a large salary, he preferred, under the circumstances, to serve his own country at a much smaller rate of compensation.

Attached to the U. S. frigate Susquehanna, he participated in the naval attack upon, and capture of, the forts at Hatteras Inlet and at Port Royal, and in the naval attack upon the batteries at Sewall's Point, opposite Fortress Monroe.

In September, 1862, Mr. Greene was detached in the Gulf of Mexico, and ordered to report to the Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy for duty as assistant professor of natural and experimental philosophy, and as instructor in steam engineering in the Naval Academy then located at Newport, R. I., being the first engineer officer ever ordered to duty at the Naval Academy. He remained in this position until June, 1865, when, at his own request, he was detached and was subsequently ordered to the Bureau of Engineering of the Navy Department at Washington, D. C., as assistant chief of the Bureau. He remained here until May, 1868, when he was granted leave of absence for six months to engage as principal assistant engineer in charge of investigations connected with the extension of the Albany City Water Works.

In 1869 he was detailed as engineer in charge of the U. S. sloop Narragansett for a cruise in the West Indies. After a few months' service, the yellow fever broke out among the officers and crew, Mr. Greene being one of the victims who, after removal to a hospital on the Isle of Shoals, and a two weeks' detention in quarantine, were detached. In September of the same year Mr. Greene was detailed as engineer in charge of the Port Admiral's steamer Frolic, in New York Harbor. He reported for duty and, at the same time, having tired of the service, he tendered his resignation and proceeded at once to Troy, N. Y., to resume the general practice of his profession of engineering.

In 1870 he was appointed engineer to the State Commission; 1874, division engineer of the eastern division of the State canals; and, in June, 1874, deputy State engineer, which position he filled until 1878, when he resumed his practice in Troy. Was appointed director and professor of geodesy, etc., in the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, which position he occupied for thirteen years, resigning in 1891, when he was at once made the consulting engineer of the Arnold Print Works at North Adams, Mass., in which capacity he had been for some time connected with the Berkshire County Commission; both these positions Mr. Greene still retains. From 1873-1890 he was Colonel of Engineers, N. G. S. N. Y., attached to the staffs of Major-General J. B. Carr and Brigadier-General Amasa J. Parker. He has been for many years a director of the Troy City National Bank; of the Citizens' Steamboat Company; of the Glens Falls Brick and Terra-Cotta Company; and director and vice-president of the McDonald Stone Company, Watervliet, N. Y.

Mr. Greene is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States; of the Society of Founders and Patriots; of the Sons of the American Revolution; of the United Service Club of New York City; of the American Society of Civil Engineers; of the American Society of Naval Engineers; of the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers; and a Fellow of the American Geographical Society. In March, 1894, on the organization of the Committee of Public Safety of Troy, consisting of one hundred picked citizens, Mr. Greene was unanimously elected chairman. He resides (1902) at Troy and Adams, N. Y.

S. married, July 12, 1864, at Washington, D. C., Eliza, daughter of William and Margaret Graham (Sheerer) Story of Baltimore, Md. He was appointed an engineer officer of the United States Navy, 1859, and served for thirty-seven years. He was retired, 1892, a chief engineer, ranking as commander, having spent his life in the service of his country. He died March 6, 1896, at Washington, D. C., from disease incident to the service. His widow and son survive.

3503. ANNA ELIZABETH COTTRELL, born April 21, 1806, married (1), as 3d wife, Benjamin Bailey of New York, and married (2), June 15, 1833, Thatcher Taylor Payne, born in New York City, August 14, 1796, died December 27, 1863. He was son of William and (2d wife) Sarah (Isaacs) Payne, of Easthampton, L. I. His mother was "remarkable for her personal beauty and possessed many excellent traits of character." She died of consumption, at Boston, Mass., June 18, 1807. His father, William Payne, taught an "English Grammar School" in Boston, in 1774, but the occupation of the town by British troops in 1775 proved detrimental to the school, and it was discontinued for awhile, at which time he engaged as tutor in the Perkins family (of which the eminent merchants James and Thomas H. Perkins were members), whose home was at Barnstable, Mass. After re-opening his school in Boston his duties became very arduous. In 1776 he wrote to his uncle, Thomas Payne of Eastham, that he "was obliged to be in school from the first entrance of light till nine in the evening." It is stated that later his wife assisted him in teaching, and that one of her scholars, when a lady over ninety years of age, had "pleasant remembrances of her, as a very pretty old lady, very neat and dainty about her dress, teaching her reading, spelling, and sewing." Mr. and Mrs. Payne resided at Easthampton, L. I., for some years after 1783, where he continued to teach. In 1791, he opened a school in New York City, and was still teaching when, on March 3, 1812, he was suddenly attacked with paralysis, and died at his home in New York a few days later (March 7th). His son, Thatcher Taylor, assisted him in teaching in his early years, and was later, at the time of his marriage to Anna E. (Cottrell) Bailey, a lawyer of New York City. His elder brother, the noted John Howard Payne, author of Home, Sweet Home, was a student at his father's school, there giving his first attention to elocution, a branch of education in which his father was very successful. The date when the spelling of the name was changed to Payne is not known, but in the letter of 1776, above referred to, it was Paine. Thatcher Taylor Payne was a lineal descendant of Nicholas Snow of Plymouth and Eastham, and of Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower; his great-great-great-great-grandmother, Mary Snow, being the daughter of Nicholas (Hopkins) Snow (see Paine Genealogy, "Eastham Family," by Josiah Paine). Mrs. Payne died at the home of her daughter, the Rectory, Bedford, N. Y., January 19, 1890. Their only child was: Eloise Elizabeth Payne, born, New York City, August 15, 1834, died at Bedford, N. Y., April 22, 1894. She married, May 3, 1860, at Christ Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., Rev. Lea Luquer, of a Huguenot family, eldest son of Nicholas and Sarah Lea (Lynch) Luquer, born February 3, 1833. He was a lawyer, but studied for the ministry. Was ordained June 21, 1864, and was, first, rector of the Church of the Atonement, Brooklyn, N. Y. He entered his present charge at St. Matthew's Church, Bedford, N. Y., August 12, 1866, where he now resides. Three children: (1) Eloise Payne Luquer, born, Brooklyn, October 16, 1862, resides with her father at Bedford, N. "In the death of Mrs. Elisha Tyler, whose burial at Elmwood occurred to-day, another name has been added to the list of the older residents of Detroit who have recently passed away. Mrs. Tyler came to live in Detroit, February, 1843. This city has been her home for fifty-one years, and she has seen its growth from a large riverside village of about 9000, to its present dimensions. She was one of the original members of the First Congregational Church, but during the latter part of her life she was a devoted communicant of the Episcopal Church, and at the time of her death was a member of the parish of St. John. Mrs. Tyler was of a sunny and joyous disposition, patient and uncomplaining in weakness and pain. She was most gratefully appreciative of kindness, and her final release from the burden and weariness of her 86 years was a gift of peace."

3559. MOSES COIT TYLER (Prof.) was born August 2, 1835. Was graduated from Yale, 1857; studied theology in Andover Seminary. He became pastor of the First Congregational Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1860; Professor of English Literature at the University of Michigan, 1867-81, and subsequently Professor of American History at Cornell University. He was editor of the Christian Union, 1873-74, and a frequent contributor to reviews and magazines. In 1881, he became an Episcopalian, and was ordained Deacon, and in 1883, Priest, in St. John's Church, Ithaca, N. Y., by Bishop Coxe. Received degree of LL.D. from Wooster University, 1875, and from Columbia, 1888. Professor Tyler married, in 1859, Jeanette Hull Gilbert, of New Haven, Conn. They had two children: Jessie Gilbert, born August 9, 1860, married W. H. Austen, Assistant Librarian of Cornell University; and Edward Scott, born January 3, 1863, both of whom survive their father, who died at Ithaca, N. Y., after a short illness, December 28, 1900. Among his best known works are: History of American Literature During the Colonial Period, The Literary History of the American Revolution, Life of Patrick Henry, Manual of English Literature, and Glimpses in England.

At the Author's Club, on Memorial night, March 28, 1901, eulogies of members who had died during the preceding year were pronounced, and of Professor Tyler, Mr. George Haven Putnam said, in part: "The survival of the fittest in literature brings to the successive generations only those works that continue to possess any message or thought of continuing value. It is fortunate for later generations when they have the service in the selection of this earlier literature, which is to be presented as possessing interest for the present day, of a historian and critic whose judgment is so sane and yet so appreciative as was that of Tyler. He succeeded in impressing something of his own warm-hearted imagination upon the record of the earlier literature; a record which in the absence of such an inspiring guide might have seemed but a chronicle of dry bones. He says: 'No word which has once possessed vital force for living men and women can ever entirely lose its vitality and meaning.'

"While Tyler's memory will be preserved through his books, it is, however, to be borne in mind that his chief work was that of a teacher. He had accepted the classroom as his vocation, and in giving his days to it, he felt that he could reserve but few hours in the week for literary pursuits, which represented, nevertheless, his lasting ambition. It was partly because of this conscientious economy and partly because of his high standard of thoroughness that his literary production was so inconsiderable in compass. His History of American Literature, presenting the literature of Colonial times, was first published in 1878. It was nineteen years later before he was prepared to give to the public the volumes which continued the narrative through the period of the Revolution. For his works there was no reshaping while they were passing through the press; his thought was perfected. . . .

"At the time of his death he had in train literary plans which would have added to his repute. One may not say, however, that his life, with what had been accomplished in it, was not substantially complete. He had fought the fight and had done a good work."—From "Saturday Review" of the New York Times, April 6, 1901.

On the disbanding of his regiment, he resumed his business in Detroit, but again entered the field as First Lieutenant, 17th Michigan Infantry, and was in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam, and Fredericksburg, and also other important ones. He rose to the rank of Captain while acting Major, was severely wounded at Campbell's Station, East Tennessee, losing his left hand in consequence. During the reconstruction of the Southern States, Major Tyler greatly distinguished himself by his administrative ability, serving as Adjutant-General of Departments, under Generals Ord, McDowell, Gillen, and Ames. She was married June 2, 1841, at the Beekman Street Presbyterian Church, New York, by Rev. Gardiner Spring, to Albert Daniel <sup>7</sup> Greene (Caleb <sup>6</sup>, Caleb <sup>5</sup>, Samuel <sup>4</sup>, Samuel <sup>3</sup>, John <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) of Apponaug, born July 8, 1806, died at Coweset, September 3, 1895. 2374. (Rev.) JAMES <sup>7</sup> GREENE (Rowland <sup>6</sup>, Thomas <sup>5</sup>, Richard <sup>4</sup>, Richard <sup>3</sup>, Thomas <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born December 6, 1810, at Scituate, R. I. He was the youngest of thirteen children. His father, Dr. Rowland Greene, was a prominent minister of the Society of Friends, but his son James, after some years at various denominational schools and about two years spent in mercantile business at Baltimore, Md., came under the influence of Rev. Dr. W. B. Sprague of Albany, N. Y., and united with the Presbyterian church of that city in 1830, and soon decided to enter the ministry. After preparatory studies at Albany Academy, he entered Amherst College in 1833, and was graduated in 1837. He then "studied theology for three years at Princeton, N. J., having for his instructors three of the most eminent teachers in the Presbyterian Church—Drs. Archibald Alexander, Samuel Miller, and Charles Hodge. After his graduation there, he labored in the Home Missionary field near Nashville, Tenn. Among the churches in which he preached was one attended by General Jackson, who wished to engage his services there, but circumstances were not favorable, and he took charge of a church at Gallatin, Tenn., where he remained two years. After a brief pastorate at Shelbyville, Ky., he went, in 1844, to Madison, Ind., to accept the professorship of ancient languages in the Madison University, and when that university was closed, he opened a private classical school. In 1852, he taught for a year at Evansville, and in 1853 removed to Indianapolis, having become secretary of the Indianapolis and Evansville Air Line R. R. When the war broke out, Mr. Greene became Assistant Quartermaster-General of the State, serving till the close of hostilities. He was made secretary of a business-mens' organization, and was agent of the Berkshire Life Insurance Co., which place he held until his death. Mr. Greene was a man of impressive manner and appearance, and as a speaker possessed great clearness and force. He retained his knowledge of ancient languages to such an unusual degree that he was frequently called upon to examine candidates for the university in this branch. In the First Church of Indianapolis he was a man of marked usefulness; on the semi-centennial anniversary of the church he prepared a historical discourse with great literary skill. He also wrote a history of the Indianapolis Presbytery. His death removes the last of three prominent figures of this church. He leaves a wife and one son, Davies M. Greene, who was of late years his business partner."—Indianapolis News, December 26, 1893.

Rev. Mr. Greene married, April 7, 1842, in Tennessee, Mary Burrows, daughter of Wm. Varnum and Sidney (Phipps) McCullough of that State, born November 22, 1822 (?). Hall, at Providence, September 5, 1859, to Ellen Maria, daughter of James G. and Sally F. Armington. He died at Providence, November 16, 1871.

"In the death of Rufus Greene, the city loses one of its most estimable citizens, a merchant of the highest character, of intelligence, probity, and capacity, and in the midst of active and successful business. Mr. Greene was at one time largely connected with the African trade, and it is supposed that the seeds of the disease of which he died were planted on that insalubrious coast. In the latter years of his life, Mr. Greene was engaged in banking, to which he brought the same high qualities, intellectual and moral, that had conducted him to success in commerce. He will be missed in many places and regretted by many friends."—Providence Journal.

Morse, who died in 1892, after a long period of invalidism, which is thus alluded to: "To those who watched the long struggle of her naturally strong constitution and courageous spirit with the limitations of physical weakness, it was cause for keen regret that her very high order of talent and great intellectual ability should be at least, apparently, so curtailed; and that one favorite pursuit after another should be uncomplainingly resigned and the life of an invalid accepted as a necessity. Yet, except to those who lived with her day by day, there was little evidence of what she endured, or of the sacrifice she was making. No one was ever with her without feeling happier, fuller of hope, energy, and resolution, and more sure that this life of ours is worth living. . . . While we, under the impression of her remarkable personality, wished that she might have the fullest opportunity to achieve all of which we knew her to be so capable, the force within her was taking on another form and becoming a power not only to give her courage and endurance, enabling her to keep that gayety of heart that was so much a part of her, but also to inspire others with something of the same spirit that animated herself. Looking back over her life . . . her memory reminds us that 'it is in rugged crises, in hours of unweariable endurance, that the angel is shown.' "

 3705. WILLIAM BRIMMER, born January 14, 1854; printer in United States Government employ, Washington, D. C. Died September 2, 1885.

The following account, written by Mrs. Greene, was sent by the late George H. Greene of Lansing, Mich., to General George S. Greene, with his expressed wish that it should be embraced in the published Genealogy. Mr. Greene was himself deeply interested in the Greene family history, and for many years rendered valuable aid to the late General:

"William H. Greene commenced trading on the river when quite young, usually running a load of produce in the fall and flour in the spring; or, acting as clerk or mate on some of the larger steamboats. He held a position for some time on the steamboat Carolina, and was known as 'Capt. Greene.' He was gentle and kind with his men, but a very firm disciplinarian. One season, Thomas S. Battelle (his cousin), who had rented the farm of his father (Ebenezer Battelle, Sen., who married Mary<sup>6</sup> Greene (John<sup>5</sup>, Richard<sup>4</sup>, Richard<sup>3</sup>, Thomas<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), sold him six hundred barrels of apples for 60 cents per bbl.—mostly Rhode Island greenings, picked and delivered within a week, which brought him $9.00 per barrel! Every winter for twenty-five consecutive years, Mr. Greene went to New Orleans, making in all fifty-three trips, the last in 1852. In Dec., 1848, he reached New Orleans just as the cholera broke out and the panic spread like wild-fire. Many of the traders left their boats and fled in terror without selling or even making a consignment. Mr. Greene sold out immediately at wholesale, making one hundred dollars by the transaction. He left the place with all possible haste, reaching home January 4, 1849. He came up the river on the steamboat Pectoria, the cholera raging fearfully all the time, eighteen dying during the trip. As he had some knowledge of medicine and was an excellent nurse, he was very helpful in caring for the sick and keeping down the panic. Some were in favor of landing and leaving those who were attacked wherever they happened to be, but a vote was taken and it was decided that the sick should have the best of care, so far as it was possible to give it. Mr. Greene and Jonathan Middleswart (who was also a skilful nurse) entered into a solemn compact that if either of them died on the boat the other should see that he was 'boxed up' and sent home. Among those who died, was the Captain, who lived at Steubenville, Ohio. His little boy came to Cincinnati to meet him and found him in his coffin. The scene was terrible!

"Mr. Greene was a man of generous impulses, which was observed in all his dealings, and an earnest Christian from early youth, bearing, at life's end, his long and severe illness with wonderful courage, always feeling that God's ways were right and His dealings were for our best good."

ADDENDUM.

The following data from records of the late George H.<sup>9</sup> Greene of Lansing, Mich. (son of Augustus W.<sup>8</sup> Greene), will be of interest in connection with that of Robert Rouse Greene (No. 1813) of this generation:

The grandfather of Robert Rouse, Griffin<sup>5</sup> Greene, son of Jabez<sup>4</sup> (Jabez<sup>3</sup>, James<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) commenced his military career in 1775 by serving as commissary to the Rhode Island troops, although the previous year he had trained to military exercises as a volunteer in the company to which the Revolutionary heroes, Nathanael and Christopher Greene, his kinsmen, belonged. In 1777 he was paymaster to the regiment commanded by Colonel Christopher, and during the attack on the fort at Red Bank he was exposed to the shot of the enemy in taking a supply of powder to his countrymen, although this was not in his line of duty. In 1778, his cousin, General Nathanael, with whom he had been brought up and lived in closest intimacy (working with him at the same forge and engaging in the same mercantile pursuits), was appointed by General Washington, Quartermaster-General of the Army, and his cousin Griffin became his aide-de-camp.

After the war, Colonel Griffin "visited France and Holland and adjacent countries," and soon after his return, when the plans for the Ohio Settlement were matured, he sold his partnership interests in Rhode Island to his cousin, Jacob Greene, and joined the Ohio Company, investing part of his money in their lands. In 1788 he removed his family to Marietta, Ohio, with all his household goods, including a large and valuable library. He also carried with him many mechanical and agricultural implements, and, under his direction, in the year 1800, the first anchor on the Ohio River was made for the brig St. Clair. He was appointed Justice of the Peace at Marietta, and was also Judge of the Court of Quarter Sessions, and a director of the Ohio Company in the place of General Varnum. In 1790, Colonel Greene joined the colony of Belpre, Ohio, and was a leading man in that settlement, solemnizing marriages and settling civil disputes. He took an active part in the building of Farmer's Castle at Belpre, and lived there for five years during the Indian war, travelling regularly to the sittings of the Court at Marietta, making the journeys in a canoe, exposed to the rifles of the Indians. In 1802 he was appointed Postmaster of Marietta, which office, after his decease, was held by his son Philip, and subsequently by Griffin, Jr [see Nos. 863, 864, 865]. Colonel Greene was a man of intelligence, quick apprehension, inventive genius, and very refined manners, having associated with, and ranked among, the first of the men of talent. His death occurred after a lingering painful illness, most patiently borne, in 1804.

Richard Greene, his son, and father of Robert Rouse, was born in Rhode Island, December 4, 1769. He married Bathsheba, daughter of Captain John and Rebecca Rouse of New Bedford, Mass. Her family removed to Belpre, Ohio, in 1788, and for several years she taught school there, being the first teacher in the northwest territory. Richard Greene died December, 1805, aged thirty-six, and his wife died September 27, 1843, aged seventy-four. Both buried at the Mound Cemetery, Marietta. They had six children, all born in Marietta.

1. WILLIAM, born 1795, died in infancy.

3. CAROLINE, born November 29, 1798, married (second wife), April 5, 1843, Joseph Hutchinson, born in New Jersey; was a farmer, and besides his farm owned an island in the Ohio River called Hutchinson Island. He died at his home, December 12, 1870, and his child by a former marriage inherited his property. Mrs. Hutchinson survived him and was for many years afterward cared for by her cousin, Mrs. Rebecca (Rouse) Le Seur.
4. SARAH, born January 13, 1801, died January 18, 1870, unmarried.
5. ROBERT ROUSE, born March 10, 1803, married, December 14, 1837, Lucy Henrietta, daughter of Martin and Lucy (Butler) Seymour of Hartford, Conn. He removed to Pittsfield, Ill., 1833, where he lived and died. Engaged in business with his cousin, Austin Barber—firm, Greene & Barber. He was thorough and energetic, and for many years the foremost man in the community; a man of clear mind, powerful will, a diligent reader, and a thoughtful student of the affairs of society and government. He was somewhat reserved in manner, but had a warm heart and was constant in friendship. He was deacon of the Congregational Church, but was an invalid the last ten years of his life. He died April 15, 1886, aged eighty-three. Of their four children two died young, Edwin Ferdinand and Henry Seymour. The eldest daughter, Ellen Frances, married Dr. Eugene L. Nelson of Quincy, Ill., son of Rev. David Quincy; have six children, the youngest, Lucy Caroline, unmarried, living (1889) with her mother at Pittsfield, Ill.

He was with Gen'l Washington, as Albany records show, and was Captain in Major Van Slack's regiment in the Revolutionary war. He was a very tall man and stood six feet seven inches in his stockings. Of his two daughters, one, my grandmother, married Daniel Gibbs of Connecticut, who journeyed to this part of civilization. They were the parents of my mother, Ann (Gibbs) Greene." From the same source, at earlier date, we learn that Esek Greene removed from Alexandria Bay, on the St. Lawrence River, to Milwaukee, Wis., in 1844, where he made his home for some years and thence removed to Merrimack, Sauk County, Wis., where he died, June 29, 1862. It is stated that "a concourse of twenty teams followed him to his burial in Baraboo Cemetery, a distance of nine miles." He is described as "a man of remarkable character and marked individuality who loved to explore the history of families." Mrs. Greene's maternal grandparents were Walter and Abigail (Hazard) Watson, and her great-grandfather, Thomas Hazard, known as "Virginia Tom," was a successful and wealthy merchant of Newport (see The Hazard Family, pp. 45, 47, 136, and 141). Mr. Greene was a man of exceptional ability and character, and of remarkably even disposition; rarely angered, and never depressed, even through heavy financial losses, some of which were occasioned by his too great generosity. He was the first man who developed a water supply for Brooklyn, E. D. He was of an inventive turn of mind, and saved millions in the manufacture of hats by one of his original patents. At the time of his death he had seventeen patents, showing his work in this direction.

CHILDREN:

3911. SARAH MARGARET FULLER, born April 28, 1839, married Rev. Samuel W. Duncan.

Hon. Albert Gorton Greene, of Brown University, 1820, was admitted to the bar in 1828. He was a man of antiquarian tastes, and yet, it is said that every process of manufacture from the lightest fabric to iron-work received his attention, and in this department of knowledge he was regarded as a living encyclopædia. He was a trustee of the Rhode Island Historical Society from its foundation, holding the office of Vice-President and President for twenty-five years. He was also the original designer of the seal of the Society, which device, as a member of the committee appointed to procure it, he submitted, May 27, 1831. "The love of letters was with him a passion, and though thoughtful and literary, he was most unassuming. His library contained a vast collection of literary curios of American poetry, and his department of English poets was unrivalled. In 1833, he became the editor of The Literary Journal. An occasional poem in his own paper and four selections in the R. I. Book of Poetry are all that were published. He has been uniquely styled 'the American Poet who never published a volume.' But he appealed to the heart of humanity, when, as a boy of sixteen, he dashed off the lines of Old Grimes is Dead for a college society, little thinking that they would make him famous, and at the close of half a century form the truest epitaph on his own tomb! The pathos, quaint humor, and abounding charity of Old Grimes present a perfect picture of the moral qualities of its author. His life was full of wisdom and every grace that adorns humanity" (from Address of Hon. Samuel G. Arnold before the Rhode Island Historical Society, 1869).

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

3915. EDWIN C. BAILEY, a successful journalist, who became editor and proprietor of the Boston Herald. He was married and lived and died in Boston. The only child named is a daughter, Mrs. Shepard of Boston, but there may have been others.

3917. (SON) BAILEY.
3918. (SON) BAILEY.
3919. (DAUGHTER) BAILEY, who married — (?). Said to have been "so remarkably handsome and fascinating that she always created a disturbance!"

The only surviving son of William Pitt Fessenden, General Francis Fessenden, still resides in Portland, Me., "a gallant man with a splendid war record, who lost a leg in the Civil War." During a long period of years he never failed to honor his paternal grandmother, Ruth Greene, with a visit, whenever he chanced to be in Boston, and pleasant relations were always kept up by his father, also, with the children of her second marriage. General Francis had three brothers, two of whom were also in the United States service: James D., born 1833, died 1882, Brigadier and Brevet Major-General Volunteers; Samuel, born 1841, was mortally wounded at the second battle of Bull Run, August 31, 1862; William H., born 1835, died 1898.

Mr. Greene possessed some poetic talent and published occasional verses over the nom de plume of "Boscawen." He afterward published a History of Italy (translation), and translated about fifty volumes from the German. He also distinguished himself in politics. He travelled in Europe extensively, and when in Paris met with a great affliction in the death of his only daughter at Panama. He married Susan, daughter of Rev. William Batchelder of Haverhill, Mass. Mr. Greene was christened "Peter," but having great respect for his father's name, he wished to assume it, and by permission of the Massachusetts Legislature he took the name Nathaniel. He died at Boston, November 29, 1877, when eighty years of age.

CHILDREN:

3920. WILLIAM BATCHELDER, born April 4, 1819, married Anna B. Shaw.

3921. MARY GARDINER, born 1821 (?), died 1852.

The following extract is from an obituary notice published in Boston: "Few names have been more closely identified with the life and interests of the city than that of Nathaniel Greene. He was eminently a successful man. He handled elements that lay before him with judgment and with vigor. For half a century his career was one of great activity, and it yielded results upon which he might well pride himself. He was a controlling spirit—a progressive force in those circles wherein he moved, and his name will be remembered as long as the events of the Boston of the 19th century are written about or spoken of" (see Coffin's History of Boscawen, N. H.: also Batchelder Genealogy).

Colonel Greene, in later years, was prominent politically and was respected by men of all parties. He was Representative to the Massachusetts Legislature, and, in 1848, was aide-de-camp to Governor Morton, on which account he received the title of "Colonel." Upon the accession of President Pierce he was appointed Naval Officer, and held the position for eight years. Colonel Greene was esteemed for his candor and affability. Hon. David Henshaw said of him: "He is the self-made, self-taught man; the energetic and polished writer. He shows the superiority of real worth over fictitious greatness." He married, October 24, 1827, Charlotte E., daughter of Captain Samuel and Elizabeth Hill of Boston, a lady of fine education and talent. She was born February, 1808, died February 14, 1880. He died in Boston, December 7, 1886, in his eighty-third year. Of

Henry L. Greene married, August 13, 1849, Marcy Gooding, daughter of Oliver Cromwell and Lucy Ann<sup>7</sup> (Greene) Wilbur (see No. 1585), born November 28, 1824, died at their home, River Point, R. I., June 22, 1879. Her emigrant ancestor, Samuel Wildbore, came to Boston, Mass., in 1633, and his son William settled in Portsmouth, R. I. Samuel, son of William, had a son Daniel, who settled in Swansea, and his son Thomas married Mary Gorton, granddaughter of the pioneer Samuel Gorton. Peleg Wilbur, son of Thomas and Mary, was the grandfather of Mrs. Greene. He was a large shareholder in the Washington Manufacturing Company, whose mill was the first cotton mill in Washington village. "In 1815, during the financial panic following the war with Great Britain, the mill was stopped, and some years after was destroyed by fire. Peleg Wilbur and his sons bought up most of the shares of the old company, formed a new one known as 'The Washington Co.,' and built the easterly portion of the present stone mill, adding a large extension westerly in later years, the building finally containing one hundred and four looms and four thousand spindles."

The wife of Peleg Wilbur was Marcy Gooding (daughter of Matthew), for whom Mrs. Greene was named. For many years before her death Mrs. Greene was an invalid, but bore her sufferings with heroic fortitude, and was ever ready to lend a helping hand whenever she could do any good. "She died as she had lived, peacefully and quietly, and now that she is gone, a large circle of friends will recall her many virtues—the quiet, unobtrusive manner, the kind and gentle disposition which endeared her to all who knew her."—Pawtuxet Valley Gleaner.

"Henry Lehré Greene was in his fourteenth year when his father removed to his works at Clyde in the town of Warwick. He immediately commenced to acquire a practical knowledge of the art of bleaching, printing, and finishing cotton goods, in the establishment founded by his father and his partner, Edward Pike, in 1828. Mr. Pike died in 1842, when young Greene assumed an active part in the general management under his father, and, in 1845, was practically the operator of the mechanism of the establishment and the manager until 1868. He is now President of the corporation which grew out of the original and succeeding copartnerships, and is styled the S. H. Greene & Sons Corporation.

"In his early manhood he was elected a member of the Town Council of Warwick, serving two years in succession, and, later, was again elected and served as President of that body one year. In 1883, he was elected Senator from Warwick and was again elected in 1888. In 1884, he was appointed by Governor Bourn to serve the unexpired term of the late Dr. Job Kenyon on the Board of State Charities and Corrections, and on the expiration of that term, was reappointed for the full term of six years; was again reappointed, but resigned after one year's further service.

"In 1892, he was appointed by Governor Ladd a member of the State Commission on the Pollution of the Pawtuxet River. He is now President of the Board of Managers of the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, and has represented this institution on the State Board of Agriculture since January 4, 1896. [Resigned 1902.] In fact since he attained his majority Mr. Greene has served his adopted town and his State, in one public capacity or another up to the present time, continuously, for a period of over fifty-three years.

"He is President of the Phoenix Savings Bank, one of the Vice-Presidents of the Union Trust Co. and President of the Pawtuxet Valley Free Library Association, and was a Presidential Elector in 1884.

"Although not a farmer by occupation, he cultivates a few acres of land which he has brought from an almost barren condition to one of considerable productiveness. He feels a deep interest in all agricultural matters and earnestly desires to promote the welfare of the farmers of the State and that of their families."—Annual Report R. I. State Board of Agriculture for 1900.

2751. CHRISTOPHER RHODES<sup>8</sup> GREENE (Simon H.<sup>7</sup>, Job<sup>6</sup>, Christopher<sup>5</sup>, Philip<sup>4</sup>, Job<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Providence, October 14, 1827. He removed with his father's family in 1838 to Clyde in the town of Warwick. At the age of fourteen he was in the employ of Earl P. Mason & Co. of Providence, and later was with Preston Bennett, cotton and cotton goods dealer, of the same city. Afterwards he was for a time in the Exchange Bank, Providence, and finally became the partner of his brother, William Rogers Greene, in St. Louis, Mo., under the firm name of Wm. R. Greene & Co., with branches in Memphis, Vicksburg, and New Orleans. He married, September, 1866, Maria, daughter of Charles Pratt, of Bridgewater, Mass., who died in 1867. About that time his business was ruined by the army worm and the destructive fire at Vicksburg, and he returned to his home in Rhode Island, becoming in 1869 one of the firm of S. H. Greene & Sons, at Clyde, Warwick, where he remained until his death, which occurred at Harris, R. I., March 13, 1885. No children.

Mr. Greene was extensively engaged in business in St. Louis, Memphis, Vicksburg, and New Orleans until 1867-68 (see above). Owing to his private interests in Louisiana and his wife being a native of that State, he remained at New Orleans for some years, but finally returned to his Rhode Island home, accompanied by his family, and was admitted in 1874 as a member of the firm of S. H. Greene & Sons, at Clyde, Warwick. He died September 23, 1889, at Warwick, R. I., and was buried at Swan Point Cemetery, Providence.

called by the operatives of the print works, was always consulted before they took any important step in life, and in several instances they begged him to take their savings to keep, thinking the money nowhere so safe as with him, although he always declined the trust, insisting that it should go into the savings bank.

The highway running from Westcott's Toll Gate (now Westcott Station), over which the electric cars of the Rhode Island Suburban Railway run from the valley villages to Rocky Point) was opened and built in 1868 by his strenuous efforts, while he was President of the Warwick Town Council, and it is known in the family as his public monument; for, in giving to its construction that conscientious personal supervision which characterized his every act, he took the severe cold which so aggravated the troubles caused by his injuries in early life that he was ever after an invalid, though he lived for five years. The highway is now one of the great arteries of travel across the central part of the town of Warwick, as he foresaw it would be when he pushed it through. He had a most kindly, lovable disposition, with a keen intellect and wit, but his wit had no sting. After Mr. Greene's death, his widow resided in Providence with her two daughters until 1878, when, her own health failing, she removed with them to Nantucket, spending the winters in or near Boston or in Providence, until after the death of her younger daughter, Elizabeth Hughes Greene. The Nantucket home was then sold, and Mrs. Greene and her surviving daughter resided at Jamaica Plain, Mrs. Greene's father taking up his residence with them. It was here that he met with a sudden and shocking death while at a grade crossing close to the railway station. He was exceedingly deaf, and an express train struck him, killing him instantly (see No. 1460). In 1890, Mrs. Greene and her daughter Mary Anne returned to the milder climate of Providence, where they continue to reside.

4012. MARIA MACY DURFEE, married, September 24, 1856, Rowland Gibson Rodman of North Kingstown, son of Samuel and Mary (Peckham) Rodman, born January 10, 1828. His father was one of the most successful manufacturers and richest mill owners in the State; was a member of the Baptist Church for over forty years; was one of the chief benefactors of the Baptist church built at Wakefield, R. I., 1852, and contributed largely to no less than twenty-six other churches. He was very energetic, but possessed "gentleness of manner combined with decision which made him beloved and trusted by all who came in contact with him."

Rowland G. Rodman was engaged in the manufacturing business at the beginning of the Civil War, but on the second call for volunteers he followed the example of his elder brother Isaac Peace Rodman (afterward Brigadier-General, and who fell at the battle of Antietam, "mourned as one of the bravest, purest, and best of men"), and raised a company of men mostly from his native town, of which the Governor appointed him captain. His first battle, Fredericksburg, one of the most fearful of the war, proved his last, for he was seriously wounded, and never entirely recovered from the effects of his wounds. The home of Captain and Mrs. Rodman is now (1895) at Ashland, Wis. (see Hazard Family, pp. 188, 233, 236). They have five children: Harriot G., born February 19, 1859; Rowland G., born August 22, 1861; Mary Durfee, born October 7, 1866; Nathaniel G., born July 27, 1869; Edgar G., born April 4, 1872, died March 17, 1877.

He was graduated at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., 1859; Lieutenant United States Navy, 1861; Midshipman in the East Indian Squadron on the Hartford until her return to the United States 1861, when he volunteered for service under Lieutenant Worden, on the Monitor, our first ironclad, then being built at Greenpoint, L. I., of which he became second in command (see below). Lieutenant Greene was married (1), October 9, 1863, at St. Michael's Church, Bristol, R. I., by Rev. William Stone, rector, to Mary Willis, daughter of John Willis and Mary Gorham (Richmond) Dearth, born July 18, 1839. She was granddaughter of Hon. Lemuel Clark Richmond of Bristol, assessor, justice of the peace, and notary; cashier of Freeman's Bank for thirty-five years, and treasurer of the Savings Institution of Bristol. He married Hannah, daughter of Captain Isaac Gorham of Bristol, who was the great-great-grandson of John and Desire (Howland) Gorham. Mrs. Greene's great-grandfather, Gilbert Richmond, was ensign of a company raised in Rhode Island in 1776, and ensign in the 2d Regiment in Revolutionary service. He was the great-grandson of Colonel Sylvester<sup>3</sup> Richmond (Edward<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), who married Elizabeth Rogers, granddaughter of John Alden and his wife Priscilla Mullins (see Richmond Family, by Joshua Bailey Richmond, pp. 16, 179, 353, 499).

John Willis Dearth, father-in-law of Captain Greene, was son of Golden Dearth, who was born in England, settled in Rhode Island when about nineteen years of age, and married Elizabeth Bloom Bradford, daughter of Major William Bradford, who was in Revolutionary service, aide-de-camp to General Charles Lee. He was the great-grandson of John<sup>3</sup> (William<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>) and Mercy (Warren) Bradford, granddaughter of Richard Warren of the Mayflower. He was impelled from a pure sense of patriotism to take up arms in the Civil War in the maturity of his years, and accepted the position of Major of the 10th Rhode Island Regiment, and later was Major of the 7th Rhode Island. He was a cool, brave, and prompt officer. He was wounded in the battle of Fredericksburg, and died at Alexandria, December 23, 1862. His last written words were: "Should it be my lot to fall, know that it was in defence of our beloved Constitution" (see Memoirs of Rhode Island Officers, by J. W. Bartlett, p. 265).

"Lieut. Greene's service on the Monitor was without intermission from the day she was commissioned till she foundered in the night of Dec. 29, 1862, off Cape Hatteras. On Mar. 6, 1862, the Monitor sailed from New York harbor, for Hampton Roads, Va. Having been built for service on inland waters she narrowly escaped sinking on her way to the Capes of Virginia on two occasions, and her officers and crew were without sleep for forty-eight hours on their arrival at their destination in Hampton Roads—on the morning of Mar. 9, 1862. In their exhausted condition Lieut. Worden proceeded at once to attack the enemy's iron-clad Merrimac and in that notable engagement Lieut. Worden the commanding officer directed from the Pilot House; and Lieut. Greene, in the Tower, had charge of the guns, every shot from which he personally fired, until, when near the close of the fight, Lieut. Worden being severely wounded and disabled, he became the Commander. In the delay consequent on the change of commanders, the vessels separated. When Lieut. Greene took his position in the Pilot House the Monitor was again directed to the Merrimac which was then on her way to Norfolk. Lieut. Greene not having a Pilot and the Monitor being of less speed than the Merrimac he could not follow the enemy through the very crooked channel of Elizabeth river, and firing a few ineffectual shots at the fleeing Merrimac he returned to the wooden ships of war which were saved by the successful action in which the Monitor drove the Merrimac from Hampton Roads to which she never attempted to return; thereby as effectually ridding the country from this danger as if she had been sunk in the Chesapeake Bay. Lieut. Greene continued second in command of the Monitor while she remained in the waters of Chesapeake Bay and was engaged in the several hard fought actions at Fort Darling and other points on James river. After escaping from the Monitor when she foundered off Cape Hatteras 1863 he was on blockade duty, executive officer of the Florida; 1864-5 executive officer of the Iroquois in the search for the Alabama; 1865-9 employed on several vessels; 1866 promoted Lieut.-Commander and in 1872 Commander. In 1875 he had command of the Funiata; 1876-7 of the Monongahela and in 1882-4 of the Dispatch. He was on duty at the Naval Academy 1865-8 as Assistant Professor of Mathematics; 1871-3 as Assistant Professor of Astronomy; 1878-82 as Assistant to the Superintendent of the Academy. He received a vote of thanks for his gallant services in the action between the Monitor and the Merrimac from the State of Rhode Island. When U. S. Senator Bayard of Delaware delivered an oration at the unveiling of Admiral Dupont's statue at Washington D.C. Dec. 20 1884 he made the following allusion to Commander Greene: 'The Monitor whose name is inseparable from that of Ericsson, whose genius devised her; of Worden, whose heroism tested her; of Greene, who caught up the torch of glory, as it dropped from the hand of Worden when he fell blinded and bleeding in the contest.'

Lieutenant Greene died at the Navy Yard, Kittery, Me., near Portsmouth, N. H., December 11, 1884. Funeral services were held at his quarters, December 15th, and the burial service was at Bristol, R. I., December 16, 1884.

married at St. Ann's Church, New York City, May 9, 1867, by Rev. Thomas Gallaudet, D.D., to Abby Ann, daughter of the late Charles Reed and Emily Lucretia (Chandler) Hull of New York City and granddaughter of Thomas and Sarah Chandler of Massachusetts, born September 15, 1841. She died suddenly at the home of William P. Abbott, Keene, N. H., February 16, 1878. Mrs. Greene was the great-granddaughter of Lieutenant Jedediah Hull, who was at Quebec with Arnold and Montgomery, and was by the side of General Montgomery when he fell. In possession of Burr Hull of Bethel, Conn., is the following:

"Commission to Jedediah Hull 2nd Lieutenant of the Regiment raised in this Colony for invading Canada and carrying war into the heart of the enemy's provinces."

"[Signed] THOS. FITCH—Govr [of Conn.]"

Lieutenant Hull married Mary Chapman, a lineal descendant of Robert Chapman, who came from England in 1635, settled at Saybrook, Conn., and was Deputy to the General Court and Governor's Assistant.

Major Greene was married (2), November 26, 1880, at St. James's Church, Danbury, Conn., by Dr. Byron Hall, to Addie Maud, daughter of Henry and Clarissa Barrett (Sturges) Supplee, of Brookfield, Conn., and granddaughter of Charles (son of Samuel) and Betsy Ann (Gray) Sturges, born September 27, 1860.

MRS. ANNA MARY (GREENE) DAY.

MAJOR-GENERAL FRANCIS VINTON GREENE,

Francis Vinton Greene is the youngest son of Major-General George Sears Greene. He was born in Providence, R. I., June 27, 1850. Received his early education at Trinity School, New York, and Burlington College, New Jersey. He was appointed a cadet at West Point, September 1, 1866, and graduated at the head of his class four years later. He served in the army for the next sixteen years as Lieutenant of Artillery in the Southern States; as Lieutenant and Captain of Engineers on the survey of the northern boundary of the United States; as Engineer-in-Chief of Public Works in Washington, and as Instructor of Practical Military Engineering at West Point.

In 1876 and 1877, he was on duty in the office of the Secretary of War in Washington. On the outbreak of the war between Russia and Turkey, he was sent abroad to observe and report the military operations of the contending armies, and for this purpose was assigned as Military Attaché to the United States Legation at St. Petersburg, and while in the field was attached to the staff of the Emperor of Russia. He was present at all the principal battles in Turkey and the marches from the Danube to Constantinople, and received various decorations from the Emperor of Russia and the King of Roumania. Resigning from the army in 1886, he became identified with the asphalt paving industry as Vice-President and afterwards President of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company. Under his management this industry, from a small beginning, became one of the leading industries of the country, and the asphalt pavement has become the standard material for covering the streets in all the principal cities (more than one hundred in number) in the United States and Canada.

In the year 1889, he joined the National Guard of New York as Major and Engineer of the First Brigade; and in January, 1892, he became Colonel of the 71st Regiment, and remained in command of the regiment until his promotion during the war with Spain.

This regiment was one of the first to volunteer its services in May, 1898, and it was mustered into the United States service on May 12th, and immediately proceeded to Florida, being the first volunteer regiment to arrive in that State. A few days after its arrival, he was appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers, and ordered by telegraph to proceed immediately to San Francisco, where he received the command of the second expedition to the Philippines, which sailed from San Francisco June 15th, and arrived in Manila Bay, July 17th. His command, consisting of two regular and three volunteer regiments and two batteries of artillery, was immediately landed under the walls of Manila, and was almost constantly engaged in actions and skirmishes with the Spaniards, until August 13th, when, in conjunction with the navy, the land forces, under General Merritt, assaulted and captured the city of Manila. In this assault, General Greene's brigade led the advance. For his services at Manila he was made a Major-General of Volunteers, to date from August 13, 1898. In September he was ordered to return to the United States, and on his arrival was assigned to command a division in the Seventh Army Corps, then stationed in Georgia, and during the absence of General Lee he was temporarily assigned to the command of the corps. In November he was ordered to Havana, to make arrangements for the encampment of the Seventh Army Corps, and with a view to his being Governor of Havana, which position was offered to him by the President; but when the treaty of peace was definitely signed in December, and the war was actually ended, General Greene preferred to return to the pursuits of civil life. The appointment as Governor of Havana was declined, and he offered his resignation, which was accepted to take effect February 28, 1899. He again became engaged in the asphalt industry, and also devoted considerable attention to political matters.

At the request of Governor Roosevelt, he became chairman of the committee to examine the canal question in New York, and after an elaborate study, extending over the year 1899, this committee made a very complete report on the subject, which was submitted to the Legislature of 1900, and is acknowledged to be the standard authority on all questions of fact relating to the canals. In the summer of 1900, he was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia, and soon after was elected Chairman of the Republican County Committee, and in that capacity conducted the campaign for McKinley in New York City, resulting in a very largely increased Republican vote, as compared with the election of two years previous.

General Greene is a well-known writer on military subjects, being the author of the following books: The Russian Army and its Campaigns in Turkey (2 vols.), 1879; Army Life in Russia, 1881; The Mississippi (Campaigns of the Civil War) 1882; Life of Nathanael Greene (Major-General in the Army of the Revolution), 1893; and also of numerous magazine articles on military and other subjects, the latest of which was the "History of the United States Army," running in three numbers of Scribner's Magazine in 1901.

He was married, on February 25, 1879, to Belle Eugenie Chevallié, of Washington, D. C., and has had six children, of whom five survive, their names and dates of birth being given on a previous page 616.

Apponaug, Warwick. He married, December 10, 1878, Anna Susan, daughter of John G. and Mary Elizabeth (Baker) Bissell of Warwick, born September 24, 1852. Her great-grandfather, Silas Baker, married Patience Brown, the great-great-granddaughter of Rev. Chad Brown of Providence, and also of Roger Burlingame, whose son Thomas married Martha<sup>3</sup> Lippitt (Moses<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) (Austin's Geneal. Dict. R. I., p. 336). Mrs. Greene's grandmother, Susan (Tiffany) Baker, was a granddaughter of Thomas Tiffany and Waity<sup>6</sup> Arnold (Josiah<sup>5</sup>, William<sup>4</sup>, Israel<sup>3</sup>, Stephen<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>), whose lineage it is claimed is traced back to the twelfth century (see Somerby's Arnold Family). Waity Arnold's parents were William and Deliverance (Whipple) Arnold, daughter of John Whipple, Jr., and Rebekah Scott (widow). Albert Rowland Greene, attorney and counsellor-at-law, was, on the maternal side, a grandson of Rev. Rowland Greene, the noted Quaker preacher. He was a student at Brown University, 1865-66, and, later, entered Cornell University, where he was graduated in 1870. A year later he was graduated from the Michigan University Law School, and admitted to the Rhode Island bar in 1872. He enlisted in the 11th Regiment Rhode Island Volunteers in United States service, 1862-63, for nine months; was First Lieutenant, 78th Regiment, New York Volunteers, in United States service, from September, 1863; aide-de-camp to Brigadier-General George Sears Greene, United States Volunteers, Third Brigade, Second Division, Twelfth Army Corps, from September 25, 1863; and participated in the battles of Wauhatchie, Lookout Mountain, and Ringgold, Ga. He died January 28, 1901.

The following obituary from a Rhode Island journal shows the esteem in which Judge Greene was held, and the faithful service he rendered:

"The death of Judge Albert R. Greene, which occurred at his home in Coweset yesterday morning, after a brief illness of pneumonia, means a loss to that town of one of its most valued and highly respected men. He was beloved by all in the vicinity in which he resided, and he could count his friends by the score not only in Rhode Island, but throughout the New England States. He was a member of the distinguished family of Greene, being the nephew of the late Major-General George S. Greene and a cousin of Major-General F. V. Greene of New York City. Judge Greene served as President of the Warwick Town Council for three years; trial Justice for a number of years previous to the establishment of the district courts; coroner for many years; and also represented the town in the Lower House of the General Assembly several terms. He was at one time Judge of Probate Court of Warwick. He served as Moderator of the town from 1872 until its division into voting districts; and as Moderator of District No. 1 and of the financial town meeting till the time of his death. He was Town Solicitor and a member of the School Committee. He filled the office of Superintendent of Schools till 1896. He was an able politician, as evidenced by his continuance in office for nearly thirty years. Judge Greene was a member of the Rhode Island Bar Association, and was regarded as a lawyer of exceptional ability. It was in his own home, however, that he was best loved, and there he was indulgent and tender to a degree—the idolized husband and father."

Y., January 31, 1827. He lived in Chautauqua County, excepting the few years spent in Herkimer County, from 1838 to 1843. In early manhood he was a teacher, but learned surveying and engineering. He was first engaged on the Michigan Central Railroad; in 1856, on the enlargement of the Erie Canal, Medina, N. Y.; was Division Engineer on the Delaware and Hudson Railroad line, under General George Sears Greene (neither knowing of any relationship until the General interested himself in learning who was his assistant and traced the family connection). Mr. Greene was later employed on the Erie Railroad; was Chief Engineer, under appointment of the Governor of Michigan, of the Portage Lake Ship Canal, near Houghton, Mich., and was mining in that State from 1863 to 1865. His life has been passed in the construction of public works, either as engineer or contractor; and in many different States and Canada, in which he has achieved an enviable reputation both as a skilled engineer and as an able executive, especially in railroad construction.

"In 1884 Mr. Greene was associated with Mr. William J. McAlpine in solving the engineering problems and perfecting details of a proposed 'Arcade Railway,' designed to give relief to congestion in transportation in New York City—which was intended to run under Broadway. Now, eighteen years after, a rapid transit road is being built on the same general idea that those men perfected, but who, unfortunately, were a quarter of a century ahead of public opinion. While there are now some changes of detail, the principles, general plans and estimate of cost, were all worked out by them."

At the age of seventy-five Mr. Greene is still (1902) actively at work, organizing and building an electric railway system in the northern suburbs of Boston, Mass.

Joseph Norton Greene was married (1), October 25, 1852, at Trinity Church, Fredonia, N. Among them were President Leverett of Harvard University, and Hon. John Leverett, Governor of Massachusetts. Professor Warren Leverett of Shurtleff College, father of Mrs. Greene, was educated at Brown University, and gave his life to the work of education in the pioneer college at Upper Alton, Ill.  4500. FRANK WARREN, born April 22, 1870, married Ada B. Sloan.
 4501. WILLIAM WASHINGTON, born August 29, 1872, unmarried.
 4502. BENJAMIN, born Vacaville, Cal., May 4, 1877, died in infancy.

"Rev. Thomas Waterman Greene was born in Stamford, Conn., Feb. 10, 1837, of patriotic and God-fearing ancestry, inheriting many noble traits of character which, by rigid self-discipline under the direction of Divine grace, developed a noble and useful man.

"In 1838 his father removed to Woodford County, Ill., settling on a farm near Metamora, and his youth was spent in severe physical toil. In 1854, having decided to prepare for the ministry, he entered the Preparatory Dep't of Shurtleff College and graduated with second honors in the class of 1860. He immediately entered the Theological Seminary at Rochester, N. Y., graduating in 1863. These years of education were full of struggle and self-denial, desperate conflict and victory.

"His first pastorate was at Winchester, Ill., where he was ordained, April, 1864. His second pastorate was in Litchfield, 1867-68, but he was compelled by ill-health to abandon his work, and he removed to Lawrence, Kan., to engage in journalism. In 1872, his health having improved, he became pastor at Junction City, Kan.; then at Fort Scott, Kan.; and Denver, Colo. In 1875 he was elected President of California College at Vacaville, since removed to Oakland, Cal. Two years of labor for this college overtaxed his strength, and he passed to his reward, August 22, 1877, at the early age of forty years, his death occurring suddenly at Camptonville, Cal., a quiet village among the Sierras, where, in the home of dear relatives, he had been enjoying a few weeks' rest. He sleeps in one of California's beautiful cemeteries, far from the home of his early life, far from the classic walls of old Shurtleff, where he and his early friend, Rev. Francis M. Ellis, D.D., struggled together against fearful odds to secure the necessary equipment for effectual ministerial service in the Kingdom of Christ."—From Semi-Centennial History of the Alpha Zeta Society of Shurtleff College, by William W. Greene, published 1898.

Returning to the farm, he was caught in the era of wild speculation in 1873 and financially ruined. From 1875 to 1883 he was editorial correspondent for the Kansas City Journal. He was elected to the State Senate in 1880 and served until 1883, when he resigned to become Inspector of the General Land Office at Washington. In 1885 he resigned this position and formed a partnership with Lieutenant-Governor Riddle in the newspaper and publishing business at Minneapolis, Kan. In 1886 he bought the Cedar Vale Star, and a year later was elected Railroad Commissioner of Kansas, a position which he held for six years. In 1893 he retired to his farm at Lecompton, Kan., devoting his time to newspaper and magazine writing. In 1897 he was reinstated as Inspector of the General Land Office at Washington, a position he held until January 1, 1901, when he was appointed Chief of the Division of Forestry of the Interior Department, from which he was again promoted, August 1, 1901, to be Special Inspector for the Secretary of the Interior, the position he now holds (1902).

"Susannah Greene, named for her grandmother, Susannah (Harris) Greene, wife of Dr. Rowland Greene of Rhode Island, was a remarkably intelligent child, giving promise of brilliancy up to the time when she was taken ill with scarlet fever on the way up the Missouri River, the family being en route from Illinois to Kansas. For weeks she hovered between life and death, amid the trying conditions of rigid frontier life in Kansas. At length careful nursing restored her to physical health, but her reason was impaired and she lived for twenty years under a mental cloud. She died in Kansas, February 18, 1873, and is buried in the cemetery at Lecompton. She was beloved by the entire community, and was able to converse with some intelligence on many subjects. 3986. MARY ANNE ° GREENE (John W. A.<sup>8</sup>, Simon H.<sup>7</sup>, Job <sup>6</sup>, Christopher <sup>5</sup>, Philip <sup>4</sup>, Job <sup>3</sup>, John <sup>2</sup>, John <sup>1</sup>) was born in the village of Phenix, Warwick, R. I., June 14, 1857. "Miss Greene was graduated from the Boston University Law School, June, 1888, with the degree of Bachelor of Laws—magna cum laude,—standing second in rank in a class of twenty-eight men. She was the third woman to be graduated from the School, and the second to be admitted to the Massachusetts bar. She was admitted to practise before all the courts of the State as a member of the bar of Suffolk County, at Boston, September 28, 1888. After practising two years in Boston, she returned to her native State, and since 1890 has resided in Providence. She does not plead in court, but has an office practice, making a specialty of conveyancing and the care and settlement of estates.

"She has written numerous articles for papers and magazines upon legal topics, and for legal reviews. She has published a pamphlet upon The Legal Status of Women in Rhode Island, 1900, and assisted in the preparation of the fifth edition of The Law of the Domestic Relations, by James Schouler, LL.D., the standard text-book on that branch of the law, examining and collating all the American court decisions on the subject from 1888 to 1895. She is now engaged in the preparation of a manual of business and domestic law for women's clubs, colleges, and seminaries.

"Miss Greene was the first American woman invited to address the World's Congress of Jurisprudence and Law Reform at Chicago, in 1893, an honor extended but to two American and two foreign women lawyers, appearing upon the same programme with eminent American and European male jurists, among whom were David Dudley Field, Thomas J. Semmes, Hon. Sir Richard Webster of England, Prof. M. Torres Campos of Spain, etc. Miss Greene's subject was 'Married Women's Property Acts in the United States, and Needed Reforms Therein.'

"But her specialty is the delivery of lectures upon practical business and domestic law before women's clubs and girls' schools. She is the only lawyer who does make this a specialty. She has been lecturer on Business Law for Women for the past twelve years (since 1889) at Lasell Seminary, Auburndale, Mass.

"Miss Greene has also held office in Rhode Island, following the family example. In 1895 she was commissioned by the Governor of Rhode Island as Chairman of the Rhode Island Committee on a Colonial Exhibit at the Cotton States and International Exposition at Atlanta, Ga., with power to choose two associates. Later, an act of the General Assembly appropriated $1000 for the purpose of this exhibit, to be used by this committee. This is said to be the first time in history that a legislature ever placed the disposal of State funds in the hands of a committee composed solely of women. The exhibit was made in the Colonial Hall of the Women's Building at Atlanta, and included relics of Gen. Nathanael, and Col. Christopher Greene, Stephen Hopkins, William Ellery, and other eminent Rhode Islanders.

"Miss Greene was from 1895 to 1897 State Regent for Rhode Island of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, organizing four chapters, among them the General Nathanael Greene Chapter of East Greenwich, and the Phebe Greene Ward Chapter of Westerly. In 1897, on retiring from active office, she was elected by the Continental Congress of the National Society an Honorary State Regent for life, in nomination of the Rhode Island delegates, in recognition of her services as a member of the Committee to revise the Constitution of the National Society.

"She has been, since 1895, President of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of Rhode Island, and since 1898 a vice-president of the general society, known as the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, whose constituency includes the New England and Middle States and District of Columbia. Miss Greene also acts as legal adviser for this latter corporation."

Miss Greene is the first and only lawyer, man or woman, in this branch of the family, since her illustrious ancestor, Chief Justice Philip Greene, and his son, Judge William Greenc; and she most creditably sustains the honor of the Greene name.

Mrs. Patch is of English ancestry on the maternal side, a lineal descendant of Richard Seymour, who came to America in 1639. His great-great-grandson, William Seymour, a lieutenant in the Revolutionary army, married Lydia St. John, and their son Belden was father of Harry Belden Seymour, grandfather of Mrs. Patch. Her mother, Mary E. Seymour, was daughter of Mary Lazell Ward, the daughter of Colonel Trowbridge Ward, and granddaughter of William Ward, whose wife, Sarah Trowbridge, was a descendant of the wife of Cotton Mather. The father of William Ward was Major Daniel, an officer of the Revolution, and lineal descendant of William Ward of Yorkshire, England, who came to America in 1639 and located first in Sudbury, Mass., removing thence to Marlboro, from which town he was Representative in 1666.

Mr. Greene was married at Pittsfield, Mass., June 27, 1901, by Right Rev. F. D. Huntington, Bishop of Central New York, assisted by the Rev. Harold Arrowsmith, to Anna Bartow, daughter of John Pelatiah Perit and Anna B. (Noyes) Lathrop. She is the great-granddaughter of Thomas and Lydia (Hubbard) Lathrop, and lineal descendant of Rev. John Lothrop (or Lathrop, as now written) of Yorkshire, England, who came to America and settled at Barnstable, Mass., to whom was applied the term, "minister," as early as 1641, before it was in general use. History tells us that Lothrop's arrival from England was regarded by Governor Winthrop as an event of importance, and he made public mention of him as "a modest, able, and fearless preacher."

Rev. John, son of Thomas Lowthrop of Ellen, Yorkshire, and grandson of John Lowthrop, of a parish in East Riding of York, England, was the second minister of the Independent Church in England, succeeding Rev. Henry Jacob, who came over to Virginia in 1624 and soon died. After Archbishop Laud's persecutions in England, Rev. John Lothrop came over to America and first settled at Scituate, Mass., "with about thirty of his flock," but later removed to Barnstable. (See Lathrop Family, by Rev. E. B. Huntington; Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic, note, p. 441; Swift's History of Barnstable, Mass.)

Resigned from the navy, and was honorably discharged in September, 1898, when he resumed his position in civil life and as general sales manager and chairman of the Local Company's Committee of the General Electric Company.

He was reappointed Lieutenant Commander and Chief of Staff of the Captain commanding the Naval Reserve of the State of New York, and was also appointed on the staff of Governor Theodore Roosevelt, and served during his entire term as Governor.

Was a prominent member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; served on important committees and contributed many papers to the Institute proceedings; and also technical papers on electrical subjects, principally on the various uses of electricity on board ship.

He was married, on June 26, 1896, to Cornelia Chandler, daughter of the late Rear Admiral Ralph Chandler, U. S. N., at Batavia, N. Y. He and his wife were drowned at Schenectady, N. Y., while skating on the Mohawk River on the evening of January 8, 1900. The funeral services were held at St. George's Church, Schenectady, and the burial was at Bristol, R. I. They left no children.

General orders from headquarters of the New York Naval Militia were issued in connection with the death of Lieutenant Greene. After reviewing his career with the highest appreciation of his valuable services, the following order was given: "The armories and vessels of the Naval Militia will display their ensigns at half-mast until after the funeral. Officers will wear the usual badge of mourning. A detail will be designated from this command to attend the funeral."

Y., he was appointed cadet at the United States Military Academy at West Point, and was graduated, June 13, 1878 (see below). Lieutenant Greene was married at the New Old South Church, Boston, Mass., January 9, 1890, to Lizzie Taft, only child of Henry Harrington and Lizzie Lincoln (Taft) Adams, born in Chicago, Ill., May 5, 1868. Mrs. Greene belongs to the illustrious Adams family of Massachusetts, being descended from the same emigrant ancestor as John and Quincy Adams, second and sixth Presidents of the United States, and of the great Revolutionary agitator, Samuel Adams. Her grandfather, Otis Adams (who was born at Grafton, Mass., February 13, 1798, and married, in 1822, Sylvia King) was a man of considerable local prominence. He was son of Nathaniel and Mary (Harrington) Adams. Nathaniel was a member of Captain Warren's company at Bennington, and, later, of Captain Ephraim Lyon's company, which joined General Ward's regiment, June 20, 1778. His father, Andrew B. Adams (born at Ipswich, Mass., 1715, settled in Grafton, 1740), was not in Revolutionary service, but during the French and Indian war, 1757, was in an alarm company at Grafton. Andrew B. was son of Samuel, grandson of Nathaniel, and great-grandson of William, who was son of the emigrant ancestor, Henry Adams, who came from Devonshire, England, 1621, and settled "north of Plymouth Colony." Captain and Mrs. Greene now (1902) reside in Chicago, Ill.

CHILDREN:

4774. DOUGLASS TAFT, born Fort Logan, Col., April 24, 1891.

4775. JOSEPH NATHANIEL, born February 1, 1893.

Lewis Douglass<sup>9</sup> Greene was appointed Second Lieutenant, 7th United States Infantry, June 14, 1878; served with his regiment, in Minnesota, Colorado, Montana, and Wyoming, until 1887; was promoted First Lieutenant December 16, 1888; was aide-de-camp to General George Crook, October 8, 1887, to June 20, 1889, and accompanied him to Chicago, where he was on duty for one year, but was relieved, at his own request, to accept the appointment of Quartermaster of 7th Infantry, June 13, 1889. Lieutenant Greene was on duty at Fort Logan, Col., and Hot Springs, Ark., until August 24, 1898. He was retired with rank of Captain, April 26, 1898, on account of disability in line of duty.

War service: with regiment in campaign against White River Utes, Northern Colorado, 1879-80, and against Sioux, winter of 1890-91; Spanish-American war, Quartermaster at Hot Springs, Ark., until August 24, after protocol was signed; with General Brook's command (unofficially) in Porto Rico, October and November, 1898; and present at the evacuation of San Juan by the Spaniards.

"JOHNSTON, July the 9th 1780

"Offers made by Thomas Mann, if you will give me fifty Silver Dollars as a bounty and forty Shilling wages per month in Like money and pay my wages in Corn at 3/ pr bushel—I will give Solomon Thornton Forty bushels of Said Corn if he will do the work on my farm that I want Done and I will List, provided also that I have my Choice either to Recv the Remainder of my wages in Corn or in money as I may Chuse when my time is out, I must also have a new hat, 1 pair of new Calves Skin Shoes, 1 new thick Jacket 1 Linnen shirt and Two flannel Ditto, the work that I must have Done 3 acres of Corn and Some petatoes hoed 2 1-2 acres of rye and wheat Cut and thrashed the Straw Secured about four Tuns of hay Cut well made and Stacked half acre of flax puled Seed got off Cleaned and flax ratted and well Secured—petatoes dug and Taken Care of Corn harvest and secured wood cut Drawed to the Dore Milling Done at all times when wanted fences kept up and Creaters kept out. [At the bottom of the frayed and yellow page, and in a different handwriting, undoubtedly Fenner's, is the following endorsement—a happy mixture of sarcasm and conciliation:]

“Mr. Mann in Regard to keeping your wife good Natured it is Impossible but if you will go a Soldir and at this time take the affirmation oaths it is supposed the town will fulfill your Last will and testament.”

NOTE.—Data received December, 1902, show that William Wotkyns Seymour, M.D., of Troy, N. Y., married, in 1883, Frances, daughter of Lloyd and Annie (Robinson) Minturn, granddaughter of Jonas and Esther (Robinson) Minturn, and great-granddaughter of William and Penelope (Greene) Minturn (No. 1124). [The last seven children (p. 377) assigned to Penelope's son, Benjamin Minturn (including Lloyd mentioned above) should have been recorded as children of Jonas Minturn, and the last two children of Jonas transferred to his brother Benjamin.] Dr. William Wotkyns Seymour was son of Dr. William Pierce and Helen Hughes (Wotkyns) Seymore, and belonged to the Watkins family who settled early at Dorchester, Mass., but removed to Pomfret, Conn., and thence to Walpole, N. H. Alfred Wotkyns, grandfather of Dr. Seymour, changed the spelling of the name for reasons unknown.

TENTH GENERATION.

He married Sallie Ellery Sargent, daughter of Ivers I. Austin of Newport, R. I. Mr. Greene spends much of his time abroad and has always been deeply interested in the family history, having made considerable personal research. In 1881, he presented the large parchment chart of "The House of Greene" to the Boston Athenæum Library, which contained a marginal note of reference to the New Hampshire branch of the family (see No. 582).

"Married at Newport, R. I., March 17, 1885, by Rev. Augustus Woodbury, assisted by Rev. Rufus Ellis, D.D., William Batchelder Greene to Sallie Ellery Sargent, daughter of Ivers I. Austin of Newport."

He served in the Confederate army during the Civil War in the Quartermaster's Department. He died at his father's residence, "Orange Grove," Mississippi City, Miss. He was unmarried. "His nature was brave and joyous and he enlivened many a weary march during the war with song and story. In the home circle he was full of sunshine, his unvarying characteristic being the pleasure of giving pleasure."

She married, at her father's home, "Orange Grove," Mississippi

City, General Joseph Robert Davis, a nephew of Hon. Jefferson Davis, ex-President Confederate States of America, and resided at Biloxi, Miss. Mrs. Davis distinctly recalls the occasion when, in her early childhood, her great-uncle, Colonel Peter Hazeltine Greene, and also his son, Admiral Joseph Foster Greene, visited at her father's home. Since the death of General Davis, his widow has resided with her daughters at New Orleans, La. She is the historian of the "Confederated Memorial Association." On the maternal side, she has a distinguished ancestry. Her grandfather, John Cary, came from Ireland with his cousin, Robert Cary. She married in New Orleans, January 18, 1869, William Burton Hayward, a well-known citizen and cotton-press owner. "She was a beautiful, gracious woman of refinement, who was admired by all who knew her, but seemed wholly unconscious of her endowments. A loving, dutiful daughter, devoted wife, mother, and sister; an angel of patience and peace to her children. She was eminently religious, just, and discriminating in judgment, tenderly indulgent to the failings of others, and abounding in charitable acts unknown to all but the recipients, to whom her soft words made her gifts doubly acceptable." Seal Upon Richard Greene's Letter, 1651

THE FAMILY ARMS.

IN Halstead's Genealogy of the House of Greene, elsewhere referred to and described in this volume, it is stated that "the Arms of the House of Greene" were "Azure, Three bucks trippant Or," and in the illustration reproduced, a buck's head is shown as a crest, surmounting a knight's helmet. The seal of Sir Henry Grene, the King's Chief Justice (also reproduced from Halstead), shows the device and colors as described, but without the crest.

In the English magazine, Somerset and Dorset Notes and Queries (volume v., p. 331, being the number for September, 1897), is printed a letter belonging to Mr. Troyte-Chafyn-Grove, written by Richard Greene of Gillingham, and dated 23d March, 1651, which was sealed with his armorial device (see Appendix II). The seal was, in 1901, in excellent condition of preservation, and the owner permitted a photograph to be taken of it in England, which is here reproduced. It is magnified three diameters for the sake of clearness and distinctness. This seal shows the three bucks trippant on the shield, and the buck's head crest, but the colors are not indicated by lines, or dots, used in heraldry. This Richard Greene was probably a nephew of John Greene, surgeon, the American ancestor, and a cousin of John Greene, Deputy Governor of Rhode Island, 1690-1700.

John Greene, Deputy Governor (who held also a number of other offices), had a silver seal, now in possession of Henry L. Greene of Riverpoint, Rhode Island, a photograph of which is reproduced of its actual size. This shows the shield with the three bucks trippant, but without a crest, and has near the top of the shield a crescent, the heraldic notation of a difference often used by the younger sons of a family. The colors are not indicated by lines or dots used in heraldry to indicate azure and or. John Greene used this seal upon many official documents and letters. One of his signatures and the seal are reproduced from a photograph taken in the town clerk's office at Apponaug, Warwick, Rhode Island, in August, 1901, of part of the will of Malachi Rhodes, which he signed as Assistant and member of the Council. The seal is so dark and black that it does not show the devices in a photograph, and consequently a plaster cast was taken of the wax seal and a reproduction of the cast is given. Though imperfect, it is easily identified as being made by Deputy Governor John Greene's seal. It is hardly to be supposed that he would have so used this armorial device officially, unless he was entitled to do so, and the fact that it is substantially the same as that used on the letter of Richard Greene of Gillingham in 1651, almost if not quite, contemporaneously, is notable, as well as its close resemblance to the seal of Sir Henry Grene, the King's Chief Justice.

Mrs. Katharine Celia Greene Welling of New York has in her possession a silver tankard, made about 1750, which was given by Thomas Greene to his niece, Martha Greene see No. 558. A reproduction from a photograph is given, and shows the azure shield with the three bucks trippant and buck's head crest.

Benjamin Greene of Boston, born 11th January, 1712, died 10th April, 1776, used a book-plate, a reproduction of which is given. It has the date of 1757 upon it, and was engraved by Nathaniel Hurd of Boston. It shows the three bucks trippant upon a field of azure, and a buck's head crest, or. A scroll, or place for a motto, also appears on this book-plate, the first indication of a motto that has appeared in this collection. Mottoes were originally the war-cry and were not used on coats of arms in early days, though of late years they have been specified in confirmations of grants of arms by the Ulster King of Arms. Those used as shown in the illustrations were doubtless selected and adopted by the users.

General Nathanael Greene of the Revolution, born 1742, died 1786, used the same three bucks trippant, with buck's head crest, and a motto, "Disce Scire te Ipsum." He used vert, or green, for the color of the shield instead of azure, or blue, as is shown by the diagonal lines drawn from dexter chief to the sinister base.

David Greene of Boston, born 1749, died 1812, used a book-plate, a reproduction of which is given, which shows the three bucks trippant, or, upon a field azure, with a crest, a buck's head, or. It was engraved by Paul Revere of Boston. It has a motto, "Nec Timeo Nec Sperno."

Gardiner Greene of Boston, born 1750, died 1832, used a seal, and a reproduction of a photograph from an impression of it is given. The azure color of the shield is indicated by the horizontal lines, but the or of the three bucks trippant and the buck's head crest is not indicated by dots. It has ornaments of flowers on each side of the shield, which are not significant.

The Rev. John Singleton Copley Greene of Boston, born 1810, died 1872, used a book-plate, a reproduction of which, by photograph, is given. This has the field azure, three bucks trippant, or, with a crest, a buck's head, or, the colors being clearly indicated by the usual heraldic lines and dots. It has also the motto, "Carpe Diem." He had also a silver mug, or tankard, with the arms engraved upon it, as shown in the illustration. The blue field is clearly indicated by the horizontal lines, but the color of the bucks trippant and the buck's head crest, is not defined. In this the buck's head crest is couped, while in the book-plate it is erased. He also used a seal with crest of a buck's head erased, without a motto, and with the three bucks trippant.

The book-plate used by my father, General George Sears Greene, born 1801, died 1899, is also shown with the blue field and gold bucks trippant clearly indicated, with a gold buck's head crest erased, and with a motto, "Virtus Semper Viridis." This motto is used also on a book-plate of Thomas Greene, Esq., Poulton Hall, County Chester, England, who has a similar, but not exactly the same arms. General Greene also used a seal ring having the same devices, except the helmet, and with the same motto.

These illustrations show the continual use by the members of the family here in America of the same armorial devices as were used by the Greenses of Gillingham, and they are the same as those of the Greenses that were lords of Drayton and of Greene's Norton.

Though no grants or confirmation of grants of arms to the Greenses of Gillingham have been found in the Heralds' College, the laws of England against the assumption or use of armorial devices by those not entitled to bear them, were too severe in their penalties and too rigidly enforced at that time, to permit any doubt that the Greenses of Gillingham used the arms that they did with the undoubted right to bear them. Their descendants inherited the same right, and the illustrations show how it has been used.

The crest couped or erased is not essential difference, but no records have been found showing why the buck's head crest is erased on the book-plates of General George Sears Greene and of the Rev. John Singleton Copley Greene, while it is couped in all others; nor any explanation of vert or green color on the shield of General Nathanael Greene's arms, which, my father said, was a mistake.

We have been indebted for assistance in making this collection to Messrs. Frederic Amory, David Greene Haskins, Jr., Charles S. Greene, Gardiner Greene, Henry Copley Greene, W. Maxwell Greene, and R. W. G. Welling.

LATEST RESEARCH IN ENGLAND.

IN 1902 Gen. F. V. Greene engaged Mr. Francis B. Bickley of the British Museum to make further researches in England in regard to the family, and particularly for members antedating Robert Greene of Bowridge Hill, 1543-1558.

He made thorough search of records in the British Museum, but reports them as unproductive.

Other exhaustive searches of the Court Rolls of the Manor of Gillingham, from 1530 to 1603, compel him to doubt that Peter Greene of Bowridge Hill, who died 1583, was the son of Robert Greene, named in Subsidy Rolls, 1543, 1547, 1558.

It is found, however, that Robert Greene of Gillingham was on record nine years prior to this assessment, when he was resident in the tithing of Westover (a part of Gillingham Manor), in 1534.

ENGLISH WILLS.

Among the MSS. of the late Gen. George S. Greene were found many English wills and abstracts obtained through Mr. H. G. Somerby and other sources, a few of which only can be given within the scope of this work.

APPENDIX II.
NOTES AND CORRESPONDENCE.

APPENDIX II.

The following letter—an exact copy from Somerset and Dorset Notes and Queries, vol. v., p. 331—refers to the Selwood Forest which formerly covered a large part of the parish of Gillingham. In the time of Charles I. parts of this forest were leased, but in the fifth year of his reign, when the wood was “de-afforested,” portions were assigned to the gentlemen and commoners who lived on its borders. (See The Family of Greene in England and America, pp. 24-26.)

As the endorsement of the letter (bearing date 1651) shows, about eighty acres of this forest land were held for the use of the poor of one of the hamlets of this parish.

It is interesting to note in this connection that at a much earlier date (1599) Richard Greene, grandfather of John Greene, surgeon, was one of the first feoffees of these Gillingham Charities, a proof of his social rank and substance. An order was made at Gillingham, September 28, 1599, by Sir George Trenchard and others, concerning lands and tenements within the manor of Gillingham, that “the customary lands ordered by a decree in Chancery Nov. 4. 1598 . . . to be restored to charitable uses, shall be forever secured by conveyances from time to time, to twelve of the customary tenants, to hold by copy of the Court Roll, to be called feoffees of Gillingham lands appointed for charitable purposes.” “Richard Greene, Gentleman,” was one of the first mentioned of these twelve feoffees (Petty Bag Charity Decrees, Inquisition &c.).

LETTER OF RICHARD GREENE OF GILLINGHAM, CO. DORSET, ENGLAND.

(PROBABLY SON OF PETER, THE BROTHER OF JOHN GREENE, SURGEON.)

MERE 23 Martij 1651.

There is nowe in agiticon a business concerning o<sup>r</sup> pish wherein yo<sup>u</sup> are concerned the state whereof I thought fitt to represent unto yo<sup>u</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> is thus. Vpon the disafforestation of the Forrest of Gillingham there was an allowance of 100 acres layd out for the Freehold<sup>e</sup> and Comon of the Manor of Mere, w<sup>ch</sup> was enjoyed wth the rest of the Coñons ever sithince that tyme, w<sup>ch</sup> was about 27 yeres past. In the tyme of the troubles some of the enclosures of the Forrest were throwne open and vpon the late reenclosure, the Inh<sup>l</sup>itants of the pish laboured to have some further allowance and intrusted me in the busines whoe travelled therein, & vpon search found in the Articles annexed to the Comision for disafforestation a clause, that care should be taken for the poore of Mere (who formerly had a greate pt of their maineten<sup>ce</sup> out of the Forrest) in regard that vpon the improvent & enclosure they were wholely cast vpon the pish, and vpon treatye wth the owners of the Forrest and in fine, I concluded with them for 80 acres in satisfac<sup>o</sup>n of that clause in the Articles and soe agreed to accept of those 80 acres (to be imployed for the comfort and reliefe of the Poore) & the 100 acres (formerly layd out for comon) in lieu & full satisfac̄on for all claymes in the Forrest as well for Comm<sup>rs</sup> as for Poore: this the pishoners of all sorts well approued & desired me to gett settled w<sup>ch</sup> I putt in order; but when the tyme of setlem<sup>t</sup> came, some few of the pish (w<sup>ch</sup> made greate vse of the Comons) would not agree to the Enclosure vnless the 80 acres (gotten vpon the interest of the Poore) might be vsed in com̄on as well as the 100 acres allowed to the Comon<sup>rs</sup> although it was expressly allowed to the pish for the better support of the poore, and agreed to be helt (?) inclosed & made vse of for that purpose. And by meanes of this vnworthy opposicon of some vnworthy psons against their owne expresse consents and Agreem<sup>ts</sup> some p<sup>r</sup>indice is likely to befall the pish, if the busines be not wholely lost.

Nowe for that the matter is of greate consideric̄on the land being of estimaçon worth 50<sup>l</sup> p. an. to be settled vpon the pish for ever, by the good employmt whereof the growth of pou'ty (so much threatned) wilbe prevented, and the Poore so well pvided for, that the burthen will be much eased, and the poore people in farre better condiçon, therefore I resolue to ioyne wth many more of the more substantiall pt, and endeauo<sup>r</sup> to settle this (soe beneficiall a busines) vpon the pish for the releife of the poore, though it cost some charge w<sup>ch</sup> I suppose shall not be much and should be glad if y<sup>r</sup> selfe for y<sup>r</sup> interrest would ioyne wth vs, for whome I shalbe careful as for my selfe: the obieçons that are made are 2.

1. They say it ought to lye in Com̄on: to w<sup>ch</sup> there is an answare before; and in truth, increase of Comons doe increase, not lessen poore, in my observaçon.

2. They say, if it be held inclosed, then Zeales that haue noe Com̄ons, will haue a benefitt by lessening of the charge of the poore. this is answered thus, that this being allowed for the better support of the poore of the pish, it is greate reason that all those who did beare pt of the charge should pticipate of the releife.

Sr, my cosen Chafins desires ruñing along wth my own inclynaçons hath given you the trouble of this Informaçon. My pticular interest lyes all along wth those opposers but the right lying otherwise, must make me leave them; I wish yo<sup>r</sup> would lend y<sup>r</sup> assistance, the busines much deserves it in y<sup>r</sup> judgem<sup>t</sup> of

March 25 1792.

Your father, grandfather and great grandfather were all named Simon Ray 1st 2<sup>d</sup> & 3<sup>d</sup>.

The 2<sup>d</sup> came from England with his father to Plymouth Æ. about 16. They were a very respectable family. The 2<sup>d</sup> Simon's mother died when he was about 10 years old and his father married a widow George with 10 or 11 children which offended and he and 7 others went to Block Island and purchased it. Had but one cow and used to catch horse mackerel and lived on hasty pudding and milk, and they cleared the land. A son of the George family came to Block Island and the 2<sup>d</sup> Simon Ray told him if he would clear half the purchase he would give it to him, which was accepted and that was the land now owned by the Mitchells and Paines. Simon 2<sup>d</sup> married a Thomas from Marshfield of a very good family & brought her to Block Island—had three daughters; Mary the eldest married an Englishman and went to England, and was the first American Lady to be presented to the King and to kiss his hand. The 2<sup>d</sup> was Sciba [Sybil, she married a Sands of Long Island. The 3<sup>d</sup> Dorothy married a Clapp at Rye. . . . The only son Simon 3<sup>d</sup> went to New London and married a Manerin [Mainwaring] Their sons Simon & Gideon were seafaring men of excellent character; and Nathaniel a tiller of the land married a woman that was afterwards the mother of Gideon Mumford [Anne (Wilson) Ray].

Simon Ray 3<sup>d</sup> was a widower for 21 years—buried all his sons and his daughter lived so far away he came to Warwick, and married my mother [Deborah Greene, p. 100], a maiden Lady 37 years old, sister to Daniel and Philip Greene and daughter of Job and Phebe Greene and had we four lovely sisters. . . .

“KANSAS LETTER.”

FROM A GRANDSON OF DR. ROWLAND GREENE, QUAKER PREACHER.

GEN. GEO. S. GREENE.

DEAR SIR:—

My father, Elisha Harris Greene, was born in Scituate, R. I. June 29th, 1800. He acquired the rudiments of an education in a Friends boarding school called Nine Brothers Boarding School.

For a time he engaged in mercantile pursuits in Albany, N. Y., but farming was his principal occupation and he followed it in R. I., Connecticut, Illinois and Kansas.

He emigrated to Illinois in 1837, when Chicago was a hamlet two years old on the marshy shore of an almost unknown Lake. The route was over the Alleghenies by means of a stationary engine and inclined plane and thence by canal and steamboat, down the Allegheny and Ohio rivers to Cairo and up the Mississippi and Illinois to Meredosia. Here he landed, with his wife and three children under 5 years of age.

It was the season of floods and the Illinois was overflowing its banks. Being advised to return to New England, father was half inclined to do so, but mother had the stronger will and they got a team and went inland 40 miles to Jacksonville. Soon after this, however, they returned to the river and went up to Pekin and again went inland. This time they stopped at New Castle, where they spent their first winter amid many discouragements, owing to sickness and a temporary shelter.

In the spring they removed six miles to a New England colony called Mt. Hope, in McLean County, where they made their home until 1850. In March of that year, father sold out and moved to Metamora, Woodford County, where he bought a tract of 240 acres and opened a new farm.

In 1856 he became enamoured of Wisconsin and made a visit to Ripon and liked the country so well that he took options on several tracts of land with a view of moving there. When he came back and reported the snow two feet deep on the level, mother vetoed that project.

About this time Lincoln (with whom father was well acquainted), as also Owen Lovejoy, and others, made speeches in our neighborhood and urged the necessity for those who wanted to arrest the aggressions of the slave power, to go to Kansas. These speeches had a great influence with our people and it was decided to remove once more. Accordingly, on the 10th of April, 1857, we took steamer at Peoria for St. Louis and so on to Kansas. We arrived at Wyandot in two weeks and prepared to rough it in the wilderness. We got a yoke of oxen from a purse-proud old slave holder and a wagon from an Indian woman named Splitlog, and piling our plunder aboard we rolled out for the interior. After a tedious journey of 60 miles we came to the public lands and took up a section and settled.

This was "Valley Farm" Osage County. It was 55 miles west by south from Kansas City and about half that distance from Lawrence and Topeka.

Here we lived until 1870.

Father and mother worked very hard and lived frugal, self-sacrificing lives. Here they reared a home for their children for whose sake they had left native land and kindred. A home they cherished through drouth, and famine and locust scourge and defended through the alarms of a terrible civil war on one side and a merciless and savage foe on the other. No one who has not experienced similar perils can understand their trials. It would sound stranger than a romance to hear the simple facts of those early and memorable times. How prairie fires consumed the fields; savages took the last bit of provisions out of the house at the muzzle of their guns; grasshoppers darkened the air and devoured crops, grass and foliage of the trees; and left fields, prairies and forests as bare as in midwinter.

Although of Quaker origin, father was not averse to a bit of a "scrimmage" if only the provocation was sufficient. I remember once when the guerillas were reported to be coming our way and messengers were sent flying about the settlement to warn the people, that father said they were almost sure to get out of ammunition and if the rascals got up to the block house it would be a good idea to give them a taste of cold steel. So he cut up a lot of scythes—all he could find in the neighborhood—and made swords out of them. They were not very pretty, but were savage enough to suit even John Brown.

All this time father was active in church work and traveled a great deal in the frontier settlements distributing tracts, organizing Sunday Schools and talking to the people on Sunday.

Mother died in 1869 and the following year we disposed of the farm and moved 17 miles, to Lecompton. Father had the misfortune to lose one of his eyes about this time and the other was injured as well.

In 1879 he became wholly blind, but continued cheerful, however, and got all over town by the aid of his cane. He was a welcome visitor everywhere and his childishness was excused by all out of regard for the love they bore him.

On the 26th of June, 1884, he died and one day before the 84th anniversary of his birth, he was buried. The funeral was the largest ever seen in that part of the County and the people literally buried his coffin in flowers.

He had a sunny temperament and was the kindest man I ever knew.

Very truly,

Your cousin

OFFICIAL MILITARY RECORD OF LIEUT. JOB<sup>s</sup> GREENE (PP. 182-183).

STATE OF RHODE ISLAND,
Secretary of State's Office,
PROVIDENCE.

November 25, 1895.

I hereby certify that it appears of record in this office that Job Greene was chosen by the General Assembly in November 1776 as second lieutenant in Capt. Malachi Hammett's Company from Coventry. December 1776 he was chosen by the General Assembly as second lieutenant in the same man's company in Col. Stanton's Regt.

I further find that he served as second lieutenant from December 1776 to March 1, 1778 in above regiment. In Sept 1779 he was chosen 2nd Lieut. in the Alarm Co. from the town of Coventry.

Attest:

J. FRED PARKER,
Deputy Secretary of State.

Seal of State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations 1636.

A true copy:

L. D. GREENE,
Capt. U. S. A.

In reply to letter of inquiry as to which Job Greene was referred to—father or son—Deputy-Secretary Parker replied: "The certificate I sent was for Job Greene, Sr. We do not find anything to speak of in regard to Job Greene, Jr."

NOTES OF GENERAL GEORGE S. GREENE.

(From Warwick Records.)

Residence of John Greene, Surgeon.

May 2, 1653: "Mr. John Greene Senior granted to remove his fence between the Bridge against his door on the other side of the dirty place, and 3 pole square upon the Knop [knob] for a court yard joyning thereto."

August 27, 1668. Extract Clasp'd book, p. 22: "Mrs. Phillip Greene, widow of John Greene to son in Law John Greene [that is stepson] my dwelling house and lot near the mill—the commonage &c."

By the above it will be seen 1st. that John Greene's house was near the Bridge (which must be the bridge over the brook running to the Tide Mill). 2d. That by Mrs. Phillip Greene's deed the house was near the mill.

John<sup>1</sup> surgeon granted his houses to his son Peter<sup>2</sup> who by will gave his wife a life estate in "part of his house given him by his father," of which he also gave the fee to Peter<sup>3</sup> [son of Deputy-Governor John] with entail to said Peter<sup>3</sup>'s heirs. Thus it seems that Peter<sup>3</sup> had a clear title to the homestead of his said father; that it was "near the Bridge" and "near the Mill," and that the property was entailed, which entail was a good title at that time, as it is now, to one unborn generation. . . . Thus the homestead of John, surgeon, was owned and occupied by his descendants for five generations of his name and lineage.

As to tradition that this property was owned by Mr. Cole on which Job<sup>3</sup> Greene & his descendants lived up to date of Mr. Cole's purchase, we find the following: Records of Warwick, May 7, 1649: "That it is agreed [that those appointed] for the laying out of lots are to view y<sup>t</sup> poyn't of upland at Akopastuxet Cove & if in case they see it convenient in their Judgment to lay it out to John Greene y<sup>e</sup> younger & this is a town contribution." [This is evidently the lot on which Job Greene's house stood.]

TATTERSHALL NOTES.

Early connections between Greene, Tattershall, and Howard families, prior to the marriage of John Greene, surgeon, of Salisbury, and Joane Tattershall (of Stapleford Co., Wilts?) in 1819;

The first of Tattershall family, Eudo, came in with William the Conqueror and obtained the Lordship of Tattershall in Lincolnshire.

Robert Tattershall, his great-great-grandson, married Mabel or Annabel, eldest daughter of William, Earl of Arundel. (Among the confiscated lands conferred upon Sir Henry Greene, son of the Chief-Justice, by King Richard II., were those of Richard, Earl of Arundel.) Through his wife Mabel, Robert Tattershall became possessed in 1244, of very large estates, particularly of the Castle and Manor of Buckenham in Co. Norfolk, which was made their principal seat. Their son Robert, born 1223, married Joan, daughter of Ralph FitzRanulf.

Parliamentary Writs, vol. ii., 1303: Robertus de Tatershall (Norfolk) his lands and tenements seized into King's hands in consequence of his death 28 July.

1316. Joan, widow of Robert de Tatershall, Hundred of Freebridge Co. Norfolk certified as held or in her hands 5 Mar. 9 Ed. II.

1316. Heirs of Tattershall certified as holding townships in Buckenham and Attleburgh Co. Norfolk 9 Ed. II.

Isabel Greene, great-granddaughter of Sir Henry, Chief-Justice of England, married Sir Richard de Vere. Elizabeth Vere, her granddaughter, married Lord John Mordaunt, whose great-grandson was created Earl of Peterborough.

Henry, 2d Earl of Peterborough (who wrote Halsstead Genealogies), had a daughter, Mary Mordaunt, who married (1) Henry Howard, Duke of Norfolk (see p. 9).

A branch of Tattershall family (possibly connected with Norfolk Tattershalls) also intermarried with Howards. George Tattershall of Stapleford, Co. Wilts, a few miles from Salisbury, was son of John of Hilden. He purchased the estate of Fenchampstead, Co. Berks. His son George married a daughter of Henry Boggs of Stapleford. Their son George, born 1604, had a daughter Mary, who married Charles Howard, 4th son of Earl of Arundel and grandson of the Duke of Norfolk; and a daughter Katharine, who married Bernard Howard, 8th son of Earl of Arundel.

The above close connections of the three families for so many generations lead us to infer that Joane Tattershall, wife of John Greene, surgeon, was a member of this ancient family, though we find as yet no positive proof.

NEW HAMPSHIRE BRANCH OF GREENE FAMILY.

Since these records were printed, correspondence with descendants has revealed some discrepancies in statements and dates, which lead us to doubt their accuracy. Of the "first of the family, of special note," Peter <sup>6</sup> (No. 582), General Greene made many conflicting notes, but finally recorded him as son of Richard <sup>5</sup> of Rhode Island, and identified him with "Peter of Concord," but they may have been two distinct persons. The date of Peter <sup>6</sup>'s (or Peter W.<sup>6</sup>) marriage is given 1777. If the eminent lawyer "Nathaniel of Boscawen," N. H., had been his son, as stated, he could not have been of sufficient age in 1787 to commence practice (see local histories). Data recently received show that Nathaniel's daughter Ruth was born that same year, when he must have been at least twenty-one years of age, thus disproving that he was son of Peter W.<sup>6</sup>, unless the latter's dates are erroneously recorded.

All records of this line following Peter's may be relied on as absolutely correct, being obtained within two years past from members of the family.

Captain Ballard Greene's record—confused at first writing—will be found more clearly stated on p. 699. That there is a relationship existing between these New Hampshire and Rhode Island Greenses is beyond doubt,—a strong resemblance and similar characteristics prevailing,—but a careful research is still necessary to prove the exact connection.—(COMPILER.)

QUIDNESSET, NEWPORT, AND LONG ISLAND GREENES.

Of Kingstown or Quidnesset Greenses, Mr. Henry Rousmanière wrote to Gen. George S. Greene, December 12, 1867: "I recollect a conversation I had 5 or 6 years ago with Isaac Greene of Exeter, in which he told me that his early ancestors were not named Greene, but had a century and a half ago adopted that cognomen. Isaac Greene was a Senator for several years, possessed a strong intellect and tenacious memory and would not be likely to be mistaken in his information of his family history." General Greene endorsed the tradition that this family bore at early date the name Clark, as he always alluded to them as "The Clark-Greenses."

Of Newport Greenses, Gen. George S. Greene wrote but a few years before his death, regarding the traditionary relationship between Newport and Warwick Greenses: "I believe the tradition is worth considering"; but he did not add his reasons for such conclusion.

In 1894 he wrote to Prof. Benjamin F. Greene, U. S. N. (retired): "I have no doubt of the correctness of the details in The Greene Family by F. L. Greene, and in few cases I see that he has stated 'probably' but [he has] on p. 11, 'Benjamin (probably of John)' of Kingstown; I feel very confident that Benjamin was son of Lieut. John Greene of Newport, a family well known in the State, a branch of which was in Narragansett Country, one in Newport (which moved to N. Y. State) and one in New Jersey, descendants of Henry Greene."

Of Long Island Greenses General Greene did not reach any definite conclusion in regard to their connection with Newport Greenses, but recent correspondence with a descendant of Long Island family (whose maternal line leads to Deputy-Governor John Greene of Warwick) shows strong evidence that William, who went from Rhode Island to Long Island, was the grandson of John of Newport, and that the ancestor was not "John late of Newport." William's family removed to New York State, which agrees with the statement of General Greene above, viz.: that "one branch in Newport moved to N. Y. State."
